There were two methods by which the amount could have been raised. First by direct tax. Each payer being called upon to pay $5 and 2,000 rate payers would have paid $10,000. The second was to pay the tax indirectly, through the medium of PRINCETON -:- LODGE dram seller tax gatherers. These collected $10,000 from the tax payers, (paupers and spendthrifts pay no taxes) and then give it back to the city treasury. They collected $10,000 from the tax payers, (paupers and spendthrifts pay no taxes) and then give it back to the city treasury. They then called from rate payers their living and profits for the year, an average of $2,500 for each dram seller. The whole amount gathered by them from the rate payers was $260,000 and this was all taken from the pockets of the people.
