GOVERNOR WARMOTH IN NEW YORK: His Views on the New Orleans Situation.

Party Divisions—Collector Casey's Crowded—General Longstreet's Corrupt—The Swindling Legislative Schemes of Grant's Appointees Vetted by the Governor—The Prevalence of Bribery—Attitude of the Negro Element—Steady Growth of the Reform Movement—Liberal Republican Party Organization.

Wednesday the following reporter by an interview with Governor Warmoth by a Tribune reporter: Governor H. C. Warmoth, of Louisiana, who has recently passed triumphantly through an exciting contest with the Customhouse ring, led by Collector Casey, of New Orleans, is spending a few days in New Orleans, looking after the interests of the New Orleans, Mobile and Texas Railroad Company, in which his State is a large stockholder, and which has just held its annual meeting and elected a new board of directors.

What is the general condition of parties now in Louisiana? "We have four parties," replied Governor Warmoth, "the Democrats, the Reform party, which is an offshoot from it, under the leadership and control of the merchants and property-holders of New Orleans. Beyond the Reform and Republican party, of which Lieutenant Governor Pinchback is the leader; and then we have the Customhouse Republican party, which is a party of its own, and which is led by its members and Postmaster Lowell for its leaders. The Reform party is violently opposed by the Democratic Central Committee, which regards the reform movement as an innovation on the rights of the Democratic organization and the rights of the committee. The Reformers have called a State convention to meet in New Orleans on the twenty-second of April, and they are now in session. The Reform party is now in a position to elect either on April 18, the probabilities are that one of these wings, I can't say which, will swallow the other, and we shall have at the next election only one opposition organization. The Reform party is now in a position to elect either on April 18, the probabilities are that one of these wings, I can't say which, will swallow the other, and we shall have at the next election only one opposition organization.

What started this Reform movement? "Charges of corruption in the city government. We have a Committee of Fifty-one there, but, unlike your Committee of Seventy, its investigation terminated favorably to the city officials, notwithstanding the bitter hostility which was manifested by the city, has four or five Republicans on the side. The Democratic politicians are all on the side of their central committee, which, of course, weakens the Reformers for practical work."

"No fraud was discovered, then?" "None at all. The officers of the city government were appointed by myself, and I believe it is now regarded by all the people of New Orleans as probably the best city government they have ever had there—certainly as honest as any. The Democratic Central Committee has lost the confidence of the people. The Reform party, owing to the fact that it formed, without authority from the party, a combination with the Customhouse Republicans, with a view of securing the nomination of Governor Warmoth, and then resorting to popular tumults and demonstrations of force to accomplish that purpose, reaching on one or two occasions to armed bands of men, and the fact that they were supported by the colored men, has declared their legislative withdrawal from the Casey faction, and did co-operate with us during the last days of the session, and will do so hereafter."

What is the strength of the Liberal Republican party? "The genuine Republicans of Louisiana, of whose Central Committee the State Governor Pinchback is president, comprise, except those who hold federal offices, all the active Liberal Republicans."

Is General Longstreet friendly to the Liberal Republican? "He has, up to the present, been an ardent supporter of the general Grant, but the President's failure to remove Casey and Packard, and the other conspirators against lawful government, has disgusted him thoroughly, and he has resigned his office as surveyor of the port of New Orleans solely because his respect would not allow him to hold position longer under the administration. Longstreet was by far the strongest of the class personally, but the President at the South, and his detection will be very prejudicial to Grant's interest."

any circumstances, in the great sugar region back the Red river. "You think on the whole, then, to return to the States, do you not?" "I think not, Louisiana will not support Grant."

"Unless he changes his course very materially he won't get 5000 votes in Louisiana. All the Democrats, including the Reformers, and all the Republicans with whom I act I know will go against him, unless he changes much more than he is likely to do. I think if a good Republican ticket is nominated at Cincinnati, on a square Republican platform, it will receive the support of the Republicans of our State, both white and colored. We only want to be sure that no oppression or betrayal of the colored people will follow the success of the Cincinnati ticket, and the fear of such a result will be about the only argument of the Customhouse party with the colored people in favor of General Grant. The Democrats will do exactly as they please, and will support a Republican, and support a Democrat or a Liberal Republican, according to the action of their national convention. The New Orleans Times is undoubtedly a fair exponent of the views of the majority of the Democrats. The old slave-owners are about equally hostile to the State and national administration, but a majority of them are in favor of a reform movement without regard to party lines. The course of General Grant has deepened the animosities of the former rebels, and his arbitrary and revolutionary acts have convinced nearly all of us that he will not hesitate at anything necessary to secure his reelection. It is generally believed that General Grant will declare martial law in the South, under some pretext, if it becomes necessary to secure his reelection. He appears to regard the Southern States, in fact, as a sort of dependencies on his favor, places to furnish office for his poor kindred, and to furnish a market for his political adherents at the North. The opposition to Grant's reelection will steadily increase at the South from now until next election day, unless there is a prompt and radical change in his course."

The Iberville South says: This week's fair weather has been of great benefit to our planters. But we are sorry to say that our information in regard to the rice crop is not very encouraging. It is said that seed already planted is now rotting in the ground. Under these circumstances there is no help for our planters but they must plant a large crop of rice, and other necessities of life. Make something to eat, and you may be certain of finding a ready market for all you have to sell.

An American doctor at Marseilles is making a fortune by "wonderful cures." He gives nothing to his patients but pure water, which he magnetizes by a few passes of his hand; and it is said to be curious sight to witness hundreds of persons of all conditions waiting their turn at his door, each with a pitcher or decanter of water. The number who call daily is estimated at an average of 500.

Punch once satirized the cupidity of a rich Englishman thus: "A little wren has built its nest in the Marquis's pocket, and the Marquis has not disturbed since it laid its first egg."
