PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

TERMS, $2.00 Per Year.

R. C. DUNN, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
GUY EWING, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Office: First St., East of Court House.

PRINCETON, MINN., DEC. 13, 1894.

ANOKA Union: Before six months have passed there will be thousands in Minneapolis who will wish that William Henry Eustis was mayor.

SENATOR WASHBURN and Capt. VanSant are unfortunate. VanLeuven, of the Duluth Press, is out in their favor. The support of such men as VanLeuven is more to be dreaded than their opposition.

TODD COUNTY Argus: There seems to be considerable opposition to Washburn cropping out in various parts of the State. So far we have heard of no candidate we would rather support than Mr. Washburn. The fact that he is from one of the cities is no argument against him.

DULUTH Commonwealth: Most of the suggestions made of candidates to run against Washburn are no improvement on Washburn himself—and some of the men named would not be as good. What would be the use of displacing him to elect a corporation attorney or a pine land operator in his stead?

SOME cranks are jumping onto Mayor Eustis, of Minneapolis, because he displayed too much zeal in ferreting out the murderers of Catherine Ging. It was one of the most brutal, cold-blooded murder ever perpetrated in the Northwest, and Mayor Eustis was justified in resorting to extreme measures to discover the guilty parties.

As a garbler of extracts from the country press the St. Paul Globe is unrivaled. That delectable sheet, in its futile attempts to manufacture a sentiment against Senator Washburn, resorts to very disreputable tactics. It is as easy for the Globe to pervert as it is for a duck to swim, and the Globe would rather lie than tell the truth any day.

THE State fair managers started in to have the fair for 1894 with the small amount of $222.22 in the treasury as available funds. The fair of 1894 was a good one, everything past off smoothly, the attendance was large and the managers find, for this year, a balance of $2,649.21 to begin operations for the fair of 1895. The fair of 1895 will probably eclipse any fair hitherto held.

REPRESENTATIVE LYNCH, of Wisconsin, has introduced a bill for the relief of those who suffered in the terrible forest fires that swept through Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin last summer and fall. The bill provides that the scorched timber may be cut, heirs may make final proof and those who were actually occupying the lands at time of fire may have two years for final proof. It is a humane measure and it should pass without any opposition.

A PRIMARY election law may be all right in the big cities but it is not needed in the country—Princeton Union.

Come off, dear UNION. We need a primary election law in the big cities, small cities, villages and in the country and no one should know that better than the editor of the UNION—State auditor-elect, R. C. Dunn.—Grove City Times.

We reiterate, an expensive and complicated primary election law is not needed in the country. Probably the present system of selecting candidates for office can be improved upon, especially in the large cities, but the statute books are already cumbered with dead letter laws. It requires a great deal of hard work to get a majority of the voters to the polls once every two years, and certainly it would be no easy matter to induce a small fraction of them to attend three or four primary elections in one summer and fall.

CANNING FACTORY.

Its Advantages Clearly Apparent.
Why not Have One in Princeton?

DIVERSIFIED INDUSTRIES

Are Needed to Insure Success and Develop the Full Wealth of the Farming Lands.

The latest, and what appears to be the most feasible industry brought to the notice of our business men for some time, is the proposition for a practical and responsible gentleman, W. H. Field, of Auburn, Maine. The gentleman has made the subject of canning corn, tomatoes, and other like things, a study, understands the business to its smallest detail, and is fully conversant with all the requirements conducive to a successful operation of a canning factory. The expense of putting up a factory, getting in the necessary machinery with everything in complete readiness for operation for canning corn, would approximate $4,000. The money could be easily raised by selling stock in hundred dollar shares to farmers throughout the country. There is no trouble in selling stock when the purchaser can see a profitable return. Let us look at that part of the matter briefly. It requires no expert to determine profits accruing from such an investment, as the one herein noted. The cans cost about one cent and eight mills each; the corn a slight fraction over two cents per can; the labor, labels, interest on money invested, everything all told, bring the total cost of the can ready for the market up to six and a quarter cents, or seventy-five cents per dozen. Every consumer is conversant with what good corn always brings—it always finds a ready sale, never a drug on the market and never reaches too low a figure for a fair margin for the stock-holder. Now as to the farmer; the usual price paid for sweet corn is two cents per pound for sheared corn. In ordinary years, with an average yield, this brings good returns per acre. Also coming on early in August, it furnishes a good financial income at a time, when there is nothing else that a farmer can sell. By planting both the early and late varieties of corn, the time is extended over one-half the summer and a greater part of the fall. Mr. Field's proposition is to come here, superintend the building of the cannery, take shares of stock, fully identify himself with the work, and see that it is a paying institution. Preliminary steps should be taken without delay. The opportunity is a golden one. Other places are already looking after the same thing. Every industry adds to the wealth of the village and the welfare of its citizens and to the interest of the farmers tributary to this market. Think and talk the matter over, call a meeting, and capture a paying industry before some other place gets it.

