Meta Ferguson Thinks She Has Lived

WITH JOHN M. LONG ENOUGH

She Says He is a Nuisance to Her and Wishes Him Kept Away From Her Grocery Store.

Meta Ferguson has filed a bill of complaint with the clerk of the circuit court against her husband, John M. Ferguson, asking that her marriage with the defendant be dissolved. The bill states that the parties were married January 2, 1917, in county Atrium, Ireland, and that they lived together until December 25, 1921. It is also charged in the complaint that the defendant about the year 1887 began a course of cruel and inhuman treatment toward his wife and that he frequently became intoxicated. The habit of drinking has grown upon him so that during the past year he has been much of the time under the influence of intoxicating liquors. When he is drunk he is violent and abusive in his manner and language. He is subject to fits of ill temper and when in anger he has threatened to kill his wife. The bill also relates that on July 1 last the defendant while under the influence of liquor went to the grocery store kept by his wife on South Division street and, becoming enraged at her, pushed her against the counter with great violence. Since their marriage Ferguson has contributed very little toward the support of his family, his wife having been left to take care of herself and family. Although an able-bodied man he refused to work. He has a habit of going into his wife's store and helping himself to her goods and money without her consent and uses indecent language in the presence of her customers. The complainant asks that her husband be restrained from interfering with her business or that he be kept away from her store. The defendant in his answer, claiming a thirty days' sentence in the county jail for drunkenness.

MRS. McEWEN'S HUSBAND

Married Life Has Become Unpleasant After Nineteen Years.

After having been married nineteen years Jennie A. McEwen of this city filed a bill in the circuit court for a divorce from her husband James W. McEwen. She charges her husband with extreme cruelty and non-support. The bill of complaint states that the defendant is a blacksmith earning from $10 to $24 per week but for the last three years his wife has been obliged to depend almost entirely upon her father for the support of herself and child. Since that time the defendant has contributed at no time more than $2 a week and often not more than 50 or 75 cents for their support. The complainant asks for a decree from the court giving her the household furniture and property of the defendant and for such sums of money as shall be deemed necessary for the support of herself and child. She also asked that her husband be restrained from disposing of any of his property and from visiting their residence while the suit for divorce is pending.

Boerma is Cleared.

John Boerma was acquitted of a charge of simple larceny in police court yesterday. He was arrested on complaint of William Young, with whom he was boarding. Young missed some money from his room and had suspected Boerma of being the purloiner, but when the case came to trial the complainant acknowledged that he had been a little too hasty in forming conclusions, and thought there was a serious doubt as to the prisoner's guilt. The court entered the same idea and acquitted Boerma.

Steel's Wife is Repentant.

When the case of the people against George B. Steel was called in police court yesterday the defendant did not appear, but his wife, who had filed a complaint for assault and battery, was there with money enough to pay the costs. She told the judge that she and her husband had satisfactorily settled their troubles out of court and she wished to pay the costs and have the matter no longer prosecuted. Under the circumstances, upon motion of the prosecuting attorney, her wishes were granted.

Mary Schneider Went to Jail.

Mary Schneider, arrested for stealing a sheet, towel, pillowcase and $20 in money from Frank Klump's hotel on South Division street, was tried in Justice Holcomb's court yesterday. She pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing the bedclothing but denied the other accusation. She was acquitted upon the latter charge when the case was tried. She was fined 6 cents and costs, amounting to $12, for stealing the bedding and in default of payment she was committed to the county jail for ten days.

Damages Asked for Ejectment.

George Christian of Kent county has begun a suit in the circuit court in a plea of trespass on the case against Owen E. Locke. The complainant sets forth that he leased a farm in Georgetown township in Ottawa county for a term of five years, and that on January 22 the defendant entered the premises and ejected him after but three years of the lease had expired. He asks for damages resulting from such ejectment to the amount of $1,000.

McPherson Given Thirty Days.

Grant McPherson, the dourly "quilled" person who gave the officers a hard fight while they were arresting him for disorderly conduct Thursday night, was fined $7.50 and costs of $4.51 in police court yesterday. He was committed to jail for thirty days in default of payment.

All scenes have tongues and speak a various language, but of all none speak so charmingly as scenes of happy homes and industry and progress.

The Old Roman Circus.

