The Avery Clothing House

THERE ARE MANY GOOD REASONS WHY WE HANDLE CLOVERLEAF MANURE SPREADERS

Down to the smallest part Cloverleaf spreaders are constructed to insure the best work in the field with the least strain on the machine, the horses and the driver.

There is more permanent plant food value in fresh stable manure properly spread than in any other known form of fertilizer. A Cloverleaf spreader will distribute it in an even coat, light or heavy as may be required, all over a field. Manure spread in this manner returns most plant food to the soil at about half the expense and much less than half the work of hand spreading, besides doing away entirely with the most disagreeable part of the job.

To take one example of thoroughness in detail, Cloverleaf spreaders are constructed without a reach. This allows the spreader to be managed handily in small feed lots, backed up to barn doors opening into narrow yards, or turned completely in its own length; yet the absence of a reach in no way interferes with the strength or field efficiency of the machines.

We have these spreaders in many sizes—small, medium, large; wide and narrow track. Let us show you the Cloverleaf and tell you of some of the machines we have sold.
