A VINDICATION.

GOVERNOR WELLS AND THE RETURNING BOARD.

CONGRESSMAN FRYE'S REMARKS.

In the House of Representatives on the twenty-seventh of December, Congressman Banning, of Ohio, made a fierce and malignant attack upon the character of Governor Wells and his colleagues of the Returning Board.

Mr. Frye, of Maine, replied as follows: Mr. Frye—The fact that a great many men in this country are taking much as the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Banning) talks about war, and yet that gold stands today at 108 and 109, and not at 120—is not a very good sign. It is because Tilden is to be inaugurated.

Mr. Frye—Shows clearly to my mind that the people the gentleman is talking about do not take any stock in this Democratic party of war. They believe there is to be no war. They are not easily frightened by gentlemen like the gentleman from Ohio, who talk about the people coming to the aid of the government.

Mr. Frye—Not by Sheridan at all, but by gentlemen on this floor, in relation to the order of the government. I found that, and I quote from our report:

"Governor Wells, the president, had been a large and wealthy planter before the war; had remained loyal through the struggle; had remained to the flag of his country when driven to the swamps and hunted by dogs. Such a record entitles him to our warmest sympathy and respect."

Mr. Frye—Not by Sheridan at all, but by gentlemen on this floor, in relation to the order of the government. I found that, and I quote from our report:

Democrats and never would they be; that they were conservatives.

Now, as I have said, Governor Wells was an old Whig in the State of Louisiana, and when he was elected Governor in 1868, he owned two great plantations; he owned 200 slaves. He had been well received in the best society in the State, and around him he had gathered a large circle of friends. He had been on most intimate terms with leading men and had been received on equal terms into the best families in Louisiana.

He was welcomed as the Conservative Governor of Louisiana, and strove to bring healing into the affairs of the State by treating men who had been in the rebellion as he treated his own men.

Now, being a Whig when secession was started, Governor Wells began at once to speak against it, and, being a man of courage, he did not hide his light under any bush. He spoke openly and spoke boldly; he spoke everywhere as freely as the distinguished Vice President of the Southern Confederacy spoke down in the State of Louisiana. He spoke to the Union men, and he spoke to the secessionists, and he spoke to the people of the State.

When he was a witness before our committee, he was asked to name the names of the 150 leading rebels present. Three or four of them were well known murderers; everybody knew them to be murderers.

One of them, a man of the name of Wells, he was asked to name the names of the 150 leading rebels present. Three or four of them were well known murderers; everybody knew them to be murderers.

EMPHATIC VIEWS OF A TILDEN ELECTOR

The following letter, a part of the political diary of the campaign of 1868, from the pen of a late Tilden elector in this State, has been generally inquired for of late, and is reproduced to satisfy the demand.

St. MARTINVILLE, November 30, 1868.

Fellow-Democrats of Louisiana: To most of you I am a stranger, and I regret it. Were I known to you, I could hope to command your attention, for you would be convinced that I am no political pretender, and that, as I have lived, I am determined to die without being under obligations to the people or to the State.

main was purchased by the leaders of political parties in the names of 1000 or 1500 persons, a trifling tax was levied on the proceeds, and by that means the Government was enabled to pay the interest on the bonds of 1868.

This is not all. If we grant to the negroes the qualified or unqualified suffrage, we renounce and abdicate our political rights; we desert the bold and unconquerable Democrats of the North, who, after our fall and desertion, would vainly seek to distinguish between us and the Southern Radical.

The Latest Phase of the Situation.

The Washington dispatch which we printed yesterday shows that political sentiment is settling back into the condition which it followed the meeting of the Electoral College on the sixth of December.

It has already been published through the columns of the Republican, and has been infested with a class of men who were parasites of the worst character, and whose sole aim seemed to be to overawe defenseless citizens, and especially to take delight in making colored citizens targets for pistol practice.

It was not until a short time ago that one Jim Horton and several comrades invaded our city and inaugurated a perfect reign of terror, by shooting at citizens with pistols and rifles, insulting ladies and making it dangerous to walk the streets.

At that time they seriously wounded a colored man and then disappeared. White and Black.

It is easy to abuse the carrier-bag men, and to make them the scape-goats for many evils of which they were the consequence. Thus the carrier-bag men, who are the carriers of the mail, are often the scape-goats for many evils of which they were the consequence.
