

Prescription Security....

If you knew all the facts about our prescription department your prescriptions would come here, even if our prices were high—which they never are.

If you knew the measures we take to insure the purity and freshness of our drugs, if you were familiar with the safeguards we throw about the compounding, and various other methods peculiar to this store, you could not help having entire confidence in the accuracy of any prescription we put up.

To have such service—to feel safe—is worth something and it costs nothing extra.

S. E. Atkins, land clerk in the State auditor's office, came up Monday and conducted the sale of State land Tuesday. He always feels like he was coming home when he makes a trip to Princeton, for he was born in the old Ben Whitney house in Princeton forty-one years ago.

The Galloway cattle which Emmet Mark has had on the Rusch ranch the past summer were brought down this week and they look fine, the ranch having proved a great place for them. The Galloways are just the kind of cattle for that country as they are good rustlers.

The December sale of the E. Mark Live Stock Co. will be held on Saturday the fifth, and it is going to be a big sale, from all accounts. You had better make arrangements to be in town on that day and take in the sale as well as do your shopping. The merchants will be very glad to see you also.

We are going into winter quarters with most of the sidewalks of the town in poor condition, very few having been properly repaired the past summer and fall. The council has made very little progress in the matter and it will devolve on another council to take up the matter, and let us hope it will not follow in the footsteps of the councils that have gone before. Let's wake up and shine up. Nature has done a whole lot for the town, much more in fact than the people have ever done for Princeton in the way of beautifying and improving the place.

The outlook for entertainments at the opera house the coming winter are not the best. Last winter the people of Princeton enjoyed a series of entertainments given under the auspices of a lyceum bureau. Rev. Gratz made the contract and the entertainments were given of course for the benefit of the M. E. church, which, however, did not make very much from them, but those who like entertainments of this character had the pleasure of attending them, some of which were very good. Mr. Gratz did not like to take up the matter again this winter as he said that he was afraid that some people might think that he was asking too much of the people of Princeton, as some looked upon the matter as a sort of begging affair. Princeton is in need of some good high-class shows and entertainments. We have a good opera house for them and it would seem that with our short distance from the cities that we might be able to secure more of these entertainments and shows.

Did you get a turkey at the raffle? Eat moderately and long and you will be happy.

Company G has received fifty-five Krag-Jorgenson guns which they will use in the future in place of the old Springfield guns. The new guns make a fine equipment of arms for the company and the boys are feeling very proud of them.

County Treasurer Burrell and County Auditor Whitney were kept pretty busy Tuesday at the land sale. Mr. Whitney acted as clerk at the sale and when it came to issuing the certificates he was a very busy man for some time. County Auditor Tompkins of Redwood county who was at the sale, assisted Mr. Whitney at the desk during a part of the afternoon. Mr. Burrell was doing a land office business taking in the money and making out the receipts for the payments. He took in about $15,000 from the parties who bought land.

There was a happy crowd of young people at the depot last night to meet the Princeton boys and girls who are attending schools and colleges in the twin cities and who came home to spend Thanksgiving and remain over Sunday with their folks. The glad hand was passed around in a hearty manner and it made one feel young again to see them greet one another. Those who came home were the Misses Avis Eaton and Lela Spaulding, Adon Whitney, Roy Farnham, Fred Burrell, Max Cordiner, Gordon Young, Ralph Pierson and Serenus Skahen.

The heating plant at the high school has gone the way of most all the heating plants that have been placed in the buildings of Princeton and is deficient in radiating service. In the two north rooms in the high school building there is not as much radiating service as there is in the rooms on the south side of the building where there is the sunlight most of the day to assist in heating the rooms. There is a third less radiation in the north rooms than there is in the south rooms, and the janitor will not be able to get the temperature in the north rooms up to 60 in real cold weather unless there is more radiation placed in the rooms. The boiler is plenty large enough, but the architect has made the same mistake that so many of them make, by pinching on the heating plant somewhere. It seems very strange indeed that an architect is not able to properly estimate and figure out the amount of radiating surface necessary to heat a certain room in a building. Common sense alone ought to be sufficient to enable a person to realize the importance of providing for more heat in a north than in a south room. The school board is wrestling with the problem.
