

THURLBY, JACKSON & CALKINS.

One of the Leading Machine Shops of Michigan.

Among the important institutions of Traverse City some occupy a more conspicuous position than that of the above named firm. They are manufacturers of many useful specialties, which are indispensable in the manufacture of lumber and lumber products.

Hannah, Lay & Co.'s Flour Mill.

resents an investment of $20,000. The value of their annual product varies from $30,000 to $50,000. Their specialties are to be found in every first-class saw mill north of Grand Rapids. They have facilities for manufacturing all kinds of high grade machinery from the sand to the lathe.

tourists throughout the region, and "Morgan's map" are always regarded as the tourist's first choice.

D. J. Morgan, the proprietor, is a gentleman of culture and refinement. He is a man of wealth and business sagacity. His name is associated with many of the leading industries of the region.

Park Place Hotel.

There is probably not a better known or more popular caravansary in the state of Michigan, alike for the tourist and commercial man, than that of Park Place hotel, Traverse City. The institution is owned and controlled by the well known firm of Hannah, Lay & Co.

DOMESTIC in social and business circles. He has made the subject of hotel-keeping a special and careful study for many years.

Fulgham and Roberts.

There are innumerable first-class saw mill plants in northern Michigan, which are at once the wonder and amazement of the uninitiated.

The plant of the firm is situated upon Boardman river and lake, and is provided with the most modern and necessary accessories incident to the business.

The manufacturing department is devoted to the production of chairs and chair stock. The plant is located upon Eighth street and the Chicago & West Michigan railway.

Mr. L. Roberts of the firm is an attorney by profession, and enjoys the distinction of being rated as one of the bright lights of the legal profession in northern Michigan.

invest in its real estate, and one of the first to appreciate the natural resources and future possibilities of the region.

From that day to this Mr. Harsha has carefully studied the rise and progress of Northern Michigan, and has made a particular subject of the region of Grand Traverse and adjacent counties.

Wilhelm, Bartak & Co.

Traverse City his permanent home, taking up his residence and opening an office at that time. At present he occupies spacious offices in the First National bank block, directly over the bank.

To those desiring comprehensive and accurate knowledge of real estate conditions and values in the Traverse region, a better authority than Mr. Harsha could not be recommended.

Among the flourishing institutions of the Traverse Region none occupy a more conspicuous position or are more intimately connected with the vital industries of northern Michigan than the First National Bank of Traverse City.

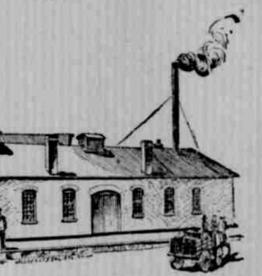

Grand Rapids & Indiana and Manistee & North Eastern railways, and enjoys, in addition, about an acre of stock ground for heavy draft lake vessels upon the premises.

The mechanical department is operated in the rear future. It is proposed to organize as a stock company. The plant of the institution consists of a central mill structure 17x173 in dimensions together with store houses, and other accessories. The office building is a structure 20x25 feet ground dimensions. The kilns of the institution have a capacity of 20,000 feet.

The business of the firm consists of manufacturing lumber of all grades, shingles and lath. They also handle sash, doors and blinds, a specialty of the firm, and one which has given it a wide reputation, is the manufacture of mattress frame stock.

The mechanical department is operated by a steam engine of 125 horse power capacity. The plant occupies twelve acres. The manufacture of tanks and interior furnishings are specialties upon which the firm has long enjoyed an enviable reputation.

"Our latch string hangs out" is the assuring welcome which adorns the stationery and advertising matter of the well known real estate dealer, E. W. Hastings. When he is at home in his place of business, Mr. Hastings occupies a delightful series of offices in the Masonic block.

Caldwell & Loudon.

the burglar proof safes, twenty-five individual deposits, boxes for the convenience of the patrons of the bank.

Its first cashier, C. A. Hammond, is a gentleman well known in this region and esteemed for his many excellent qualities of mind and heart.

Elk Rapids Iron Company's Plant.

John T. Beadle, its proprietor, has been a resident of Traverse City for twenty-five years. He is engaged in the manufacture and sale of harness and saddlery, and wholesale trunks, traveling bags, gloves, mittens and all sundries of the trade.

The subject of real estate values in and about Traverse City has been made the subject of special study by many dealers and manufacturers in the Traverse region.

Occupying a central position in the manufacturing district of the city are the extensive saw mills and industries of J. E. Greidick's manufacturing institution. The position of the plant, as well as its capacity are such as to facilitate the handling of an immense business.

collections, does conveyancing and makes a specialty of securing acres for resort locations. In connection with the latter business he makes contracts for buildings and improvements upon resorts and undertakes the general supervision and management.

