At last the sponge is thrown up by those who, for several years, have refused to acknowledge defeat. Although beaten in fact, they hold on in hopes that their theory would prevail. They still hold on to a grand resolve, which they would transmit to posterity, and which would be put in practice for the benefit of the chosen few, for many were called, but few were chosen. Their sense of so-called ambition has been reached, the rugged mount has been climbed, and the 'gold and best' has been discovered and found to contain—so they say—more than the quantity allowed to the just. They are, therefore, willing to divide, that they may obtain a portion of that which without division they could not obtain; they are all willing for the purpose of gain, to give away that which is not in their power to withhold. The plank that could carry one at a time over the bloody chasm, is now named as the platform upon which right and wrong shall meet and shake hands over the yawning abyss, that the combined weight may send two opposites on the same road to eternity.

Republicans, you have fought the good fight, and turn not from the road that has led you to happiness and prosperity. Democrats, leave your crooked ways, follow after and overtake Republicanism; convinced that it is right, give your hearty assistance, but don't ask it to turn back for the purpose of consultation at the cross-roads, where temptation and purposely mixed faces might cause it to forget its path of true duty.

Equality before the law and the rights of humanity are at last acknowledged and turn not back to counsel with men who have conspired the grandest principle and truth of Republicanism. Are the converts sincere in their acknowledgment? Are they conscientious in their professions of the truth of Republicanism? If so, why not join the mission that converted them, and carry forward, under the true banner, the faith that has saved them from perdition?

The faithful convert does not request the minister who has led him out of darkness to go back with him over the scenes of his wickedness, neither does he ask him to meet him half way on his path of duty, but goes forward to the end, believing that his reward will be great, and that his companions will rejoice in his resolution to throw aside prejudice and embrace the truth solely for its sake. But when the truth is advocated conditionally it becomes hypocrisy, and the advocate a hypocrite, who will evade all interest, tempt, even at the risk of happiness and peace of mind. When Democrats ask us to meet them half way for the purpose of forming a new party, we fear their professions and conversions are not sincere, and we imagine we hear them sing:

"Turn backward, turn backward, O time in your flight, And make me a new party again just for tonight! Yes, just for a night, you'll become radical, I declare, if during that night they can reduce the whole or partial government of the State. Meet us half way, divide with us, and you shall be allowed to keep your own. Give up the advantages you possess, and give us the proceeds of your labor; for this we concede to you everything that is left, all that we can not take shall be yours. All that is near and dear to you forsake for our sake, for we are the 'gold and best' fit only to govern—without this we oppose you to the bitter end. But you accept principles we fought for through rivers of blood, and years of toil; you concede that that blood was justly spilt, that the principles which justified its spilling are solemn truths; that the path upon which this truth is followed is the path of duty and right, therefore, fall into our ranks and help us to show more clear to suffering and oppressed humanity the grand truth that all men are created free and equal. Shake off the dust of error from your feet, and look not back on the ways that led you to perdition.

The body was poorly clad, but a spot of blood on the shirt over the heart excited Mr. Coignard's curiosity, and when he examined the wound he found it had been inflicted by a bullet which had entered the breast. Coignard was summoned and an inquest held. All that remained on the corpse were two bones, a French, addressed to Xavier Bogom. One of them was a nephew, expressing the hope that he will soon return to France, as relatives had intended, with the Minister of Foreign Affairs in his hands, and that the cause of his murder. It is hoped that the mystery will find a speedy solution, for it is evident that deceased was of some consequence at his country. Every effort will be made to ferret out the assassin, and, doubtless, when the case shall be developed, an interesting history will be told.

Edmund Yates describes Leon Gambetta as a fat, gross man of middle height, with reddish brown complexion and decidedly bad nose, with a queer couche or cock-eye, which gives him a half smile and sinister expression. He wears a curly-brimmed, green-stained hat, a tortoise-shell double eye-glass hanging loose round his neck, shining coat, and full trousers, and the ends of which his hands are thrust up to the waste.

