THE FIRMEN'S PARADE.

This is the name given to a new painting just presented to public inspection at No. 30 Camp street by Mr. T. S. Mosse. The picture is the joint labor of Messrs. P. Poiney and V. Pierson, two artists of this city. It is an canvas eight feet by ten, and represents the gathering of the firmen on the fourth of March last, at Clay square, on Canal street, at about ten o'clock in the morning. The view is supposed to be from the balcony in front of Tyler's store, on the north side of Canal street. Clay square looks up grandly in the centre, and in the background are represented the buildings on the opposite side of Canal street, up to Carondelet.

The picture contains 123 portraits of prominent members of the firmen department, four being selected by vote from each company. In the immediate foreground, on the left, the portly figure of Captain Jack Adams and his colleague, Captain John Yonnes, the fire wardens, attract the eye at once by the truth to nature of the artist's brush. They stand in a group of familiar faces. Beyond them the stalwart Chief Engineer O'Connor is giving orders to his four assistants. In the centre of the picture the venerable and beloved president of the Firmen's Charitable Association and the grand marshal of the day, Isaac N. Marks, sits upon his spirited gray steed, surrounded by his mounted aides, while the handsome Department, the treasurer, leans forward to receive the suggestions of his chief.

At the right, Emile Lamais leans forward from his stallion, to converse with some of the down town boys who surround him. There is Bill Swan, with his liver hat, Louis A. Wiltz, and Bob Brewster, president and foreman of No. 2, looking lifelike, as though about to greet the looker-on from the canvas. Among the aides to the grand marshal, Joe Hornor, the orator of the day, covers one flank, while Badger, the Metropolitan Chief of Police, wearing for the time being the blue scarf of No. 6, sits on his horse at the left of the group. About the centre, Charley Howard has lifted his hat to salute some ladies beyond. Jim Wingfield stands looking up at Tyler's clock, anxious for the procession to form, and Judge Braughn sits in his saddle contentedly, indifferent to flying time.

In one corner of the picture representatives of the daily press seem to have accidentally come together, and are exchanging greetings. Messrs. Passena, Dominich, of the Bee, Hassing, of the German Gazette, Jenkins, of the Postman, Ragony, of the Times, and Fish, of the Republican, are fully testify to the skill of the artist. It is needless to attempt to name or classify all the faces on the canvas which suggest themselves to the looker-on. Enough to say that the artist has had a delicate work to perform and that he has done it well.

The policeman towering over the heads of the group crowding the pedestal of the statue, the newsboy struggling for a place by the railing, the bouquet-seller in the foreground; Tom Melarty's little boy and girl in close proximity to the heels of Lamais's horse, and even the Italian greyhound, in the immediate front, testify to the discretion, taste and skill of the artist.

The next question is, what is to become of this painting? It is proposed to put it up for vote, the various companies and the Charitable Association being candidates for the possession. More than one company has resolved to own it, and place it in their meeting room. A generous rivalry will doubtless spring up, which will result in the artist being well paid for that which has been to them heretofore a labor of love.

REVUE DE LA SEMAINE.
Mardi Gras, February 21, 5:30 P. M.
To be held at the High Chamberlain's.

His Majesty the King of the Carnival, accompanied by his personal suite and military escort, just embarked on the new steamer Brilliant. Will arrive in the capital at 11 A. M. Mardi Gras. Movements of the royal party have been very quiet. Very few people aware of their presence. Departure of steamer very sudden. Excited considerable indignation among merchants unable to get their bills of lading ready, and unconscious of the cause. His Majesty is in excellent health, and impatience to reach his capital. Lord High Admiral still suffering from the gout. Led to be carried on board in a litter. All well.

ISPLANT.

CLEANINGS.

