THE NEW SCHEME

A singular spectacle was witnessed yesterday in the Customhouse. A sort of conference was held, with Messrs. McEnery and Penn as the two leading spirits in the movement, and Governor Kellogg, or rather his office as the object. The proposition is really made to the Governor to relocate his office, relinquish the authority now lodged in his hands, and which the President of the United States has declared in his intention to sustain at all hazards, and retire to make room for a man whom the White Leaguers would have a voice in selecting. Here we have presented to us an instance of the vanquished coming into the tent of the victor and dictating terms. Governor Kellogg cannot possibly have anything to say to Mr. McEnery or anybody else who talks to him of resigning his office and abandoning his political friends. He ought never to have permitted a conference of the kind to be held in his name nor to issue any instructions in connection with Mr. McEnery, except to cause his arrest for treason against the State.

If Governor Kellogg wishes to resign his office and retire from the very onerous position he has held for nearly two years, we may regret his determination perhaps, but have no reasonable objection to interpose. But we do object decidedly to his making his high office a matter of bargain and sale, trade and barter, with gentlemen who were three days ago limiting his life and denying his authority at the head of armed insurgents. They have since laid down their arms and dispersed at the command of the President, strengthened by the menacing attitude of General Emory. There is, therefore, no impediment, lawful or otherwise, to the continued discharge of his executive duties by the Governor. He is no more responsible to one man than another nor should he lend himself to any measure or proposition which involves the sacrifice of the interests of his associates on the State ticket. If he chooses to resign he can not possibly pledge Lieutenant Governor Antoine to follow his example. Nor is it reasonable to suppose that Senator Anderson who stands next in the line of succession to Antoine will yield his chance on any account.

We hope Governor Kellogg will for the present dismiss all thoughts of relinquishing his executive authority, which he has heretofore exercised sparingly, and adopt such a policy toward his personal and political enemies as shall teach them to respect his authority. But if he decides to do otherwise, then let him take no thought or care about the selection of a successor, but leave the decision of that question to those who will lawfully come after him. If Governor Antoine and Senator Anderson both decline the honors, then doubtless the Senate will be able to fill the vacancy acceptably. But we have no faith in any bargain that can be patched up by those who were tussling with the question yesterday. We do not believe Republicans need to go out of their own camp for advice, nor do we suppose the party throughout the State will be pleased with such a patched-up arrangement. There never has been such unanimity since the days of Louis XV., as that displayed by Governor Kellogg. With the whole army and navy of the United States at his back, and the perfect master of the situation; holding in his hands the fate for life or death of every citizen of the State, he quietly sits down and listens to a proposal from his deadly enemies to abdicate, and turn his government over to them. Guile is brought into requisition to accomplish what force failed to perform. We say to the Governor, in the language of Sumner to Stanton, "Stand!"

The purpose thus shadowed out requires no comment except that the true proclaimed by the White League protected that association from prosecution under the provisions of law which punish any attempt "to deprive any portion or class of the people of any of the rights, privileges or immunities, or protection, named in the constitution and secured by the laws for the protection of such rights," etc.

This keeping the White Leaguers in the background and entrusting the movement to those who were not committed to the White League platform, was aroitly devised by the learned council who conducted the strategy. But the Be was no party to this recognition of colored rights, nor was the White League which came to the front when the Fusion press heralded the affair finished.

There were evidently two opposing opinions in the revolutionary camp. The one would have practically reduced the negro to political bondage. The other seems to have always opposed the political ostracism of the negro, and was no doubt sincere in an intention to recognize the political rights of the negro. Upon this issue we may expect to hear more. The White League has been repudiated by the Democratic party of the North, and is held responsible for the Conshatta horrors. There were many members of the Fusion party who protested against the race issues, and refused to unite with the race movement. The doom of the White League having been sealed by the circumstances of defeat, we may anticipate that those who would not yield to its dictation while in power will not obey the leadership of its demoralized commanders. Events will show the future political position of the men who recognized the colored people of Louisiana.

NOT A MILITARY GOVERNOR. We suspect the Cabinet has been misled in the matter of Lieutenant Colonel Brooke. There is nothing in the order of General Emory to sustain the assertion that a military commander has been appointed. The Commanding General designated Colonel Brooke to perform certain military duties, but gave him no civil authority whatever. If Colonel Brooke has misapprehended the scope of his authority and usurped civil powers and prerogatives, the fault is his, not General Emory's. The United States troops here are nothing more nor less than a posse or guard for Governor Kellogg. He is the master of the situation, and by virtue of the authority vested in him by the people,
