

New Orleans Republican

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, JANUARY 16, 1874.

Taking babies to a mistress is a crying sin.

Good intentions will not justify evil actions.

Spiritualism is said to be on the increase in England.

"Patience and long suffering" is the motto adopted by doctors.

If you can not do as well as you wish do as well as you can.

Flattery sickens every person except those who swallow it.

A man with torn clothes tells his wife it is "never too late to mend."

Truth sometimes tastes like medicine, but that is an evidence that we are ill.

A man is in debt up to his ears when he wears a new suit of clothes not paid for.

An Indiana clergyman lately delivered his sermon in rhyme without any particular reason.

Six good linen bosom shirts for $7, at Garthwaite, Lewis & Miller's, No. 100 Common street.

A Tennessee jury has created a man who kicked a friend up "on the impulse of the moment."

Wrong-doers are generally far less ashamed of having done wrong than of being found out.

English war ships and steamers will not sail from port on Friday, but the mail lines to America are obliged to.

Perugini, an engraver of Rome, after ten years' labor, has finished a plate after Raphael's "Belle Jardiniere."

The leader of an orchestra issues promissory notes when he tunes his violin before the performance commences.

The main strength of Congress is increased from the fact that every member from Minnesota was born in Maine.

Good warm overcoats for $3 75, $4 75, $6, $7 50, $8 50, $9 50 and $13, at Garthwaite, Lewis & Miller's, No. 100 Common street.

A little girl asked her sister what was shown that her papa read about. The elder girl replied, "It was a great pile of nothing, and no place to put it in."

"You'd better ask for manners than money," said a man to a beggar. "Faith, and I asked for what I thought ye had the most of," was the curt reply.

Dean Swift says: "It is with narrow-necked bottles, the less they have in them the more noise they make in pouring it out."

Oleomargarine is what they call sweet-butter, and 400 tons (8,000 pounds) of it have been wrangled down people's throats in this country during the last eight months.

Philosophers say that shutting the eyes makes the sense of hearing more acute. A wag suggests that this accounts for the many closed eyes that are seen in church on Sunday.

It is said that, in all probability, the bird of wisdom, called owl, was intended to be called howl, but the first cockney who heard "an owl got hexaperated and dropped the snitch."

Before taking prussic acid a young lady in Chicago inhaled the request that she be assigned to her narrow home in her silk dress, and that her bracelets should not be removed from her wrists.

German women boast the best heads of hair of any nation on the globe, but the Italian women have more brilliant complexions, and are regarded as the prettiest on the European continent.

A Washing correspondent of the St. Louis Globe represents General Sheldon, of Louisiana, as saying that not one Southern Representative is in Cushing's favor, while many Democrats are opposed to him.

The Detroit Free Press says if any man says there is no longer such a thing as general love he should visit that city and see the sparkle in the eyes of two lovers as they hold the same peppermint lozenge between their teeth.

It is a curious fact that the seven asteroids discovered during the past year were all first seen in America, and to Europeans is due the credit of being the first to detect the seven comets which have made their appearance during the same period.

The way they arrange it in Fall River, Massachusetts, is to postpone the flogging of naughty school children until twenty-four hours after the offense has been committed. Thus angry passions are given time to cool, and nobody gets hurt.

An apothecary, who, in everything connected with business, was a perfect pattern of punctuality and exactitude, had lately the misfortune to lose his wife. At the hour of her interment he placed the following placard upon the door of his shop: "Gone to bury my wife; return in half an hour."

In Switzerland there is a law which compels every newly married couple to plant six trees immediately after the ceremony, and two on the birth of every child. They are planted on commons and near the road, and being mostly fruit trees, are both useful and ornamental. The number planted amounts to 10,000 annually.

A small, clean potato, with the end cut off, is a very convenient medium of applying brick dust to knives, keeping it about the right moisture, while the juice of the potato assists in removing stains from the surface. A better polish can be obtained by this method than by any other we have tried, and with less labor.

In a report of a recent case tried in a St. Louis court, in which the plaintiff was a widow, the following dialogue occurred between the counsel for the defense and one of the witnesses for the other side: "Mr. Murphy, are you any relation to the plaintiff?" "No, sir, I am not." "Don't you expect to be?" "Such a thing might happen." "Now, are you not going to marry her?" "I'm afraid not." "You are afraid you won't, eh? Well, now, don't you expect to marry her?" "If my wife should die and the widow should remain single all their lives, such a thing might happen."

A FUSION REFORM MEASURE.

It can not be denied that there is an apparent weakening of prominent Republicans in Washington upon the so-called Louisiana question. Even the most zealous friends of our cause show a disposition, if pressed, to take the Democrats at their word, and consent to a new election. It would no doubt have been the shortest way to the end of the dispute a year or so ago. Whether it would be so now or not may be doubtful. In this connection we quote from the Washington correspondence of the New York Herald, dated January 10:

THE LOUISIANA FIGHT. There is promise of a very lively struggle over the Louisiana matter which is next coming up in the Senate. Ex-Governor Warmoth and George Sheridan, who have both been working several days in the interest of a new election, express a great confidence to-night that action will be taken by the Senate within ten days, setting aside all claims to the office under the election of 1872, and ordering a new election to take place immediately. It was reported to-night that Senator Morton would recede from his position in favor of Kellogg, and acquiesce in growing sentiment in the Senate in favor of such a policy; but the Senator himself, in a conversation, this evening, while he did not, in plain terms, deny that he would yield, gave ground for the inference that if he did so it would only be after a pretty thorough test of the sentiment of the Senate.