Recruiting for the attack on the government is uphill work. We judge from the attempt which have come under our observation, and the very necessity which exists for drumming up recruits on the public streets, is indicative of desperate straits. We do not think, although there are confident people who differ with us, that there will be any blood spilled. The forces of the government are well in hand, well armed, and their eyes are all that could be desired, and we do not believe that any like force can possibly be organized for the Quixotic enterprise of attempting their overthrow. It is difficult in this practical age to get men to engage in a violation of the law wherein there is a reasonable certainty of getting killed or wounded, for the simple satisfaction of seeing one act of men engaging in a fight instead of another.

The rumor so industriously circulated by the Fusionists that the police have been tampered with in a vile slander upon a gallant body of men. General Radger and his associates officers are confident of the loyalty of their command, and the men will prove it on the heads of their slanderers upon any proper occasion which may present.

The quiet suns even went so far last night as to state that arrangements have been made for the surrender to McKenry's representatives of the police stations. Such reports are not only preposterous, but indicate of the difficulty the opposition find in keeping their fighting spirit from going out entirely.

The McKenry proposition to the Democratic City Administrators to pay his police instead of the regular force was rejected, we are informed, by the following vote: In favor of paying McKenry's rangers, Brewster and Fitzner; against, Schneider, Calhoun and Tarabull; Struken refusing to vote. Mayor Wiltz is said to fully accord with the legal and proper stand taken by the majority.

This would make a good item for the Associated Press agent.

Sheriff Harper and Patton have been called to Mr. McKenry's office at Old Fellows' Hall, and urged to give in their adhesion to his "government," and especially their aid to the projected raid upon the Supreme Court. We learn they declined, which may safely be set down as a wish decision, and one highly calculated to prolong their employment of official hours.

The rumor that Sheriff Patton submitted to a ransom issued by Governor Kellogg to McKenry for his approval is simply an absurd joke.

The political situation may be briefly summed up thus: The conclusion of the Senate committee, even of those signing the report favoring a new election, that Kellogg would have carried the State by a large majority but for the frauds perpetrated in the conduct of the registration, voting and subsequent count, leaves McKenry without a first cause for complaint against the government as it stands. The respectable minority of the people composing his late party deplore this fact, and would like to see him legally elected and installed in office, but they can not and will not countenance a revolutionary attempt to seize the government, which the attempt must see will entail immense losses on a failure to succeed. Therefore will we have peace!

If further evidence of this were necessary we would add that the voluntary assurance we have given Governor Kellogg from Washington that whatever federal assistance he may require will be promptly furnished to sustain what the President, the courts and the Senate committee declare to be the de facto government of this State. Such assistance will not be needed, if General Longstreet is a judge of his own capabilities.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that our sanguinary Fusion politicians, for this day at least, forget their worldly aspirations, and in the house of prayer and penitence try to cultivate a spirit of good will and amity toward even those who have won the fat billets which they so much covet.

VALUABLE IMPROVED REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION BY THE SHERIFF.—We call attention to the sales at auction, to be made tomorrow at noon, at the Merchants and Auctioneers' Exchange, Royal street, by the sheriff of the parish of Orleans, said such comprise:

THE GRAND MARDI GRAS PAGEANT.

Until last year Mardi Gras was not crowned by pageant in the day time. There were only scattering bands of maskers, on foot, in carriages or on horseback. All this material was utilized, and much more was added. This year there will be a grand State pageant, consisting of six divisions.

At precisely one o'clock a salute of thirteen guns will be fired at the head of Canal street, and the pageant will take up the line of march, passing up St. Charles street to First, through First street to Magazine, down Magazine to Callopie; through Callopie to Camp; down Camp to the north side of Canal; to Royal; to Esplanade; to Rampart; to Canal; to the Clay statue, etc.

The interest in this pageant has been nearly as great as the night displays have heretofore created. From the preparations that have been made, those who visit our city may depend upon it that they will enjoy the double gratification of Mardi Gras demonstrations by sunlight and gaslight.

