

New Orleans Republican. OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF NEW ORLEANS

AUCTION SALES THIS DAY. ST. R. GUINABLET, at 12 o'clock, at the corner of Exchange Alley and Bienville street, horse, buggy and harness.

Local Intelligence. MURDERED AT HIS POST OF DUTY.—About three o'clock yesterday morning, Sidney Tarbox, employed on the American ship India, lying at upper post 32, head of Market street, was aroused from his sleep by an unusual noise on the deck. He was in a small room near the main hatchway, and on discovering that thieves were plundering the vessel, raised an alarm. One of the thieves, for there must have been three or more of them, seeing that they were liable to be captured, fired a pistol at Tarbox, killing him instantly, the bullet entering his heart. The assassins fled, firing as they retreated, probably to deter anybody following them. When the shots were heard several persons on the vessel appeared, and found the unfortunate sailor dead. An examination of the ship was made, and it was ascertained that the robbers must have been on board a considerable time, filling sacks with cotton which they had stolen from the bales between decks. They had cut the ties with a pair of large shears, pulled out cotton and filled sacks with it. Full sacks had been passed to persons on the wharf, and empty bags were ready for use. When the robbers were discovered they dropped everything and escaped, leaving behind a coat, a cap, the shears and the sacks.

Deceased was twenty-four years old, a native of Bath, Maine, and leaves his aged mother here. Two years ago his eldest brother was killed by Indians on the plains, and soon after his other brother was drowned at sea, as was one of his uncles. If the police have any knowledge of the perpetrators the fact has not been divulged. However, it is expected that nothing will be left undone whereby the murderers may be brought to justice.

STEAMBOAT KITTIE HEGLER BURNED. At ten o'clock last night the steamboat Kittie Hegler, J. D. Hegler master, caught fire at the wharf, head of Poydras street, and in five minutes after an alarm was given she was a mass of fire. The harbor police and steamboatmen succeeded in cutting her fastenings and shoved her out into the stream, where the harbor boat Tyler managed to get a hold of her and towed her down stream, clear of other vessels, and she burned to the water's edge. The Tyler continued to throw a huge stream of water, which was plainly seen half a mile away. The Hegler was a stern-wheeler, and has been in this port only a few times. She was owned in Cincinnati, and was advertised to leave to-day for that city, having a small load of molasses, sugar and iron, all of which was lost, as there was no time to save anything. Fortunately, the few persons who were on board were warned in time to reach the wharf safely, though they saved none of their personal effects. The boat was valued at about $10,000, but it insured was not ascertained.

RAISING THE TRACK.—Persons in charge of the Mobile railroad track along the levee, above Esplanade street, have presumed to raise the road bed considerably higher than the surroundings, and did so without consulting anybody. This movement will prove a nuisance to all kinds of vehicles, especially so to loaded floats, drays and carts. Administrator Burke informed the managers that the innovation could not be permitted and that his instructions were not to be heeded. Indeed, his authority was apparently despised. However, it is likely that the city authorities will see whose fault it is.

CALLING THE HARBOR PROTECTION BOATS. Recent disasters to steamboats landing at the Sixth District have created a demand for safeguards or warnings. When the steamboat Mary Lowry burned at the head of Broadway street, the fact was not known in central points until hours afterward, consequently no timely assistance could be rendered. This circumstance induced interested persons to devise a means or system by which the harbor protection boats, which are burning or sinking. Arrangements have been made with Mr. Weeks, superintendent of the fire alarm telegraph, to strike his bells two sounds of four taps, which will be a signal for the above mentioned boats to proceed to the Sixth District to render assistance.

MARDI GRAS BALL AT THE OPERA HOUSE.—It is announced that there will be a grand old-time fancy ball at the Opera House Mardi Gras, and as the arrangements are in experienced hands persons festively inclined may depend on it that the affair will be all that the gay occasion demands.

BODY OF A DROWNED WOMAN.—The body of a drowned woman was yesterday found in the river, head of Lizardi street, near the Douglas place. Everything indicated that the body had been in the river several weeks, and was beyond recognition, but the few articles found on it may lead to who the unfortunate person was. There is a chance that it was the body of Mrs. Musgrove, who was lost when the steamboat Exporter was burned.

MONOPOLIZING SPACE.—Last night, certain persons, who were able to pay carriage hire to see the procession, monopolized space provokingly. The carriage and horses occupied not less than twelve or thirteen feet in length, thus preventing a number of persons seeing the sights on the route. Carriage ticket holders did not resist the arrangement. It is time our police adopted the American system of clearing the streets of all vehicles while processions are passing.

BRIEF MENTION.—Mr. J. B. Eustis, member of the State Senate, occupied his seat yesterday in that body. As he vacated his chair several days ago and tramped off to Washington on a political errand, and it was supposed that he would never resume his chair in Louisiana's Senate, therefore the Sergeant-at-Arms removed the desk, but yesterday placed it back, and Mr. Eustis occupied it.

