

NORTHWEST TO BE REPRESENTED

Delegates Coming to National Dairy Exposition From Many Points in the Northwest.

TO RUN SPECIAL TRAINS

Many Farmers in Mille Lacs, Kanabec and Chisago Counties Plan to Attend.

Organization of delegations in more than a dozen localities throughout the northwest to come to the National Dairy exposition at the twin cities, October 14 to 16, marks the early activities of farmers and businessmen in their preparations to be in attendance at the greatest dairy show ever held in the northwest and signals the wide-spread interest in the movement for more diversified farming.

According to advices received at the St. Paul offices of the National Dairy association, plans have already been made for automobile delegations and special trains which will carry fully 50,000 people in groups to the twin cities for the exposition.

Col. W. E. Skinner, general manager of the National Dairy exposition, in commenting on these reports, said that this indication of interest and recognition of the worth of the exposition was exceedingly gratifying, and points to a record breaking attendance. "More localities should follow the example of those which are organizing," he said, "for every farmer and businessman of this section should see the exposition and learn that it is a convincing demonstration of diversified farming which promises increased prosperity for the country."

Rochester, the county seat of Olmstead county, one of the first to report the organization of a delegation, will be the gathering point for the farmers of that community who will come here by automobile or on a special train over the Great Western and Northwestern. Carl F. Scheesselman, secretary-treasurer of the Rochester Loan & Trust company, will be in charge of the delegation. Another delegation from Neillsville, Wis., will make the trip on a special train with H. M. Knipfel in charge.

From Mille Lacs county a delegation of about 100 cars will come to the exposition, W. F. Hammargren, county agent, has advised the association officers.

Farmers and businessmen from Effilsworth, Wis., will come by special train or automobile, and a special train on both branches of the Soo line will run from Polk County, Wis.

Meeker county, Minn., will send a large delegation from Litchfield, and reports from Beltrami county state that 100 automobiles are signed up for the trip to the exposition.

In Morrison county, Minn., each one of the 20 creamery managers have been asked to get from three to five automobile loads to go to the twin cities exposition week. From Mora, Kanabec county, 150 cars are expected to carry visitors to the dairy show. Assurances of large delegations from the whole section were given Colonel Skinner of Mora, Friday, when he attended the Kanabec county fair.

Clark, South Dakota, about 50 miles southeast of Aberdeen, will send a good-sized delegation, and Redfield, in the northwestern part of the state, will also be represented.

George P. Grout, Nickerson, Minn., and S. Allen Aldrich of Carleton, are now working on arrangements for a delegation of 100 cars from Carlton county, and delegations from Duluth and St. Louis counties.

Possibilities of special trains being run to four points in North Dakota, and culminating in special trains to the National Dairy exposition was expressed in a letter from the Agriculture college of that state. There are also prospects for arranging for a train from Wood county, Wis., together with other trains from several of the counties in the central part of the state.

According to John Bower of Lakeland, Minn., who has been in Chisago county recently working in conjunction with the extension department of the University of Minnesota Farm school, every person who was at the 1921 show will be here in October for the 1922 exposition. "Every one who was down there last year is going again this year," he said. "They told me that they had learned much about dairying from their first visit, and were coming back to learn more."

Reports are coming into the association's offices every day telling of similar activities in other communities of the northwest.

Mexico Turning to Baseball.

As an anachronism perpetrated from backward peoples of southwestern Europe, a pastime including cruelty and a misleading expression of national tastes and inclination, bull-fighting in Mexico has long given offense to many natives as well as foreigners, but to wipe out what the cultivated regard as a disgrace has seemed peculiarly difficult.

Mr. Hays' formula for destroying movies of evil tendency is to substitute movies of such appeal, as well as irreproachable quality, as to end the vogue of the former. Can the hold of the bull-fight on some classes of Mexicans be loosened by substituting something else of undoubted but unobjectionable thrill? If so, can the baseball thrill do effective service as such substitute? Many hope so and American Consul James B. Stewart, at Chihuahua, believes so.

The increasing popularity on the other side of the Rio Grande of the sport which is all absorbing in its paramourcy on this side is made by him the subject of an official report to the state department. From the description he gives of a recent Sunday game at that place he must have been present in the grand stand in person, perhaps lending the consular voice to objections for the umpire and cheers for double plays. He says the game was witnessed by nearly 5,000 persons, which for a town of that population is an attendance to be surveyed with satisfaction by the box office. "Seldom, if ever," he says, "was such a number ever recorded at the local ring in the palmy days of bull-fighting.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world—including the fellows who think they are always getting the worst of it.

Making 20 Years of Racing Serve Car Owners Today

In the early days of automobile contests, Barney Oldfield—out to win every race—studied tires. His consistent success led other drivers to ask for tires constructed to his specifications. Twenty years of road and track victories—with a steady and increasing demand for tires as he built them—convinced Barney Oldfield that these speed tests pointed the way to a better tire for everyday use. The enthusiastic reception of Oldfield Cords by the public proved he was right. Scores of the most prominent dealers in the country—and many thousands of car owners, experienced in the use of tires—bear witness by their decided preference that Oldfield is doing a bigger and better job of tire making. This volume, handled in an effective way in every phase of manufac-
