Local Intelligence.

Twenty Thousand Dollars in Dispute. Twenty thousand dollars are now in dispute in bank and will be paid the instant the proper claimant presents himself.

Mrs. M. N. Van Cott. The many friends and admirers of this lady will regret to hear that owing to an attack of heart disease she will not be able to visit Ames Church this winter as promised.

High School Exercises. On the nineteenth instant the Lower Girls' High School, on the twenty-first the Boys' Central, and on the twenty-third the Upper Girls' High School will hold their annual exercises.

Three Postoffices. New Orleans is blessed with three postoffices, which are a great accommodation to our people.

They Attended Daily. State Superintendent Boothby attended the public school examinations last week, and although the work was a difficult one, he managed to visit nearly every building.

Near-sighted drivers of blind horses should pay particular attention to the crossing at Common and Robertson streets.

Number Fourteen's Ball. The members of this old time fire company enjoyed themselves last night in Exposition Hall.

Kicked to Death. Barney Dean, alias Fagan, an elderly man, was sent to the Charity Hospital on the sixth instant, suffering from bruises inflicted by Washington Banks, and died soon after entering.

A Homicide Complete. Emma Johnson, the woman who was shot by Fupete, a little boy, and who had been left for parts unknown.

Brief Mention. Eagle Fire Company No. 7 will give a ball next Saturday night in Grunewald Hall.

In the City Hall. Administrator Barko has found it convenient to stray over to Texas, to get City Hall smell out of his clothing.

Mr. N. Marks called on Mayor Leeds yesterday and held a private conversation concerning the other shore.

Home Hook and Ladder No. 1. This Sixth District fire company held an election last night, with the following result:

Election by Mississippi No. 2. This solid fire company held its annual election last night, and after a close contest elected the following named officers:

Improved Real Estate at Auction by the Sheriff. We are requested to call attention to the sales at auction to be made to-morrow at noon, at the Merchants and Auctioneers' Exchange, Royal street.

3. Also, three lots of ground, with the improvements thereon, in the same district, corner of Carondelet walk and Lopez street, and the corner of Conti and Lopez streets.

For full particulars and terms see advertisements.

What Does It Mean?

Under this heading the New York Herald publishes a special dispatch from this city, dated December 7, 11:45 P. M. The nature of the dispatch shows the time to be of vast importance, and a minute more or less would have affected its accuracy.

The streets are covered with armed men. Factions have been placed at the head of the parade, and orders that they shall say nothing.

Another dispatch to the same paper is dated December 8, time of day or night not given. The second dispatch is somewhat explanatory of the first, and says:

The singular movements of various squads of disguised men last evening continued late into the morning. Occasionally they were reported as being engaged in the work as to what was up had a pistol put to his head and told to shut up and ask no questions.

They are not in a mood to be taxed out of house and home by seven men, and will not permit the honest toilers to be taxed.

The Legislature could authorize the city to draw on the Federal Government for the amount of the cost.

The laws of trade will adjust themselves if let alone. Panics, like buncoconys, exact themselves, or are but occasional.

No law of this kind can be passed in motion the wheels of labor and restore prosperity, but ignorance can be combated, and by making possible intelligent citizens.

This bill was fully explained in our columns last winter; it is familiar to Congress, and we commend it to the Republican leaders.

The present Administrators are all men of small ability, and several of them are utterly unknown to the general public.

Respectfully, A CITIZEN.

Coville's name as a stranger. NEW ORLEANS, December 11, 1874. EDITOR REPUBLICAN.

Being a stranger in your city, I naturally felt a great desire to visit the various institutions, so having arranged my business affairs, I witnessed the Templar's celebration.

As I am interested in those of my own State, I wished to compare the results of the annual examinations to be held during the week.

My first object was to see the examination of the pupils under perfect control. After passing through the different rooms I passed on to that of the principal and listened to the examination.

There were a number of girls who answered questions as well as the boys, showing that they understood the subject.

My first object was to see the examination of the pupils under perfect control. After passing through the different rooms I passed on to that of the principal and listened to the examination.

There were a number of girls who answered questions as well as the boys, showing that they understood the subject.

I next visited the Jackson Boys' School and heard several classes recite. The girls were dressed in the Jackson Girls, who arrived just in time to hear the first class, who were arranged in order.

They appeared to me not only a fine specimen of Southern beauty, but also of intelligence as all seemed to possess, and answered a number of difficult questions.

I was particularly interested in one little miss of about fourteen years, who not only answered all the questions given her, but who was eager to prompt all of those who either fear or timidity hesitated.

I felt as if I would like to mention in my journal some of our Western girls when I get home, so I inquired and learned that her name was Miss Minnie Terry, and that she was to deliver the valedictory in the afternoon.

Miss Gordon also attracted my attention, and I was prompted to return about two o'clock, hoping to hear Miss Minnie recite and deliver the valedictory, but was unable to do so.

Who they were, and their object, is a matter of conjecture, but the purpose was either to lynch certain persons or to frighten the Returning Board into a fair count, but a member of the Committee on Seventy-seven stated that they were merely persons drilling and parading for exercise.

It is certainly strange that they should exercise until two o'clock in the morning.

The Herald's treatment of Louisiana affairs during the present rebellion has frequently been commended by the Bulletin as very intelligent and impartial.

It has been frequently remarked that an employe of that great paper must risk his life to become valuable.

The Cuban special had to suffer imprisonment and threats, Stanley must pass through dangers unheard of, even the local have to flee from wild beasts in the streets of New York.

Why should not the New Orleans man have a pistol placed in his hand by white Leaguers? Things are becoming monotonous here.

Killing did not go as briskly as expected, hence the romance. What was said we know; what means is a matter of conjecture.

Communicated. News of Eight. New Orleans, December 11, 1874. EDITOR REPUBLICAN.

It is the duty of every citizen to pay his taxes promptly, if he has the means to do so. But at the present time a large number of our citizens are unable to do so.

They are not in a mood to be taxed out of house and home by seven men, and will not permit the honest toilers to be taxed.
