"One of the errors of the Minnesota farmer is in not raising more live stock. A number of years ago corn brought a price of 10 cents and 12 cents a bushel. Now it is bringing 60 cents. It takes about 100 bushels of corn to raise a 3-year-old steer which will bring $105. The profit on this steer is $45, and after $20 is added for the fertilizing value of the manure the steer will furnish it is easily seen that this is a profitable business."—James J. Hill.

Harry C. Hope, superintendent of telegraph and signals of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha road, and to whom is said to be due the wonderful fact that in ten years no one has been killed by accident on his line, was found dead in bed in one of the rooms of the Minnesota club, St. Paul, at 8:45 o'clock Friday evening. Mr. Hope was not only considered one of the most skillful railroad men in his line but he won the esteem of his contemporaries. He was one of the most likable officials in St. Paul, and had hosts of friends.

Frank Dunn, aged 68 years, the oldest engineer pulling a throttle on the Milwaukee railroad, was instantly killed on Thursday morning at 6:15, when the fast mail left the track at Kellogg. James Sperbeck, the fireman, was seriously injured, but it is thought that he will recover. The fast mail does not stop at Kellogg and Engineer Dunn was coming toward Minneapolis at close to 40 miles an hour when his train struck a broken rail as he was entering the village. The big locomotive turned turtle. Dunn remained at his throttle and was crushed to death. He entered the service of the Milwaukee road in 1864.

Well Kept Hands and Nails.

Well-cared-for hands are marks of good breeding—of refined mind and that cleanliness which is akin to godliness. As far as the shape of your hands is concerned nature is responsible, but for their culture the owner alone can be held accountable. People of refinement and good breeding also agree that for a table beverage golden grain belt beer is without an equal. It is brewed from the best of nature's products and its daily use will remove indigestion, strengthen the weak and overworked. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Sjoblom Bros., Princeton.