Its first cashier, C. A. Hammond, is a gentleman well known in this region and esteemed for his many excellent qualities of mind and heart. After three years' connection with the bank he removed to Colorado.

ance with its real estate locations and values. He has made a special study of the farming industry. Within the city he has handled a large amount of business and residence property.

Ray City is casting about for better protection.

WONDER OF THE IRON AGE

Elk Rapids Iron Company, the Economic Marvel of the Iron Trade.

UNIQUE INSTITUTION IN MANUFACTURING

It Utilizes Every Atom of Raw Material So Closely That the Waste Product, in the Form of a Gas, Is No Greater in Bulk Than the Volume of Smoke From a Cigar.

Elk Rapids, former county seat of Antrim county, is a picturesque village of 1,600 inhabitants, situated upon Grand Traverse bay, at the mouth of Elk river, where an immense plant was built, which has since been in operation.

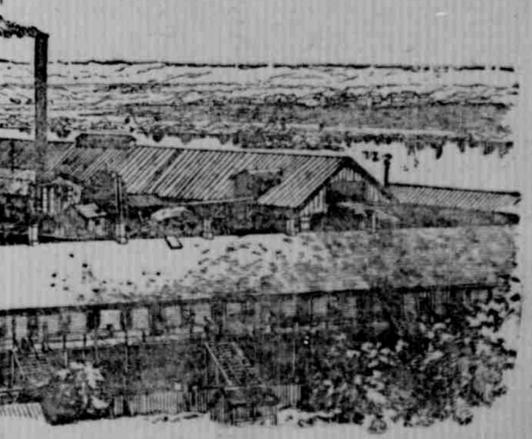

Hon. Henry N. Noble, Elk Rapids.

factory of manufacturing pine lumber. This firm, which was one of Michigan's greatest industrial partnerships, consisted of Henry H. Noble, business manager, and Wert W. Dexter of Chicago, attorney for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway.

Elk Rapids Iron Company's Shipping.

ferred, and by him that all enterprises were directed. During this time the company made all of its great industrial moves which have placed its name and the name of Elk Rapids in the forefront of American manufacturing activity.

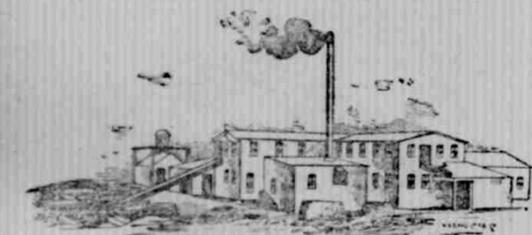

of this furnace that the Elk Rapids iron company's standard pig iron has always brought 50 cents per ton above the market. The charcoal used in this furnace is two pounds heavier to the bushel than that produced at any other furnace in America.

Beitner's Plant.

Morgan's Livery Stable. In a resort region like that of Traverse City where the objective points of all tourists are remote from industrial centers, a first consideration is a convenient way to reach these scenes of inactivity.

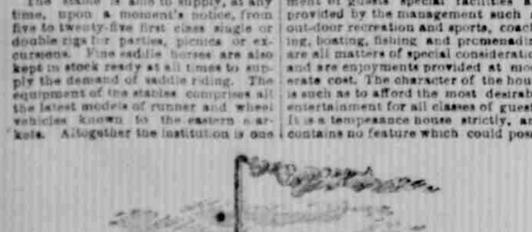

dust and attendant annoyances. Its ground dimensions are 500 feet in length by 100 feet in width, five stories in height. The halls throughout the structure are broad and lofty, elegantly appointed, and so constructed as to afford innumerable delightful and cozy retreats.

Fulgham & Robert's Plant.

its kind and fitted with every convenience and accessory which subserves cleanliness and healthfulness. Accommodations are provided for 115 horses which are kept in the stable the year round, and extra provision is made for seventy-five more.

of the hotel, matters always of first importance, are equal to any first class metropolitan institution. Indeed it were doubtful if the cuisine of the establishment were equaled by any institution outside of the leading commercial centers.

The Carter Mill.

of the leading stables of the state, if not the west. The location of the stable, as well as the design of its owner, are such as to afford convenient services for tourists stopping at Park Place hotel and independent resorts.

ly prove disagreeable to persons of the most exquisite tastes and refinement. The present management of the institution is in the capable hands of W. O. Holden, one of the best known and most popular hotel managers in the northwestern part of Michigan.