Blind Tom.
There is music in his soul, music in his body, music in his fingers' ends and music in his voice. His last visit here for the present will terminate to-morrow night, and he will then give his last concert in New Orleans. Blind Tom has been pronounced a musical prodigy, and that he is so is admitted by all who have heard him.

His presence on the piano most delicious music, always in imitation of what he has heard before. He needs only to enable him to imitate it, no matter how difficult the task. He does not lose a note by the repetition.

Exceeding pleasure is to be derived from listening to Blind Tom, and however little knowledge of music the auditor may possess, he will become spell-bound by the mystery of his wonderful performances. Blind Tom is a natural musical curiosity, and he is the wonder of the world, nearly all over which he has traveled.

Business Yesterday.
The magnificent weather yesterday and the great numbers of strangers in the city contributed to this result at the Varieties Theatre, the Academy of Music and the St. Charles. Each of these three places was crowded, and only standing room was left, and but little of that at the Varieties. Opera bouffe, the legitimate drama and pantomime are attractions such as can not be resisted when presented in such enticing forms as mark the present combinations here.

Amusement seekers have nothing to complain of in New Orleans at the present time, but there is not a surfeit of amusements as there is a surfeit of politics.

Magical Bazar.
Some people, who are up to mischief, delight to play tricks upon travelers, but Messrs. Hartz & Levy, of No. 142 Canal street, have favored this city with tricks for travelers and our own residents. Their advertisement announces the character of the tricks, but to purchase some of them would give a more practical idea of their value as amusements.

The first great sale of the season of choice city real estate, on terms of ten years' credit, as advertised by Messrs. C. E. Girard & Co., will perceptibly take place on Saturday next, the first of March. Our readers in search of a comfortable home or investment, will require no stimulus from us to induce them to take advantage of an opportunity so manifestly favorable. After all, no security is more desirable than good city property. The future expansion of New Orleans can not be calculated. When a thorough system of railroads and increased transportation facilities are secured for our great and growing metropolis; when Cuba and Mexico shall be admitted into the political civilization of this our absorbing and progressive country, then alone will we be able to appreciate the value of our local real estate. An opportunity to acquire property upon terms more convenient to the person of limited capital or to those seeking a safe investment, with an absolute certainty of enhancement, will perhaps not soon be again offered. Read the descriptive advertisements of Messrs. C. E. Girard & Co., and examine the plans of the property on exhibition at the Merchants and Auctioneers' Exchange.

Consideration of Louisiana Case on Tuesday—Judge Durell—Packard and Beckwith before the Judiciary Committee—Dick Taylor at the Attorney General's office, regarding the railroad—Hope of Congressional Action Disputed—Governor's Report to be Called Upon—Snyder's Election—Snyder Courts Investigation.

Washington, February 22.—The Senate will consider the Louisiana case Tuesday. The Judiciary Committee is inquiring regarding the impeachment of Judge Durell of Louisiana.

General Dick Taylor, who is here, visited the Attorney General today, mostly at the request of the Louisiana case. He is said to be in favor of a compromise in Louisiana affairs.

While the Credit Mobilier and somewhat general corruption in this country, mostly at the day, it is due to the executive and legislative branches of the government, it is thought that a crisis will be averted, with the loss to the government of the services of General De Cordova, Minister of War, but it is thought probable that the ministers who adhere to the radical party, will resign. Senor Figueras, President of the Council, is indisposed.

Thirty-two colonels and forty lieutenant colonels of cavalry of the regular army have resigned their commissions. Their resignations have been accepted.

Later advices from Barcelona give the particulars of the origin of the recent troubles there. The Captain General, during his temporary absence, left his second in command, General Canals, in command of the temporary government, supposing that the officers of the municipal government were in the interest of the Alphonse party, as assumed the control of the municipal authority, suspending the functions of the civil officers, and established martial law.

The troops of the garrison were placed under arms and ready to march. The people were unwilling to submit to this measure of a military commander, under orders from Madrid, the officer abandoned his interference with the municipality, and a quiet was restored without any disturbance of a serious nature.
