GREED MET PROPER REBUKE

Incident on Street Car a Case of Righteous Retribution and Some Embarrassment.

The day was stormy and the car carried only a limited number of passengers. The Woman Who Saw spied a shining coin glistening on the floor, just in front of a fashionably dressed woman who might have posed for a "Daily Ill from Paris," so faultless was her get-up, despite the rainy day. Everytling bespoke affluence and reckless expenditure, and the necessity to add to her probable store of ready money was not apparent. However, she was eyeing the coin as a cat does a mouse, ready to pounce on it at the first favorable opportunity. Simultaneously the gaze of a dapper elderly gentleman, seated next the Woman Who Saw, lighted upon the glittering object. It would have been an easy matter to have stooped and possessed himself of it, but the eagle eye of his fellow passenger followed his every movement, betraying her desire to appropriate the coveted prize. After a few seconds of irresolution he reached down and literally grabbed the lucky find. Opening his closed hand he took one glance at the treasure. A peculiar expression crossed his face, and his fingers closed tightly again. This was too much for the well-dressed woman, who could restrain herself no longer; greed took possession of her, and leaning forward she addressed the finder in icy accents: "Pardon me, sir, that belongs to me. I just dropped it."

With a courteous bow the gentleman replied: "Permit me to restore your property, madam," and he placed in the immaculate gloved hand, now eagerly extended, a shining tobacco tag.

WILL ATTRACT THE TOURIST

City of Guayaquil Making a Bid for Travelers Who Delight in the Picturesque.

Ecuador will soon be ready for a greater business with the world and for the tourist. Guayaquil, the country's chief port, is now undergoing a thorough sanitating. Streets are being modernized, and otherwise the city is improving. The ancient capital of Ecuador, Quito, lies nearly 300 miles by railway from Guayaquil. A few tourists have used the new railway "along the roof of the world" and visited the interesting old city.

Guayaquil lies upon the Guayas river 80 miles from the ocean, so the average ship passenger does not even secure a passing view of the second port of importance on the west coast of South America. However, on clear days, when the ship is not many miles from shore, it is possible to sight Cotopaxi or Chimborazo, the former sending to the sky a smoky column from its snow-white cone.

Northward 840 miles we sight the foliage-bedecked islands in the Bay of Panama, and shortly thereafter drop anchor near the entrance to the world's greatest canal.

From a Great Diary.

Evelyn, the great diarist and courier, is blind to many things which his readers would gladly have had him notice and record.

He tells us nothing of the condition of the mass of the people, rarely speaks of poor persons or servants, rarely mentions the clothes he wore or the food he ate, never, at any rate, with that pleasure of memory unashamed which gives such details the smack of life in Pepsy's or Boswell.

He never gossips; tells us little of his neighbors' vices, and nothing of their follies; would assuredly not have recorded, if there had been any such matters to record, his wife's jealousy of his attentions to her mind; gives no such touches of rude veracity as that of Pepsy's sister, for whom a husband must be found at once as "she grows old and ugly," or that of poor Mr. Pechell, "whose red nose makes me ashamed to be seen with him, though otherwise a good-natured man."

Famous Polish City.

To the tourist the most interesting building in Galatz is the Church of St. Mary's, which contains the tomb of the celebrated Cossack chief, Mazepa, whose intrigue with the wife of a noble at the Polish court and his dire punishment (being bound naked to the back of a wild horse and set adrift on the desert) have been immortalized in Byron's poem. The tomb is supposed to have been rifled of its remains by the Russians during one of their several descents upon the city, for the memory of Mazepa is execrated by the soldiers of the czar, inasmuch as he became an ally of Charles XII of Sweden. He died of poison in the same year that Peter the Great defeated Charles on the field of Pultowa.

The H. C. of Living.

"Dis heah cost o' livin'," observed Mandy Morgan, "is gittin' somethin' awful! Would you believe me, a single ham done cost mah husband six months in jail?"—Puck.

Justifiable Suspicion.

Announcement that there is a shortage of chorus girls arouses the suspicion that the supply may have been cornered by a bunch of Pittsburgh millionaires.

Going Shakespeare One Better.

"You have made a great success filming Shakespeare." "Yes, but I think I can do better. Now I'm going to try an original play."

NOW A NATION OF 102,826,309

United States Has Made Great Gains in Population Despite European War.

The wars are costing the United States in this decade 3,000,000 in immigrants, yet we are gaining in numbers somewhat faster than in the last decade, or so the census bureau estimate of population for January 1, 1917, would indicate. It is 102,826,309, or, including the islands, 113,309,285.