The department of Greek and Roman antiquities at the British Museum has lately acquired a curious relic of Roman civic life, this being a circus placard found at Porto Portese (Lanuvium). It is a thin oblong slab of stone about three feet long, the upper corners of which are pierced with holes for cords to pass through, so that it might be hung outside the theater and warn those who came late that there was no room for them within the building. This appears by the inscription in Latin: "Circus full! Immense applause! Door shut!" From the same city the department has obtained two acceptable life size marble busts, the one being a portrait bust of Titus, interesting because of its intense character and verisimilitude and the comparative rareness of such busts of the emperor; the other is the likeness of a Roman gentleman, as yet, though full of expression, unidentified. These works are the gift of Lord Savile, and were discovered during his excavations at Porto Portese.—Baltimore American.

Swordfishing.

Swordfishing is at once exciting, perilous and remunerative. Last year swordfish sold as high as eleven cents a pound in this port, and a single fish will often weigh 500 or even 1,000 pounds. The method of getting the fish affords an opportunity for great sport. Like the shark, the swordfish can be seen for a considerable distance by his black fin, which protrudes above the surface of the water as he swims. But unlike the shark, the swordfish moves steadily with the upper tip of his tail also out of the water, as rigid and steady as the fin itself. Swordfish also generally go in shoals.

The swordfish is captured by means of a long spear or harpoon.

To the shank of this spear is attached a stout line about 200 feet long, and to the end of the line is made fast a stout water tight cask. Each harpoon is good for one swordfish, and a schooner usually carries a considerable number of them.—Portland (Me.) Press.

Months "Injun."

About six months ago an Indian named O-we-o, of the Umattilla reservation in Oregon, was killed by a railroad train. Some time previous to his death he had borrowed twenty dollars from a bank in Pendleton, giving his note secured by the name of another Indian. She was O-we-o's wife, Lucy, skinned dead sheep found on the ranges during the winter and spring and huddled her in other ways until she had scraped together about twenty-five dollars. Last week she went to the bank and paid her husband's note, and also insisted on paying the interest to the astonished cashier. The bank refused to accept the interest.—Detroit Free Press.

Black Hosiery.

The demand for black hosiery that has been so great for several years continues unabated, and although this year the sale of colored goods has somewhat increased, still the leading houses report that black constitutes 75 per cent. of all sold. Even in the finest grades of fancy hosiery, in silk and lisle, the use of colors is in the embroidery or stripes or lace effects, the stocking being still in black.—Dry Goods Economist.

A Pleading Coincidence.

During the Fourth of July celebration at the Washington monument in Washington, just as the speaking began a beautiful rainbow formed apparently just above the apex of the monument. It soon disappeared, and reappeared just as the ceremonies ended.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Considerable astonishment was recently excited in a zone of Sweden and Russia, comprising the towns of Stockholm, Elfsborg, Pinnak, Korvno and St. Petersburg, by the appearance in the air and the eventual deposit on the ground of large clouds of a powder of peculiar appearance.

COUNTY'S OLD FURNITURE

It Will Be Sold Cheap to Some County Needing an Outfit or to Anyone Who Wants It.

Kent county is not exactly in the furniture business, but it has a large quantity of good office furniture and record files, pigeon holes, etc., for sale. If some of the counties in Michigan are needing an outfit for their county office, they will find this an excellent opportunity to secure everything desired, and at little cost; though the old furniture is massive and substantial it was hardly modern enough to grace the offices in the handsome new court house.

The Proposed Pavilion.

Upon a broad cleared space adjoining the wooded tract and situated at an elevation of twenty feet above the stream the company will erect a simple pavilion overlooking the river. It will be in modern style of architecture and provided with every facility of a first-class hotel for the comfort and convenience of guests. Upon the river bank an old-fashioned Mississippi river landing will be built, leading by an ample walk to the pavilion. The new grounds comprise in all about twenty-five acres.

A Paradise for Sportsmen.

