A real athletic carnival is in store for Princeton people next Friday evening, when the girl and boy basket ball teams of the Mora and Princeton high schools will battle for supremacy. The Princeton boys were defeated at Mora early in the season, but the locals are going stronger now, and hope to redeem themselves. Princeton girls always give a good account of themselves, and they have one victory to their credit over Mora this season. Both contests will undoubtedly be interesting, and the high school orchestra will enliven the occasion by rendering selections between halves.
