CONTEMPTIBLE LIARS.

Pursuant to instructions, we presume, supporters of Adolph O. Eberhart are passing the word among Scandinavian voters that Frank B. Kellogg is a Catholic. As a matter of fact, Mr. Kellogg is a Protestant Episcopalian, but he makes no parade of his religion.

Frank B. Kellogg is making a manly, open and above-board fight for the republican nomination for United States senator; he is the only one of the four candidates who dares to take the stump and tell the voters what he stands for and what he advocates. The disreputable tactics employed by contemptible curs to influence voters against him will make him friends.

The candidate who would attempt to make votes for himself by appealing to racial prejudices and religious animosities in this enlightened twentieth century, earns for himself the contempt of decent, intelligent people everywhere.

Frank B. Kellogg is not seeking support among the tango-dancers of the dives and brothels of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The support he seeks and will receive is that of the self-respecting, right-thinking intelligent voters of Minnesota.

Next Monday is primary election day, and all good citizens will visit the polls and vote.

The coal barons increased the wages of their employes five cents, and then raised the price of coal fifteen cents.

Compressed paper with a thin leather covering is being used in Germany as a substitute for leather shoe soles.

Bryan states emphatically that he will not influence the St. Louis convention. For once we agree with William.

Irving A. Caswell was wise when he declined to be republican national committeeman from Minnesota. Chester A. Congdon was named for the thankless and costly position.

Wine without alcohol has been invented by a Californian, who is on parole from San Quentin penitentiary. He ought to be incarcerated again before he perpetrates a greater crime.

The Progressive convention last week greeted a proposed prohibition plank with prolonged applause, and then voted it down overwhelmingly. A "dry" plank would be apt to warp or break.

Kellogg for U. S. senator, Burnquist for governor, Peterson for lieutenant governor, Schmah for secretary of state, Rines for state treasurer and Judge Ira B. Mills for railroad and warehouse commissioner is not a bad combination.

Some fellow in St. Paul proposes that a monument be erected to James J. Hill opposite the proposed new union depot in that city. A rather indefinite proposition as the new union depot may not be erected for several score of years.

Little interest is manifested in the democratic national convention which is in session at St. Louis this week. Woodrow Wilson will undoubtedly be renominated and he will virtually dictate the platform. Vice President Marshall will also be renominated.

After the primary, there's a general election. As the man said to his dog: "When you are dead, you're dead, but me, I got to go to yet." The above from the democratic Little Falls Herald is particularly applicable to the candidates of that party in Minnesota this year.

A Pennsylvania man claims to have discovered the secret of profitable politics. He has just filed his expense account for a campaign for nomination for congressman-at-large. Expenses, $22.20. Receipts, $77. Net profits, $54.80. He is undoubtedly either a genius or a first-class liar.

That booze and benzine simply won't mix has again been demonstrated, and with the usual fearful results.—Rock County Herald.
 Booze and benzine are, perhaps, worse than a fool in a boat, and that is a combination second only to the chap who "didn't know the gun was loaded."

To Granville S. Pease, the venerable publisher of the Anoka Union, we doff our hat, extend the right hand of fellowship and tender our sincere congratulations. Mr. Pease has been identified with the Union as its editor and publisher for 50 years, and he celebrated the event by issuing a golden edition on June 7th that is a typographical gem.

In his address at the first annual banquet of the Legion to Enforce Peace, President Wilson expressed the opinion that every people has a right to choose the sovereignty under which it shall live, and that small states of the world have a right to enjoy the same respect for their sovereignty and for their territorial integrity that great and powerful nations expect and insist upon. Certainly.

Appeals to racial prejudices do not have much effect on men like Hon. J. F. Jacobson, Senator Ole O. Sageng, Senator C. L. Swenson, ex-Senator A. D. Stephens, Senator N. S. Hegnes, Senator L. H. Nord, ex-Senator L. O. Thorpe, ex-Lieutenant Governor A. E. Rice, Hon. G. B. Mattson and scores of other leading Scandinavians, all of whom favor the election of Frank B. Kellogg to the United States senate.

