What has become of them? What has become of the small band of office seekers who represented the State of Louisiana some time ago? Are their voices stilled forever? Or whence this silence? Probably it is only a calm that precedes the storm. Republicans beware; the fury of the tempest is nothing compared with the anger of disappointed politicians. Striving for years to be the rulers of this State, they have made use of every conceivable way to bring the Republican party to terms, or more strictly speaking, under subjection, but so far failed, not because of their honest purpose, but because the Republicans could see through the deception, and were not to be easily led by the little band of patriots for office. The contest is still waging, and will not cease according to the Fusion theory, until the last remnant of Radicalism is swept from the earth. "We unite thee," Republicanism! Desolation, destruction will surely follow thee when the trump shall sound the Fusion victory (which is rather doubtful).

We have at present a good republican form of government, and if I mistake not, men in office who are fully competent and able to rule the State of Louisiana with the aid of the Fusionists; so, messieurs, save your displeasure for some more convenient time, or at least until called for. At present there are no vacancies, and you really waste too much time in waiting for them. The disappointment is great, no doubt, but for this thought consolation: that in demanding your rights you desire justice, not office. Only be patient, good and obedient and you will meet with success. Naughty children, you all should know, must be punished. NETIE.

Clubs of Assassins. From the House Daily, September 29. We are glad to see the editor of the Clarifier wake up to some susceptibility of the position of Judge Crawford and District Attorney Harris, though we regret that he should not have been able to write an article on the subject without getting into a political quagmire that murdered article. It is not true, as stated by the Telegraph, that Judge Crawford was holding an office to which he was "notoriously" not elected. Judge Crawford was declared elected by the only legal authority in the State competent to sit in judgment upon and decide the case, and the judges who sat in the case were in a judicial district known to be fairly republican, and was popular as a judge as always to run far ahead of his colleagues. The evidence is simply striking and manly—murdered man—in the back, to say or intimate that he was holding an office to which he was notoriously not fairly elected, is simply a political quagmire that murdered article.
