Business in Real Estate Circles is Rather Quiet

FIVE NEW PLATS RECORDED

Inaugural Public Sale at the Real Estate Exchange Yesterday—Sales of the Week

A new and interesting feature in the Real Estate exchange was developed within the past week. It was the inaugural of a public sale of property which is to be continued from time to time in the exchange headquarters on the seventh floor of the Michigan Trust building.

needed and should be procured at once. No other remedy can take its place of do its work.

If Greenly would put down the price of horses low enough; if Bokrup, Baker & Co. would chip in a landau and blanket or two; and Berry-Mills would furnish necessary ornamental clothing for a driver; then about all the clerks in our office would have reasons to come from their homes to work and return, as their wives would probably come down with them. At least, this is about the kind of argument that Kate Field is using in the papers with regard to filling up the Fair—and I don't mind giving you a pointer—she is getting paid a big price for the space she is filling with stuff of this kind in a leading Chicago journal.

She thinks that, if the railroads would go into an insolvency as far as their passenger business is concerned, it would help the Fair, but she has not stated how the employees of the railroads would get on the Fair when the time would be carried on at such rates that there would be no salaries—and there are about a million of these people working for railroads, and immediately dependent upon them—according to the census—three to five millions others, and dependent upon these stores such as Spring's, Voigt, Herbolzheimer & Co., and Mohl's cigar stand.

It takes to pay the salaries of the railroad employees four hundred and fifty millions of dollars every year. We don't think it will help the fair to ruin the railroads any more than the failure of the banks are helping money affairs. To be prosperous, all of us; we must all be prosperous. The Fair is all right—the time is coming for crowds to take holidays, and already crowds are on their way. If it has been merely a matter of railway fare, how is it that the Chicago people have not made their visit yet? Their fare is 10 cents the round trip and never will be lower—yet few citizens of that big town have helped than outsiders. The Fair is all right. Don't waste any time on the protestations of these pessimists, but get your little round trip ticket and get over there in good shape on the White City Flyer, which leaves via the West Michigan at 7:15 every morning and stops at the Midway Place.

The fair is finished, an nothing in the world to wait for now. So go, go now! unless you prefer hotter days, scorched faces and hands and feet. The tracks on which the exhibits were carried in were taken up yesterday, and about all the foreign displays of magnitude have been formally opened. One-sixth of the time has passed. The days of execution are near at hand, and many of you are going to miss it, as sure as gun's iron, if you don't go now. You don't need clothes; at least, you don't need new clothes, for no one will see you, nor know what you wear, any more than you know how one pin out of hundreds of thousands you have used during your life time is different from another. Of course you can't all go now; but that is the reason why all who can should go, for you can't all go after a while. "Some must wait while others play." Thus wags the world away. We are interested in a lot of you whom we hope read these articles. Those of you who come late to the theater. Those who, when you go anywhere, fess down lions about a half minute before the train starts. Those who get to church about 11 o'clock. Those who have breakfast ready so late that the children burn their mouths in order to get to school before the bell rings. There is a big lot of you in Grand Rapids, and you are going to be straggling into the fair about the last week of the last month; and if the Philadelphia Centennial is any criterion, there will be half million on the grounds each day, and every one of you will think you are on the outside of the crowd that will be thickest around the most interesting of the subjects. Go now! Get a round trip ticket, get up early in the morning, any morning—Sunday morning if you prefer—take the White City Flyer, leaving 7:15 a. m., via Chicago & West Michigan, and you'll get there right at the front gate at noon, which will be just as good as the whole day—so far as you can stand the strain is concerned; just like a good big slice of pie is, as compared with acres of pie—it's all you can take in. But get there—that's the important thing. You're being very late, so that you don't take good advice will avail you nothing—you'll have the regret, but tonight else. Governor DeWeyer, Gen'l Pass Agt.