Labor Commissioner Houck believes that the state should not only find the unemployed man a job, but it should also follow up the man and find out if he gives satisfaction to his employer and also gets fair treatment. He also advocates that the state should find a job for the boy, just out of school, and that a vocational guidance expert be employed who will help the boy find the work to which he is best adapted.

In former times American tourists have spent something like $150,000,000 a year in Europe, and it is expected that the close of the war will be followed by an American invasion of tourists to the battlefields of the great war. Already all the rooms in the leading hotels of London and Paris have been engaged in advance by Americans who are going when the conflict is ended, and American gold will help rebuild the ruined towns within the war zone.

In commenting on the fact that the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, recently in session at Atlantic City, devoted considerable time to denouncing the evil effects of the automobile and the moving picture—one speaker referred to the "movie" theater as "The Modern Diana of the Ephesians," and another declared that the automobile was "carrying away from the church the magnificent army of Christ"—The Independent pertinently observes:

Let not the brethren forget, however, that the automobile and the moving picture are the greatest educators of the age. The automobile carries you everywhere. The moving picture carries everywhere to you.

The following excellent editorial is from the Kenyon Leader, and we pass it on to our readers with pleasure:

Thrift is a composite virtue. It includes the desirable attributes of economy, self-denial and saving; but it is no relative to niggardliness or meanness. The man who would let his grandmother starve is not a thrifty man, but a brute. Any virtue carried to extremes becomes undesirable and is no longer a virtue. The thrift that does not make a man charitable sours into avarice. Thrift means better homes, better citizens, more enjoyment, little waste, little anxiety, peace. Out of it grows productive energy, steady courage, opportunity, independence, self respect, aimfulness in life, manhood. It is the one material habit that has no shady side. It is acquired little by little—a steady pressure (in the right direction) until it becomes second nature to save and thrift becomes a habit.

HUGHES AND FAIRBANKS.

That Hughes and Fairbanks are the nominees of the republican party for president and vice-president is already known to almost every reader of the Union.

Republicans generally throughout the country seem to be satisfied with the action of the convention, although there is no great enthusiasm manifested anywhere.

Theodore Roosevelt was the nominee of the progressive party for president, but he has conditionally declined the nomination for the present.

If Mr. Hughes comes out squarely in favor of the policies that Col. Roosevelt advocates then it is safe to assume that he will have the Colonel's support, and the support of the bulk of the progressives, which would make a republican victory next November reasonably certain. Without the active assistance of Roosevelt and his personal following republican success is extremely problematical.

A REMARKABLE TRIBUTE.
 Two pages of the Albert Lea Times-Enterprise of the 7th inst. contain over 500 endorsements of Frank B. Kellogg by the business men and farmers of that city and vicinity. Among the names appear those of the leading Scandinavians of Freeborn county. It was a remarkable tribute to Mr. Kellogg from men who admire him for his worth and ability.

Annexed hereto are a few specimen endorsements selected at random from the hundreds:

I heard Mr. Kellogg speak last month and came away from the meeting with the impression that he was a man who knew what he was talking about. I liked his ideas and believe he is thoroughly in earnest. I shall vote for him.
 M. L. OLSON.

Our state in the past has been fortunate in having men of ability to represent her in Washington. Men like Windom, Davis, Tawney, and with Nelson and Kellogg Minnesota will have representation that we can all feel proud of.
 A. G. BRUNDIN.

I think Mr. Kellogg is the best equipped candidate for Senator now before the people. I believe he has the best understanding of the critical situations now existing in the United States, of any man in public life, with the possible exception of Knute Nelson. I am supporting him on the grounds of his great ability, his knowledge of our country's needs and his loyal patriotism.
 EMIL NELSON.

