THE STATE HOUSE.

THE SENATE.

The Senate yesterday called to order by Lieutenant Governor Antoine punctually at twelve o'clock M., and the Secretary shortly after read and announced a special session.

The bill was taken up and read upon section by section.

The first, second, third and fourth sections were read and adopted with but slight change. The fifth section being under consideration, Mr. Bonham of Carroll, moved to strike it out entirely.

Mr. Keating, of Caddo, addressed the House in opposition to the motion of Mr. Bonham. He argued the necessity of division superintendents for the perfect success of the system of public education introduced in Louisiana, and hoped the gentleman from Carroll (Mr. Bonham) would not insist upon his motion.

The motion was finally withdrawn, and the fifth section amended and adopted. The sixth and final section was then read and adopted, and under a suspension of the rules the bill passed through all the forms of legislation and was sent to the Senate for concurrence.

The motion bill was then called up, and on motion of Mr. Montalvo, made the special order of the day for next Monday.

The House then adjourned until today at 12 M.

THE REPUBLIC OF SPAIN.

The people of Spain have been making history rapidly within the last few days. Six days ago the Cortes almost unanimously there were two dissenting votes—two to the outside looked on Amadeus, the Italian King, seemed seated firmly on his throne. Today Spain and Amadeus has abandoned his crown, packed his baggage, and is on his way down to the sea.

Precisely and quietly the transition was effected. Order reigns throughout Spain, and even the old war veteran Serrano has gone to the capital to pledge fealty to the government of the people.

Only three years ago the Spanish Republicans organized their resident directory at Madrid, consisting of Orens, Figueras, Castelar, Puy Margall and Cardenas, the simple platform of individual rights, divorce of church and State, abolition of slavery and the autonomy of the colonies.

Of these five men, Figueras, the eminent lawyer and scholar, is President of the Council; Emilio Castelar, the brilliant young orator and able statesman, is Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Puy Margall, the solid logician and now expelled patriot, is Minister of the Interior. Added to these, the rugged old soldier, Cardenas, is Minister of War; Isaura, the schoolmaster of the faith, is Minister of Marine, and the philosophical Ederaraz assumes charge of the Bureau of Finance. This is a strong Cabinet, and the administration of the new chief President opens promisingly for these men for his constituents.

The new President, Martos, is one of the old Republicans, a man of able abilities, and has in late years distinguished himself as the uncompromising and persistent advocate of Abolitionism.

Perhaps the best guarantee of the success of the new government is in the most happy selection of Don Emilio Castelar as Secretary of Foreign Affairs. Although his name has been familiar as a household word for many years, he is yet but thirty-five years of age, full of vigor, intelligent in labor, thorough, honest and penetrating. As a diplomat, he has in Europe today no superior, and as an orator no equal. His well known sentiments are reverberating for Cuba. We question if in the late ministry, of which he was a member, the Cuban people had a firmer friend.

But while these events have occurred at Madrid, others of a character not so pleasing to the bright future of Spain are transpiring in the northern provinces of the Peninsula. The Carlists are unquestionably gaining strength. They overrun now the territory bordering upon the Pyrenees and the important city of Zaragoza, and the railroad between Madrid and Barcelona is invested by them. The followers of Don Carlos may find this a favorable time to push operations vigorously in behalf of the pretender to the crown, with the aid of foreign gold, and it remains to be seen if the new government will be strong enough to successfully resist their encroachments.

Hotel to Rent.

On the corner of Canal and Julia streets, a central, quiet and pleasant location, in the Carondelet Hotel, recently erected by Mr. George W. Roper, one of the public-spirited taxpayers of New Orleans, is built expressly to supply a need, in this city, and to be conducted on the European plan, and contains about one hundred rooms, such as the travelling public, who need a nice home for a day, a week, or a month, will be sure to appreciate. A liberal lease for a term of years can be obtained from the owner of the hotel. In New Orleans there are several similar establishments where a profitable business is done, and profit may be realized in New Orleans as well.

The Bell Telephone at Exposition Hall.

Few bills given this session have been more brilliant or better attended by the elite of our society than the bill which is to be given tonight by the Young Men's Society. During the past twenty years it has been the custom among the young gentlemen of the Second and Third Districts to give a series of balls, at which they would only invite their acquaintances, and they were very wassaly and brilliant affairs followed as a matter of course. The ball tonight is one of the same kind, given by the same parties as their own. Those who wish to secure a cordial society at their best should try and be present.

The Red Packet Book.

Every repetition of the romantic drama of the "Red Packet Book" gives new impulses and creates a new interest in the play. Mr. Proctor as Myra and Mrs. Proctor as Blanche, are entitled to the commendation they receive. It is plain to see that our city attracts actors and a first class company, the company of the St. Charles Theatre to be the audience that would wish to see it might be tested. Tonight Mr. Proctor will take a benefit, and will appear as Jack, in an old and well worn, but always acceptable play.

NO HOPE FOR MCENERY.

KELLOGG THE LEGAL GOVERNOR.

EXISTING GOVERNMENT MAINTAINED.

THE LIBERALS DISCOURAGED.

Special to the New Orleans Republican.

Washington, February 13, 1873.

Keating the fractional vote of Louisiana in the Senate, will give no quarter to the McEnery government.

Congress will not interfere, and Kellogg's government will be continued as the legal government under the decision of the Supreme Court and the recognition of the President.

Warren and McMillan are discouraged.

New Appropriation Bill—Washington and St. Louis Railroad—Commissioner of Commerce Bill Tabled—Report on Hope of Water Lines Navigation.

Washington, February 13, 1873.—The new appropriation bill was considered; $70,000 for surveys on the Pacific was adopted. The amendment appropriating $3,000,000 for the construction of steam war vessels was adopted.

Mr. Corbett, from the Committee on Commerce, reported without amendment the Senate bill authorizing the Washington and St. Louis Railroad Company to construct a railroad from Washington City, through the States of Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, to St. Louis, with a branch and from any point on the main line to Indianapolis, Chicago, extending to the company for these purposes all powers enumerated in its charter from the State of Virginia.

The bill restoring pensions to the soldier, of 1812 who took part in the rebellion passed.

Mr. Conkling introduced a bill to repeal all the rights and privileges heretofore granted to the Alexandria and Washington Railroad Company, or to the Washington, Alexandria and Georgetown Railroad Company, or to the Alexandria and Washington Company, or to the District of Columbia, or to build bridges over the Potomac river, or construct any railroad through the streets of Washington. The bill was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The Committee on Mines and Mining had the day. The Senate bill was considered, and was adopted.

The bill creating commissioners of commerce, and with this report went to the table.

During the absence, speeches favoring Kellogg were made by Messrs. Price, of Georgia; Duke, of West Virginia; Stevenson, of Michigan; and Kerr, of New York, who were in favor of the James river and Missouri waterway, and in favor of the interests of the whole people, and free from all monopoly or private interest.

The action today defeats all hope of legislation for water line navigation this session.