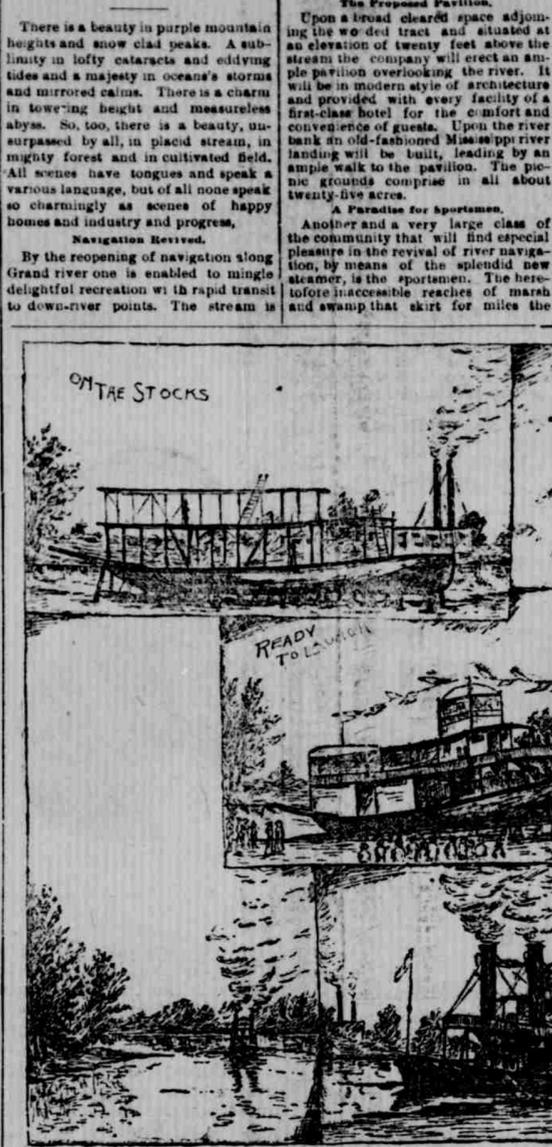

Another and a very large class of the community that will find special pleasure in the revival of river navigation, by means of the splendid new steamer, is the sportsman. The heretofore inaccessible reaches of marsh and swamp that skirt for miles the mouth of Grand river have long been noted for its picturesque environment, and now with the superb new steamer Valley City making daily trips to Lake Michigan and return its beauties are easily accessible. For residents of western Michigan the route has an especial charm. In the early days the river was the great highway by which the pioneers enjoyed communication with the outside world. It brought and took their stores of goods and merchandise and was the source of daily news. Along its banks the settlements first sprang up and industries began to thrive. The principal events of early days were carried along its course. Among the recollections of those primitive times none are more fraught with pleasure than those of river journeys and riverside events.

Today the river has lost, somewhat, its commercial value through railway building and much of the industry which thrived along its banks and on its waters has been suspended. But what has been lost to commerce has been gained in natural beauty. The sights of timber rafts and mills and lumber are not there, but surviving sloping banks, receding fields and stately forests satisfy the eye. Time has effected the decay of many of the old-time mills and works along the stream and left picturesque ruins mantled with moss and foliage instead.

A Pleasure for the Pioneer.

For the pioneer of the early days, who had no other pleasure, a boat trip along the river for twenty or thirty years, a ride along its course today is an experience of especial delight and satisfaction. Through the old familiar scenes no longer greet his eye, yet his memory can supply the missing links of olden times and weave about each bend and bar and snag infested bank some pleasing recollection. The games and races of the early days are gone forever, and the adventures incident to them can not be revived, but the surviving pioneer, his mind refreshed by revisiting the old time landmarks, recalls the gay and animated life of by-gone days with all its original charms.

The Young Ones Are In It, Too.

To the rising generation the river is the key to most of the activities and interests which absorbed the attention of the generative gone before. Though unfamiliar with the incidents which give it affectionate regard in the minds of the older members of the community, yet there is an absorbing interest in it. To no class is a journey down the river of greater interest than the art student and lover of nature. The changing panoramas of forest, field and stream which greets the beholder is unsurpassed for modest loveliness. Quiet homes, decaying mills, majestic forests and sunlit bay are there as rare as any gems of scenery that earth contains. Old hills, the relics of early river navigation, are lodged along the banks. Groups of happy children salute the passing steamer, while on the undulating landscape studies in still life abound.

For Excursionists and Sightseers or those desiring a quiet outing of a day, the new river boat affords the means of realizing pleasure. For picnic parties the boat is especially adapted. Its broad decks above and below afford ample opportunities for dancing, games and various sports. Its upper deck, forward of the cabin, is a delightful point of outlook from which the changing part of the above furniture should communicate with Superior John Benjamin, chairman committee on public buildings, or see him at Benjamin Bros. & Co.'s store, 84 Monroe street.