There will be a bit of moon-to-day, brought over from Europe in two ships and a bark, purchased exclusively to help out the New Orleans Gas Company.

Thousands of strangers were on the streets

yesterday, all of them moving around to see the sights. Superintendent Loan and Captain Gray continue to release prisoners as suits them. The elephantine oysters displayed in front of Camora's St. Charles street restaurant yesterday were wonderful to behold. Leon simply looked at them and his appetite was satisfied. Judge Koppel, appointed to supercede Judge Thompson in Algiers, has not taken his seat yet. From sunup to sunset yesterday there were only four arrests in the first police precinct, and those four were trifling. Last week Judge Adams collected fines amounting to $72 50; Judge Stas $50; Judge Long $27 50; Judge Torreboune $9 50; Judge McCormack $2 50; Judge Falls $10. A six year old boy, who is a good Sunday school attendant, has too much. Mardi Gras is close by, and little Augustus by chance learned that his pious teacher is to appear in the day procession attired as a devil. Michael Dormody was as moist as Commercial alley on a foggy night, having swilled in a keg of beer. Reaching the corner of Chartres and Conti streets, he could not resist the fun of hearing his revolver shoot and see the police run. Officer Hart ran, and tumbled plum against Michael, and then the third calaboose had a breezy recruit. Mrs. Kate Black, living at the corner of Baronne and Julia streets, was robbed of $175 and a mortgage note for $1800. Ann Black, a servant in the family, is suspected, as she has disappeared. Isabella Vernon, a servant, was arrested at No. 414 St. Charles street for stealing two umbrellas, one shawl, five hats and a pair of ear-rings. Many places on Canal and other central streets were prettily decked yesterday and last night. Late last night, after Mornus entered the Opera House there was no further use for the floats and wagons. A portion of the trimmings was taken off and then the floats rolled up Canal street toward the levee, in the dark, looking anything but pretty. Stripped of gaudy colors, without flaring torches, and only demure drivers in the seats, no one would have supposed that only an hour or two before they were admired by tens of thousands of happy looking folk. Immense crowds went to the levee last night to witness the steamboat fire, and if a man or woman returned with clean shoes they were uncommonly fortunate. Near the Mobile railroad depot, by the track, several boys suddenly disappeared, and it is thought their remains will be dug out of that mud hole during this month. The harbor police, last night, arrested a young man who had gone on a steamboat to look at the Kittie Hegler burning. As his actions were very demonstrative it was deemed the correct thing to lock him up, but it seems that his only offense was a dose or two too many of straight whisky.

The White League Still at Their Old Game. TORREVILLE, TERREBONNE PARISH, LA., February 23, 1876.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN: Having a just appreciation of the value of your journal as a medium of information to the people, I would be glad to hear through the columns of your paper, if I am not an alarmist, neither do I glory in agitating questions which are calculated to stir up the evil dispositions of men; but already been made by Senators and representatives members of the White League party, with their infamous history of bloody Coshattas, and all their other crimes; then in the face of all this, for me to revive a personal letter of threats as the following, it arouses all my animal passions, and I can be dumb no longer.

The following, which is a verbatim of a letter from a gentleman who I received yesterday, explains itself, and I submit it for candid criticism; appealing to the bar of public opinion to decide whether or not, in my case, silence ceased to be a virtue. This reads the letter:

"Singer School Teacher: You are here by Notified to leave Tigerville inside of three weeks or there will be a bone yard procession. Yours truly, 'TIGER INVINCIBLES.' February 14, 1876"

The envelope bore neither postoffice mark nor stamp, although it was received through the postoffice, and was addressed, "Mr. Albert, school teacher, Tigerville."

Now, sir, this specimen of friendly letters is not appreciated at all. What is the reason that I must leave in three weeks? Have I done anything wrong, in Tigerville? Have I incited riots or anything that would disqualify me from human association?

Do they know of anything evil in my past life? I have been a devoted citizen for many years, and all I have done has been to attend to my school duties. I am no carpet bagger (if that is the ground they take), I am a native; and I would be ashamed to set the world to laughing at the fire eaters and White Leaguers of Tigerville have ordered a native, inoffensive and honest citizen, to leave the place because he dared to be a teacher to his own race, which has been that great grand down for centuries by a damnable slavery and proserption.

The representatives of these Lost Ditchers are crying, "Concession! Have no more dealing with carpet-baggers," etc. But I say in the language of a great man, "I am a friend to whoever will be my friend, but a bitter enemy to whoever will be my enemy." What they want me to concede more, when they claim the privilege to threaten and take my life as a natural prerogative. Are they my friends who try out on me the same old story, which has been in the world as long as the "OH, immortal God! where in the world are we!" Are we in five America?

I am no politician, no factionist, but an honest Republican, who has never held a commission, nor ever sought for an office in my life. All I do is to try to elevate my people and teach them what I know to be right.

Hoping the above will find space in your journal, I remain, yours for the right, A. P. ALBERT, Teacher of Tigerville, Louisiana.