"In 1913 in a joint session of the Minnesota legislature I had the honor and privilege of nominating and voting for Honorable Knute Nelson for United States senator to succeed himself. Next month I shall have the privilege and honor of voting for Frank B. Kellogg as a colleague of Senator Nelson in the senate. Minnesota will with Senators Nelson and Kellogg be without a peer in the United States senate."
 H. H. DUNN, Ex-Speaker.

Important problems of international questions and policies confront the American people, the U. S. senate should be composed of brainy men, who would be a credit to the state and the United States, as well as ranking with the great men, who plan, shape, and mould the laws and policies of our nation, Minnesota and the states would be well and creditably represented by nominating and electing to the United States senate that brilliant and worthy man, Hon. Frank B. Kellogg.
 C. L. SWENSON, (State Senator.)

I believe Frank B. Kellogg has the ability, uprightness and is possessed of the keenness and foresightedness to be the best material possible to send to the United States senate. He is well versed in the needs of the farming community and of our mercantile and manufacturing interests. He is a big man for a responsible position and the country will be well represented by a man of such ability and influential standing as that possessed by Mr. Kellogg.
 S. O. SIMONSON.

CHARLES J. MOOS.

Who is Charles J. Moos? He is Frank B. Kellogg's sole manager and publicity agent in his candidacy for the United States senate.

Mr. Moos was born in St. Cloud about 30 years ago. His parents were among the early German settlers of that city. He was executive clerk in the governor's office during the last two years of VanSant's administration. He is connected with the Volkszeitung, Minnesota's only daily German newspaper, and is highly regarded by the management. He managed Judge Bunn's campaign two years ago and landed him on the supreme court bench. The total cost of that campaign was less than $2,000.

Mr. Moos is studying law during his spare hours and one of these days he will graduate from the St. Paul law school, and he will be a lawyer, too. It was at the law school that Mr. Moos became acquainted with Mr. Kellogg, who lectures there occasionally.

Since the first of May Mr. Moos has been on the job night and day. When or how he eats and sleeps is a mystery—he works about 23 hours out of the 24 and never seems to tire. He has conducted the greatest publicity campaign in Mr. Kellogg's behalf that was ever conducted in this or any other state, and at the smallest expense. He is a great believer in the efficacy of printer's ink. He pays for what he gets and insists upon getting what he pays for.

His only headquarters is a little dinky room in the Pioneer Press building and his only assistants are two bright girls and an errand boy. He has covered every nook and corner of the state with Kellogg advertising matter, at a surprisingly small expense.

If Mr. Kellogg is successful, and it looks as if he certainly would be, he will, in a great measure, owe his success to the untiring energy, good sense and political sagacity of his brilliant, brainy young German-American manager, Charles J. Moos.

Evidently the Minneapolis Journal believes that Frank B. Kellogg will be successful in his candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator, for it editorially endorsed him for the first time in its issue of the 14th inst.

IRA B. MILLS

Ira B. Mills, the senior member of the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners, is a candidate for reelection, and his name appears on the republican primary ballot. He has been a member of the board since 1893, when he was appointed by Governor Nelson; he was re-appointed by Governor Clough, and was elected in 1900, 1904, 1908 and 1912.

Judge Mills is thoroughly honest and a man of fine executive ability. He has written almost all of the decisions of the board in recent years and is considered one of the very best authorities on railroad matters in the country. He performs the duties of his office fairly and impartially and always aims to do justice to all concerned.

THE CANDIDATES.

It is the prevalent belief that a light vote will be polled at the primary election in the rural districts of the state next Monday, as there will be few contests for local offices and the farmers are behind with their work, owing to the late spring and inclement weather. The result will be largely determined by the big cities and the larger towns and villages.

The contest for the United States senatorship on the republican ticket is the most interesting. Unless all signs fail Frank B. Kellogg will walk off with the nomination.

For governor the present incumbent J. A. A. Burnquist and Samuel G. Iverson are the contestants. It looks as if Mr. Burnquist would be an easy winner.