"SNAK TRAIL"—The grocery store of E. A. Linder, corner of Franklin and Royal streets, was entered yesterday morning before his family were up, and robbed of $200. He has no clue to the thieves.

MEMBER—Last evening some pound-keepers were driving some cattle to the pound, when they were attacked by some dogs. Shots were fired, and the dog in the lot broke. James Kelling, instantly killed him. Several other shots were fired. Richard Bell, who was supposed to have fired the shot, and John Jones, were arrested.

Local Intelligence

ARMING FIRE MARKETS.—Mr. Phillips, superintendent of markets in the office of Administrator of Commerce, finding that keepers of independent markets were not inclined to conform to the laws unless compelled to govern them, arrested several of them in the Second District, and will bring the matter before Judge Stas.

The City Hall incident.—Unless the law is strictly enforced, it is thought that the contrary had better prepare for a little amusement.

THE STREETS.—Now, that old Mr. Probable gives promise of some dry weather, citizens generally expect that Administrator Lewis will do his best to obtain many laborers and immediately start them to work grading the streets. Unless he is deterred by this general demand he will be annoyed with some pretty lively committees. He yesterday sent several ward gangs to St. Charles street, above Tivoli circle, to grade the thoroughfare.

Protector (Fire Company No. 2, Sixth District), will give a picnic next Sunday, and on the second Saturday of July will take a trip to Grand Isle.

FESTIVAL OF PELICAN No. 1.—The members of this excellent company are celebrating themselves on the successful ending of their festival on the Fair Grounds last Sunday. The success is in great part due to the committees, and especially to Mr. George Terrell, the program, although a long one, was carried out with considerable vim.

CRUISED ON THE TRACK.—About half past one o'clock yesterday morning a colored girl named Mary Freeman was run over by car No. 31, of the St. Charles street line, at the corner of St. Charles and St. Louis streets. The car passing over her left leg, just above the ankle. She was conveyed to her residence, near at hand, where surgical attendance was procured. The driver of the car was charged with manslaughter, and the car was damaged in a terrible manner, and she will probably lose one limb.

DROWNED.—During Sunday night Thomas Rodgers, employed as a coal hauler at the head of St. Joseph street, accidentally fell into the river and was drowned. The body was recovered and an inquest held. The verdict was accidentally drowned.

THE $3000 EMBEZZLEMENT.—Detective Pearson has returned from Mobile with Charles F. Smith, the deputy tax collector of Ascension parish, who is charged with having embezzled $3000 from the parish. He is held in the parish jail, and Judge Gerson admitted accused to bail in the sum of $1000. Smith will be sent to Louisiana this immediately.

RAILROAD ON ROYAL STREET.—Mr. D. Harrison is pushing on his contract vigorously, and has some crossing laid ready for the engineers. Present appearances indicate that the work will be hurried up as fast as possible, so to interfere as little as possible with travel on the Royal street line, and business men of the Royal street do not approve of having a track there, but perhaps that opposition will wear all its force into nothing.

DEATH TO DOGS.—Owners of good dogs are reminded that poisoned sausages will soon be distributed on the streets for such canines as roam abroad without masters.

CLEAR CASE OF ASSASSINATION.—1 Major Coignard was inspecting the Morgan rail track, and when a man named Coignard discovered the body of a man lying on the rail, one train of cars having passed over, mangling it. An inspection disclosed the fact that some crossing had been run over, and that the assassin had evidently placed the victim's body on the rails in the vain hope that his bloody deed would thus be crushed out by the first train of cars that passed over.

The body was poorly clad, but a spot of blood on the shirt over the heart excited Mr. Coignard's curiosity, and when he examined the wound he found it had been inflicted by a bullet which had entered the breast. Coignard was summoned and an inquest held. All that remained on the corpse were two bones, a French, addressed to Xavier Bogom.