We were made aware that George A. Sheridan was in Washington several days ago by a fancy paragraph in the Washington correspondence of the St. Louis Republican. The announcement that Warmoth is there figuring for a new election is news, but not surprising. He is very likely to be there, and for such a purpose. He is the chosen minister of economy and reform on the part of the Louisiana Fusionists. His pet measure is and has long been a new election, to which the Republicans of Louisiana have really but two serious objections aside from any doubt they may entertain of the constitutional-ity of such a step:

- 1. It involves a heavy bill of expenses, which the people are not in a condition to pay.
2. It would arouse the hopes of office seekers, create a commotion in localities now comparatively at peace and aggravate the rising contentions in the country parishes between the planters and the laborers.

As for the constitutional objections, they may be met by the answer that an order for a new election in this State by Congress would be revolutionary, and there are but few politicians in the country who have not committed themselves to the right of revolution in favor of one great question or another. If the majority of the representatives of the Northern States decide that the best way to dispose of the Louisiana question is by means of a new election, there will be no lack of reasons urged in favor of the legality of the step. And when we consider this question closely, it will be seen that, in case a new election is ordered, it will have the consent of both political parties. The Democrats have been harping on the affirmative ever since four members of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections brought in the majority report recommending it. The measure can not pass either house of Congress without the assent of the dominant party, nor become a law without the approval of a Republican President.

The question that is presented to the Republicans in Washington is: Will this concession to the demands of the Democracy result in satisfying everybody, or at least in quieting those loud crying politicians who besiege the Capitol with complaints because the attempt to cheat in the interests of their party was discovered and defeated? The Senators want a little time to devote to the consideration of other matters of vastly more importance to the nation than any arising out of the Louisiana strife.

The Republicans of this State have simply to consider whether the luxury of beating the Fusionists by a majority of thirty or forty thousand, which they can do if they make up a good ticket and can have a fair election, is worth what it will cost. Last year we succeeded, under decidedly adverse circumstances, in beating them by about fourteen thousand.

The only possible advantage any Democrat can secure by a new election will result from his ability to hedge. Here and there one may succeed in joining ward clubs, and prevail upon Republicans to trust him so far as to give him a small office. But this sort of advantage to that party would not extend very far. Few would be thus called. A slight degree of satisfaction might be experienced by some who have failed to succeed in seeing their rivals compelled to try it over again. But there would be no substantial advantage in this.

The whole question is undoubtedly narrowed down to this proposition. The Fusionists admit their defeat, but claim that the election was not fairly conducted. The fact that they had control of it themselves does not prevent them from demanding a new trial. They have imported Congress for this. Now, if the Republican Senators finally consent to accede to this demand, it will be the duty of our party to buckle on their armor, examine their priming, look to their flints, and prepare for the campaign. We hope and believe they are ready for the question.

THE POLITICAL TROUBLES IN TEXAS.

The latest telegraphic dispatches from Texas and Washington indicate an early and peaceful solution of the political difficulties in Texas arising from the late election of the Supreme Court of Texas, affecting the validity of the election, is not regarded of sufficient importance by the national administration to cause its interference in favor of those who are anxious that it should be set aside in order that Governor Davis and the old Legislature may continue in power. The letter of President Grant to Governor Davis, in answer to the call of the latter for troops to sustain the decision of the Supreme Court, may be regarded as a quietus to the troubles that were looming up, should the people of Texas deposit themselves in a manner becoming intelligent freemen and patriotic citizens. The President tells Governor Davis that his call is not made in accordance with the constitution of the United States, and the acts of Congress under it, and for that reason could not be granted, even though there were no good reasons why the decision of the Supreme Court should not set aside the result of the late election in that State. The President, after reminding Governor Davis that the act of the Legislature of Texas providing for that event having received his approval, and both political parties having made nominations and conducted a political campaign under its provisions, asks him if it would not be prudent as well as right to yield to the verdict of the people as expressed by their ballots. If there are no good grounds for questioning the fairness of the election—and we heard of none—all fair-minded men, without regard to party, answer yes to the question thus put by the President to Governor Davis. Without conceding that a change from Republican to Democratic administration of the government of Texas at this time is desirable, particularly if it is to be administered so as to revive and strengthen the prejudices that have divided the people of the South since the abolishment of slavery, we have no hesitancy in saying that we believe the white people who vote the Democratic ticket in Texas are as largely in the majority as are the colored people voting the Republican ticket in Louisiana. And for this reason the course of the President in regard to the political affairs of Louisiana and Texas must be regarded as both consistent and correct.

The constitution of the United States guarantees a republican government for each State—in form and practice—and, according to republican government as practiced in our country, the will of the majority makes choice of those who administer the government for a limited time, it is very plain that Congress and the President have made that their chief aim, when called upon to interfere in the affairs of States that have had to undergo the process of reconstruction. Both the President and Congress have up to this time—and there is no reason for believing they are going to stop here—upheld the will of the majority of Louisiana, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the national government to interfere in its local affairs. Texas has the example of this lesson before her. If she profits by it there can be no cause for national interference in her local affairs, and we believe the same thing will be done in Texas, providing no rash measures are resorted to by Democratic hot-purs, men, who, becoming elated with the prospect of power, may be disposed to act violently and disregard the rights the national government has conferred upon the enfranchised race. It must be remembered that no State will be permitted to disregard the civil and political rights of American citizens on account of color or previous condition. It was the attempt of the Democratic party to disregard these rights in Louisiana that compelled the