For lieutenant governor there are three candidates—James A. Peterson, Thomas Frankson and Dr. J. A. Gates. All three are good men. The indications are that Mr. Peterson will land.

Julius Schmah has virtually no opposition for secretary of state, still E. K. Sampson thinks he also is in the running. Julius' majority will be a large one.

There are three candidates for state treasurer—Henry Rines, R. L. Johnson and Peter J. Schwarg. All three are reliable men and either of them would safely care for the state's funds. But the Union's choice is Henry Rines, and it is generally conceded that he will be nominated.

Judge Ira B. Mills and Elias Steenerson are rival candidates for the office of railroad and warehouse commissioner. Judge Mills is a hard man to beat and the chances are that he will succeed himself.

All of the above are candidates on the republican primary ballot and the nominees will in all probability be elected in November. The democrats and prohibitionists have incomplete tickets.

The non-partisan ballot contains the names of four candidates for associate justice of the supreme court—James H. Quinn, Albert Schaller, W. B. Anderson and Thomas Kneeland. The names of the two highest will go on the ballot at the general election in November.

An unhappy Los Angeles wife, who was recently granted an interlocutory degree of divorce, attributes her domestic troubles to Bryan. She testified that her husband was once a prosperous civil engineer, but that after becoming a convert to the teachings of the "silver-tongued orator" of the Platte, he deserted his family and devoted all of his time to curbstone oratory and socialistic themes. There is a moral connected with this that is easily discernible.

Senator "Bill" Campbell.

Senator W. A. Campbell of Minneapolis was in town Thursday evening, and again on Friday with the Duluth boosters. "Bill," as he is familiarly called, sells stoves for a living and he is a live wire, and when it comes to talking, President Vincent of the state university has nothing on him. Mr. Campbell addressed a big crowd at Big Lake on Thursday afternoon. He is putting in some good licks for his friend Henry Rines and is a staunch supporter of Frank B. Kellogg. "Bill" Campbell is the firm friend of organized labor and is immensely popular with the laboring men of Minneapolis. He is a fighter from 'way back and as fearless as he is eloquent.

OPINIONS OF EDITORS.

Down With It.
 Did you ever stop to think that gasoline has raised more hell, misery and death than whiskey? John D. Rockefeller is the head brewer of it. Down with the stuff—to 10 cents a gallon.—Magnolia Advance.

Well Spoken.
 Some men like to look like Lincoln, others prefer to roar like Roosevelt, and a contingent would even orate like Wilson. But the rest of us, begorra, don't care a cuss how they look, roar and orate. We admire men, not imitations.—Bemidji Pioneer.

A Winner.
 Ex-Speaker Rines, candidate for state treasurer, appears to be the man who would make an excellent state official. His work in the House was commendable, and his acquaintances over the state, with the good endorsement that he is receiving, should secure him the nomination.—Park Rapids Enterprise.

Superior Statesmanship Available.
 Frank Kellogg is that greatest of all anomalies, a staunch republican with democratic principles and mode of life. Mr. Kellogg will create a sensation in the United States senate where the people of the state will send him next November, but it won't be by posing or extravagance of manner or expenditure—it will simply be by a superior quality of statesmanship.—Redwood Falls Gazette.

A Sensible Statement.
 This appears to be a sensible statement: Frank B. Kellogg says the farmer who hires neighboring farmers to haul his products to town and the nation that hires the ships of neighboring nations to transport its products to market, eat up their profits paying transportation charges. Protection of home productions and home labor, means contentment and prosperity.—Stillwater Gazette.

Files an Objection.
 And now the face of Uncle Sam's silver money is to be changed—to make it more artistic and give employment to a mint of men in the government mint. That's always the way. Us fellows who have worked a life time to get a silver dollar and become familiar with its appearance and scenery, and along comes some ambitious office holder and changes the stamp. What the most of the people of this country want is a dollar that is worth one hundred cents and is plentiful enough so that the common people can get acquainted with it. Who cares what it looks like or how old fashioned it is so long as we get it and keep it.—Lake City Leader.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL

The potato market is somewhat unsettled, and yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock prices declined sharply. All varieties are listed at 60c this morning. Receipts continue good for this season, and a goodly quantity of tubers are being marketed here.

