THE CITY HALL.

The sales of the market revenues for the next month, which were advertised to be next to-morrow, will take place to-day at twelve o'clock, to-morrow being Thanksgiving Day.

The design of certain parties to have these revenues sold by the year seems to have been abandoned, at least for the time being, the present system bringing more ready money into the treasury.

Sacred Concert. We learn with pleasure that we will have the pleasure of hearing the best artists of the opera, the occasion being a grand sacred concert, to take place this (Wednesday) evening, at half-past seven P. M., at the Cathedral of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, now in progress of construction. The programme follows:

PART FIRST. Allegro da Quinella d'Onslow, flute, hautbois, clarinet, cornet and basson, by Messrs. Gazonne, Bonnard, Schneider, Filieux and Schenebags.

Cajus Annan, of Rossini, by Messrs. Schneider and J. Carlier.

Ave Maria, by Gounod, organ and violin, sung by Miss A. P.

Viola, by Danby, hautbois and organ, by Messrs. Bonnard and Carlier.

Offertory (Cantata) by Mr. G. Berton. An address by His Grace the Archbishop, N. J. Perche.

SECOND PART. Andante du Quinella, by Messrs. Gazonne, Bonnard, Schneider, Filieux and Schenebags.

Les Rameaux (by Mr. Faure), by Mr. Dumestre.

Air, Variete de France, by Mr. Gazonne.

Allegro da Quinella d'Onslow, flute, hautbois, clarinet, cornet and basson, by Messrs. Gazonne, Bonnard, Schneider, Filieux and Schenebags.

With such a list of distinguished artists, the concert can not but be a grand success. For our part, we will not miss the occasion of hearing good music and voices.

Mace and Coburn. We copy this from Wiles' Spirit of the Times:

On Thursday next, November 30, the men above mentioned are to fight at New Orleans. The fame of both of them as pugilists is large. Mace has defeated some of the best men of modern times, and though rather old, he has a good deal of fight left in him.

He has won his battles so easily that he is not generally regarded as a pugilist of ordinary merit. Some persons, without knowledge and entirely devoid of veracity, has stated that no money is up as stakes for the fight. It is a fact that five thousand dollars were placed by the principals and their former stakeholder in the hands of a gentleman of this city, and he in turn transmitted it to Captain Kutinski, who was to act as referee.

The certificate of deposit sent to Captain Hunt was returned to the bank on the evening of October, and the money was daily paid. Mace and Coburn mean to fight for this money, and they can never get it by cooking up a draw. If they were to do so, they would be regarded as cowards.

There was a pretty race for gentlemen's horses to harness, best two in three. E. Fulton entered John Burnett, L. E. Lemarie entered Iddel. Iddel won the first heat in 2:47 seconds, best in 2:54. John was not far behind at any time.

Today's attractions consist in part of a military display and a mile race between Selim and Gladiator, to saddle. All the machinery will be kept in motion until after dark. A base ball match, we hear, will be made, but did not learn names.

Fair at Odd Fellows' Hall. The fair for the benefit of St. Vincent's Home for Orphan Boys was continued last night, with an evidently increased number of attendants and a growing interest in the benevolent objects in view.

Our attention was especially called to the "Welcome Friends to the Poor Boy's Aid." This list is kept by Mrs. Omeil, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Wood, and their charming young lady assistants.

As a prize to be voted for and presented to the most popular of four young ladies, is a fine Singer sewing machine. The contestants for this valuable present are Miss Wark, Miss Donovan, Miss Hogan and Miss Quirk.

Also at this table is a magnificent silver set, presented by Levy & Co., which is to be raffled for.

At St. Patrick's conference the table is under the superintendence of Mrs. James Regan, Mrs. Peter Kelly and Mrs. Criedel. They have for prizes a handsome doll, dressed by Mrs. Liberman, which would be a darling to any young miss not yet arrived at her teens. They have also a horse and buggy up for raffle, a pair of Chevreuses, valued at $75, and a magnificent set of solid gold, worth $750, which would be a present for a queen.

The scores of beautiful young ladies who nightly throng the hall make it a centre of attraction for the ethereal soul who realizes the sentiment that "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

The fair will continue several days, and it is predicted that its success will increase until its close.

The Canton Citizen, in an editorial on the death of Lieutenant Governor Dunn, falls into the error of stating that he placed his house in mourning for Robert E. Lee. This is a mistake which Governor Dunn authorized the writer of this paragraph to correct long ago. The Citizen says:

This person, the most remarkable colored man who has figured in the South since the war is dead. The people of Louisiana seemed to have a higher regard for him and his character than for any of the horde of office holders that have afflicted that unfortunate commonwealth the last six years. Dunn was a lover of his race in the best sense of the word. He desired to see them virtuous, educated, genteel and self-reliant. His own dignified and gentlemanly conduct had commended itself to the respect of all true gentlemen, although Dunn was an intense Republican.

His conduct in placing his house in mourning for Robert E. Lee, and his reasons assigned therefor, showed him to be a man of good heart and of high moral tone. He said he admired General Lee as a man, and that he had regard for the feelings and sentiments of the whites among whom he lived and whom he assisted to govern, and that although opposed to Lee and his followers as a politician he would not be found wanting in appreciation of the noble virtues of the man, nor would he add any pang of sorrow to those already felt by his sorrowing fellow citizens of the white race.

If we must have colored men in high official position, may God grant they may be like Dunn. Requiescat in pace.

We like the tone of the following editorial paragraph from the Feliciano Ledger:

One day last week there happened a misunderstanding of the kind which is so common between a young man named Daily, who is teaching a colored school in the town of Jackson. The misunderstanding was entirely on the part of the white man, and the cause which led to it was a fair proof to be erroneous, and the fleetness of one of the party precluded serious damage, yet, as the respectable scamp has written ten Daily's Ku-Klux letters, notifying him to leave Jackson, or his life would pay forfeit.

We take this method of telling this loafing ruffianly Ku-Klux, who, in evading the worst enemy in this attempting to drag us down on a level with himself, by attempting to fasten upon us this disorderly and ruffianly act, that whenever we conceive a thought that he can be trusted, we will ourselves surely aggrieved, we will do our own battling, and that in open daylight.
