His Probable Fate.

"Waal, some ways I'd like to an' some ways I guess I wouldn't. Ye see, if I was to sign for that 'ere cyclopedee in forty-seven parts, includin' the index an' appendicitis, I'm sarter 'fraid I'd hav to work so hard to pay fer it thet I'd be too tired to enjoy readin' it; while if I read it at my leisure, as I'd ort to, in order to git the good of it, I wouldn't hev time to earn the price. So, all things considered, I guess I'll hev to deny myself the privilege, as it were. Guess I'll take real comfort and order another case of golden grain belt beers." TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The scribe has turned granger this week and completely neglected the Union.

Some of our prowlers must look out and keep clear of the night watch, who is on regular duty now.

The little 16-months-old child of Wm. Applegate died on Tuesday of pneumonia and was buried yesterday afternoon.

Frank Campbell has sold his residence to J. L. Brady and contemplates moving to California for the benefit of his health.

There are some fine pictures on the school house walls, which is at it should be. Make the school room attractive and pleasant.

The children's society, organized three months ago, has 180 members and gives some fine, entertaining programs every Tuesday night.

What has become of the brass band? An open-air exhibition of their musical skill would be acceptable to the people these fine evenings. Come out, boys.

Spencer Brook Correspondence.—Robert, that cyclone cellar of yours may come in handy before long. If this dry, hot weather continues something will get upset.

Bridgman Correspondence.—The town is full of river drivers, and we think some of them might put their vocal organs to better use than uttering such hideous yells.

Mrs. C. S. Neumann, nee Neely, came over from Monticello on Saturday on a visit to her parents. Jennie is as charming as ever and carries a sweet little baby in her arms.

The village council has wisely determined to purchase additional protection against fire in the shape of the most improved Champion fire extinguisher manufactured. It will be money well invested.

One of the leading social events of the season took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ross, when their daughter, Maria, was married to F. C. Stamm. Rev. J. S. Bouck performed the ceremony.

Ed Larkin's residence in Blue Hill was wiped out by fire last Friday afternoon. Very little furniture was saved, but by hard fighting the granary and other out-buildings were preserved. The building was insured for $650.

The Union is still in favor of a good broad sidewalk up First street from Main street to the depot, and if it cannot be built any other way let the village build it, but a sidewalk to the depot we (the people) must and shall have.

How to Get Rid of It.

The annual reappearance of the pestiferous cutworm, the enemy of gardeners and farmers, will take place about May 15, according to Professor F. L. Washburn, state entomologist, who, in the May issue of Minnesota Insect Life, published a few days ago, tells how to rid the soil of the pest.

Examination of the soil by Professor Washburn revealed the presence of about as many cutworms as last year, which was considered a banner year for the pests. Before planting the soil should be carefully examined, says the bulletin, and if any are found, paper collars, extending three inches into the ground and two inches above, should be placed around each plant. If the soil is free from the worms, a shingle fence around each garden patch will keep out the insects. Bran mash mixed with paris green and cheap molasses until the mixture is decidedly green in color, and scattering it about the garden, also is recommended by Mr. Washburn. Newly turned sod is full of cutworms and the only safe method to rid the soil of the insects is to plow the sod in the fall and let the elements kill the worms. Flax crop on newly broken ground will drive away the worms.

Princeton People Have Good Reason For Complete Reliance.

To find quick relief from backache;
To correct distressing urinary ills;
To assist sick kidneys?
There's one way—your neighbors know—
Have used Doan's Kidney Pills;
Have proved their worth in many tests.

Here's Princeton testimony.
David Whitcomb of Princeton, Minn., says: "I had attacks of kidney trouble and when I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I used them. They helped me wonderfully. I know of other persons who have taken this remedy and have received relief from pain and lameness in the loins. I feel justified in advising anyone afflicted with kidney trouble to give Doan's Pills a trial."

COMMON SENSE APPLIED TO WILL

"End" Is Where Testator Ended It and Signed Name.

PREVIOUS RULINGS UPSET.

New York Court of Appeals Unanimously Upholds Document Which Left Gum Manufacturer's Estate to Society For Psychological Research.

A decision which lawyers say is one of the most important in a will case in years has been handed down by the New York court of appeals, which reverses the surrogate in Brooklyn and the appellate division and admits to probate the will of Warren B. Field, a Brooklyn chewing gum manufacturer, who died in 1910, leaving an estate exceeding $10,000 to the American Society For Psychological Research. Probate had been refused to the will in the lower courts on the ground that the testator had not signed his name "at the end thereof," as required by law.

Mr. Field drew the will himself and wrote it in longhand. He had obtained the printed form for a will, had filled in the top, and in the blank space provided for the provisions of the will he wrote: "I direct that my estate be settled as per the provisions of the pages here to attached and numbered from 1 to 6, inclusive, and this is to stand unchallenged and unchanged in any form provided I die before a will is drawn by my attorney."

Lower Court's Decision.

Upon the blank space the testator pinned six sheets of paper numbered consecutively, the first of which began as follows:

"Jan. 10, 1910. Provisions which I desire made in my will and which, should I pass away before will is drawn, that I desire executed exactly as though drawn in an ironclad legal form."

The bottom of the printed form was filled out legally and correctly, but the lower courts decided that the printed form must be regarded as the "first page" of the will, and as the testator's name was signed at the bottom of it it was impossible to hold that the name had been signed at the "end" of the will.