At a recent meeting of the Boys High School literary society the following resolution was adopted: Inasmuch as our friend and fellow student, Llew S. Soule, has been dangerously ill and seems now in a fair way to recovery; be it Resolved, That we have sympathized with our brother in his brave battle for life and now congratulate him upon his brightening prospects for a complete recovery and that we may soon be gladdened by seeing him in his accustomed place in the high school.

It has been noted by some of our merchants that small articles, and some not so small, have mysteriously disappeared from their places, on the tables or counters. This pilfering has got to be a nuisance, and those who are guilty of such contemptible thieving will sooner or later get into trouble. The methods that one or two of the merchants intend to follow hereafter, on busy days, will be a surprise to the pilferers.

Amos Chadbourne sold his house and lots a short time since to Ed. Evans. Friday, the family took their departure for Minneapolis where they will make their home. They are a genial couple, and have a large circle of friends in Princeton who regret their change of residence. The latch string hangs out to such people and should they ever deem it expedient to return, they will meet a cordial welcome.

See L. W. Pierson's ad. in another column. Mr. Pierson has a large and well assorted stock of all kinds of goods, in his spacious store. His Christmas stock is a good one, all new and fresh. He also makes a specialty of children's underwear, and his stock of cloaks is complete. All going at hard times prices. Be sure and visit L. W. Pierson's store when in town.

The merchants of the village are talking of closing their stores at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, after the holidays, except Saturday evenings. It is a good and proper move, and ought not to end in talk. Saturday evenings, there are many people so situated that it is inconvenient for them to get in, in time to do their trading before eight o'clock.

The Hutchinson Family, "Tribe of Asa" Young Folks Concert company, will give an entertainment at Jesmer's Hall, on Thursday evening, Dec. 20th. All who delight in hearing the good old songs rendered by those who know how to sing them should not fail to hear the Hutchinson Family. On the program are such songs as "There's No Time Like the Old Time," "Good Old Days of Yore," and the "The Old Granite State." Don't miss this entertainment.

Fred Newton has made arrangements to attend solely to the herding of cattle next season. About eighty head have been placed with him for next spring. He can handle as many more with his helpers, and do the same in a careful way. Those who have cattle to herd should see him and make arrangements to have your cows kindly looked after.

Cattle buyers who frequent this part of the State, in quest of stock, report a better grade of cattle than in other localities where they purchase. This region has furnished a large number of good cattle for shipment this fall, yet there are many cattle remaining in the hands of the farmers, awaiting an increase in price over the present values.

O. J. McCarriel is another carpenter who has at odd times, when not at work elsewhere, worked away at a house for himself and family until he has completed the same. It is a good two-story residence with an L. part, the whole finished in hard wood, making it one of the best houses in that part of the village.

A surprise party was held, Friday evening, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Mark, in honor of Mrs. R. A. Cohen, of Duluth, sister of Mrs. A. Mark, of this place. About twenty-five couples gathered and had a very pleasant evening. The mandolin club was present and furnished some excellent music.

Miss Ella Patterson, of the Minneapolis High School, has been selected as one of the judges of the District Declamatory contest. Miss Patterson will be remembered by her many friends here as the genial lady who conducted the summer school in this place two years ago.

Sam Carew who is lumbering up on Burnt Land, was down from his camps, Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Carew has about 700,000 feet on the skids. The weather conditions are unfavorable, but the work still goes on. Snow is needed to make things lively in the woods.

Bertha Slayback, who broke her arm a few weeks since, is well again. It was a serious fracture of the humerus bone, and was difficult to get to stay in position. Through the careful handling of the fracture, the arm is in its normal place, all right and sound.

Are you going to the Dorcas Ladies Fair and Festival next Tuesday afternoon and evening, at the G. A. R. Hall? Come and have a good supper and see the many useful and beautiful articles for sale so cheap you cannot and will not leave without buying.