The sidewalk on the south side of Mrs. Mary Rines' beautiful residence block has been relaid to conform with the street grade, and the boulevard has also been nicely graded and topped with rich black soil, and will soon be clothed in verdant green. The improvements while costly, have greatly enhanced the looks of Mrs. Rines' place.

No racial prejudice actuates the Union. There are four candidates that the Union hopes to see win next Monday, and three of these are Scandinavians—J. A. A. Burnquist for governor, James A. Peterson for lieutenant governor, Henry Rines for state treasurer. The other candidate that the Union is intensely interested in is a plain American—Frank B. Kellogg.

Henry Rines was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth, neither was Frank Kellogg. Both of them have hoed their own row through life unaided. Both of them are graduates of the country school and "never went to college." Neither of them has ever been guilty of a dishonorable act in private or public life. Remember them when you go to the polls next Monday.

Ex-Governor Eberhart and his friends profess great friendship for Henry Rines these days. The ex-governor and his friends defeated Mr. Rines for the republican nomination for state auditor two years ago, and they love him as the devil does holy water. The ex-governor and his friends hate Mr. Rines as cordially as they did two years ago and will knife him whenever and wherever they can.

H. C. Person, the local Harley-Davidson agent, left Sunday morning for a trip to Starbuck and Morris. The trip comprises a mileage of about 300 "country blocks" and he expects to return today. Milton Wylie has charge of the Motorcycle Inn during his absence. His 1916 "H-D" is getting its share of the long distance trips this season, and from all appearances it is none the worse for its many miles of travel.

There is now a continuous stretch of good sidewalk on the east side of Plymouth Avenue from Union street to First street, a convenience that will be appreciated by the residents of the south end of the village, especially in moist weather. Col. Newbert, Bob King and Mrs. Brennan built the connecting links.

A class of nine was recently graduated from the Foley high school, and Rev. W. A. Shannon of Minneapolis delivered the commencement address. One of the Foley pastors took offense because one of his denomination was not selected. A member of the school board very properly rebuked the reverend gentleman in the last issue of the Foley Independent, and among other things said: "We hope that hereafter, since the heads of the school do not dictate to any clergymen in what is strictly their scope of work, that the clergymen will kindly reciprocate the favor by leaving affairs pertaining strictly to school out of any remarks made off the pulpit."

There were two automobile smash-ups near Cambridge last Saturday. During the afternoon a Studebaker carrying five passengers, landed in the Walbo ditch, and the occupants of the machine were thoroughly saturated with mud and water. No one was seriously injured which is little short of miraculous. There is also one less Ford in Cambridge since Saturday. While returning home with his family, Elias Bloom, a prominent farmer residing north of the village, had the misfortune to have his Ford stall at a crossing, just as the evening passenger was due. Mr. and Mrs. Bloom and children barely had time to escape from the car, which was struck by the engine, and it is now a complete wreck.

GLENDORADO & SANTIAGO

Miss Rose Business and Mrs. Fred Williams of Minneapolis are guests of their sister, Mrs. T. W. Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Odegard transacted business in the twin cities last week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Walker of Santiago, at the Northwestern hospital at Princeton, June 7, a son.

Christ Knutson had an operation for appendicitis at the hospital in Princeton last Wednesday, June 7. At the present writing he is progressing very nicely.

There will be confirmation and services at the Lutheran church in Glendorado on July 2, at 10:30 a. m.

Rev. O. Wolstead of Minneapolis held services at T. Jensen's on Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. Wolstead have just returned from Los Angeles, California, where they have spent the winter.

Herman and Obert Anderson have completed a cement porch on the parsonage in Glendorado, which adds much to its appearance.