Judge Vann, who wrote the unanimous opinion of the court of appeals, said that when read the way the lower courts would read it the "instrument does not read naturally and consecutively and does not make sense. The natural order of reading the paper is subverted and in artificial order substituted not to aid but to overturn the obvious intention." Following the argument advanced by counsel for the American Society For Psychological Research, in his brief Judge Vann remarked that the natural order of reading such a will is to read it just as a card calendar would be read, "Who would read it any other way unless he wished to destroy it as a will?" asked the court.

Judge Vann's Comment.

Judge Vann remarked that the position of the lower courts was supported to some extent by previous court of appeals decisions, "for we have gone far to protect testators from the danger of imposition and fraud through unauthorized additions and changes in their wills." The court says that such a danger does not exist in the present case because the will is holographic and no sheet could be changed without the co-operation of the testator. The court does not believe a search of the decisions will show even three cases of fraudulent additions to wills, "and it must be conceded that as to this supposed danger the remedy has proved in practice far worse than the disease." The court concludes that the evil of fraudulent changes in wills is rare, "while the evil of defeating wills altogether in the manner suggested is common; hence we think we have gone far enough in the direction of rigid construction, lest in the effort to prevent wrong we do more harm than good."

COST OF PRIMARY ELECTION.

$850,000 Spent to Get Out One-third of the Votes in Wisconsin.

The fact that it cost $850,000 to get out one-third of the votes in the state of Wisconsin at the primary election at which Senator Isaac Stephenson prevailed over his opponents was brought out in the course of the debate on the Stephenson case in the senate.

Senator Overman inquired why such a stupendous expenditure was necessary. "If it takes that sum to bring out one-third of the voters in Wisconsin, it seems to me the primary plan is rather discouraging," said Mr. Overman. "This occurred, too, in a state that is continually held up before us as an example of all the modern reforms."

State News.

Marcus C. Cutter, until recently purchasing agent for the state board of control, is now the owner of the Thief River Falls News, having purchased the same from Mrs. John W. Eastman. Mr. Cutter is a live wire and a practical newspaper man and Thief River Falls is a live town, hence it is expected that he will get out a readable paper.

Next Saturday, at the old capitol, St. Paul, the Minnesota Territorial Pioneers' association will hold its annual meeting. May 11 is the fifty-fourth anniversary of the admission of the state into the union. The day's program includes a social hour, dinner in the G. A. R. dining hall, literary and musical features and an hour for reminiscence talks.

The Elk River Milling company, valued at over $50,000, was sold to the Lawrence National bank of Lawrence, Mass., for $40,000 at a public sale last Saturday. The mill was sold to satisfy a mortgage held by the bank for $43,866. It is understood the business will be continued as before and that the situation will be satisfactorily worked out in a few weeks.

Entries for the first monthly butter contest have been called for by Joel C. Winkler, state dairy and food commissioner, and must reach St. Paul not later than May 17. Five other contests will be arranged about a month apart. The state will be divided into six districts, counties with similar conditions being grouped together. Prizes will be awarded in each district monthly and the butter-maker holding the highest average for the six competitions will receive a gold watch. For the highest score in the state a grand championship prize will be awarded.

The mayoralty situation changed again at Fergus Falls on Saturday when the supreme court held that crosses placed in the blank square below a candidate's name should not be counted for anyone. Nelson and W. H. McBride tied at the city election a month ago, and the council cast lots and McBride won. Nelson appealed to the district court, and that court held that certain ballots with the cross opposite the blank square below McBride's name should be counted for him. This gave him a clear majority. He has now served a month, has appointed his police force, and council committees. Nelson will discharge the entire police force and put in new men. McBride is a no-license man and Nelson is a license man.

School Report.

School report for month ending May 3 for primary department, district 4: Pupils who attended 20 days—Oliver, Blanche and Theodore Burke; Ethel and Walter Larson, Wm. and Beatrice Peterson, Oscar Olson, Florence Teutz and Ruth Hill. Pupils who attended 19 days—Anton and Agnes Betzler, Agnes Homme, Carl and Clarence Larson, Harold and Walter Wesloh and Clarence Pederson. Florence Teutz, Oliver Burke and Walter and Ethel Larson did perfect work in reading for the entire month. Walter Larson did perfect work in spelling. Blanche, Oliver and Agnes Homme attended the most days during the whole term of school ending May 3, 1912.

Troubadours Defeated.

The Princeton Troubadours and the Zimmerman Huskies clashed at the fair grounds last Sunday and Zimmerman grabbed the long end of an 18 to 15 score, after nine innings of terrific battling by both teams. The first inning resulted in a blank for both sides and Zimmerman also failed to score in the second round. Princeton gathered in one score in the second inning and two more in the third.

The fourth round opened with the score 3 to 0 in favor of the Troubadours and Princeton's prospects looked bright, but Zimmerman was out to win and started a batting rally of no small proportions, scoring eight runs in the one inning. This gave them a good lead, which they held to the end. Princeton put in a strong bid for the game in their half of the eighth when, by some timely hitting, aided by errors, they pushed six runs over, but the Huskies from Sherburne county had too much of a lead for them to overcome. Stay and Angstman were in the points for the Troubadours and performed in a creditable manner.

Jess Angstman handled the indicator in a manner that was entirely satisfactory to both sides.

A fair sized crowd was in attendance and thoroughly enjoyed the game, it being an interesting exhibition from start to finish.