The end of the year completes two-thirds of the decade and shows a gain of not quite 11,000,000, observes the New York World. A total of 108,000,000 or more may be expected in 1920. If peace had continued, a gain of nearly 20,000,000 would not have been impossible.

To New York the census bureau assigns for six and two-thirds years more than twice the gain the state census allowed for five years; it is doubtless nearer the truth. By 1920 the empire state should reach 11,000,000. At the present rate Pennsylvania should increase 1,240,000 in ten years. California 900,000, Texas 864,000, and Illinois 832,000. California has already about as many people as declared their independence in 1776.

The Emperor Claudius took a census of 6,945,000 Romans—men only. That may have meant in all 20,000,000 citizens. Gibbon thought slaves and provincials might have made an empire total of 120,000,000, but it was a generous guess. The British, Chinese and Russian empires now surpass the United States in total numbers; none equals it in the number of educated and energetic whites—unless we count as a single power the vast Germanic system which reaches from Antwerp to Bagdad under the rule of Berlin.

COUNT TUNNELS BY MILES

Underground Workings of Anthracite Coal Mines a Constant Source of Expense to Owners.

Anthracite coal mines in this country have over 7,000 miles of tunnels. Of these, 2,000 are in the Schuylkill region, which ships about 28 per cent of the total anthracite production. In the Lehigh and Wyoming regions, which furnish the remaining 72 per cent of output, there must be over 5,000 miles of tunnels.

These underground roads are a great expense. All the coal that can be recovered from them is constantly increasing, and this adds greatly to the cost of the mines. Water that runs into these underground passages must be steadily pumped out to protect adjacent workings, and air must be forced in to prevent the formation of dangerous gases. To protect the surface and make possible the recovery of a little more coal, large sums of money are annually spent for pumping refuse back into the workings by hydraulic process.

A further problem of large cost is the timbering of the mines. Pennsylvania timber has long been stripped from the hills and yellow pine from the South must be brought in. Mine timbers and lumber cost the operators $5,000,000 annually.

Names of Flowers.

It is interesting to know how certain flowers got their names. Many were named after individuals. For instance, Fuchsias were so called because they were discovered by Leon and Fuchs. Dahlias were named for Andre Dahl, who brought them from Peru. The Camellia was so called for a missionary named Kamel, who brought some magnificent specimens of the flower to France from Japan. He called it the Rose of Japan, but his friends changed it to Camellia. Magnolias were named in honor of Prof. Magnol de Montpellier, who first brought the beautiful trees to France from America and Asia. Because they tremble with the wind is the meaning of Anemones. The Latin word to wash is lavare, and Lavender received its name because the Romans put the flowers into the water when they washed, to perfume their hands.

Pat's Wish.

When Patrick McGinnagan became a member of the police force a delegation of his friends burst in upon him while he was at dinner, and presented him with a handsome truncheon in honor of his popularity and their esteem.

Completely bewildered by this unexpected token, the new policeman, nevertheless, struggled to his feet and stammered his appreciation. "Friends, ye have upset me wid y'r kindness," he said, flourishing the truncheon. "O'll try an' do my duty wid this little shillaly, an' I hope an' trust that Irvy mon here'll live t' feel its inflooince."—Rochester Evening Times.

Looking for Virtues.

When you have a mind to divert your fancy, consider the good qualities of your acquaintances; as the enterprising vigor of this man, the modesty of another, the liberality of a third and so on. For there is nothing so entertaining as a lively image of the virtues exhibited in the character of those we converse with, occurring as numerous as possible. Let this, therefore, be always at hand.—Marcus Aurelius Antoninus.

Sufficiency.

Sneering Cynic—"I suppose she is all the world to you." Satisfied Lover—"Not exactly; but she has all I want of it—twenty acres and a mansion at Newport."—Boston Evening Transcript

Kitten Pats Out Fire.

John is only a black and white kitten of nondescript breed, but if there is such a thing as a medal for bravery, he certainly has claim upon it. One morning I was sitting before the fireplace, watching John as he lay on a hassock on the opposite side, apparently asleep, but he was far from it. We were burning some old trash in the fireplace, and suddenly, with a report like that of a pistol shot, a cinder about as large as a dime came flying through the air and alighted in a basket used by John as a sleeping place. This basket was lined with a woolen cloth and the cinder began to smolder and an incipient fire was at once under way. John, giving the call of the cat tribe, pounced on the blazing cloth, trampled it out with his fore feet, and then, when he was satisfied it was extinguished, quietly curled up and went to sleep, just as though he had not done a thing that was a wonderful exhibition of feline sense.—Our Dumb Animals.
