Among the very desirable things that manufacturers of patent medicines, san-cules, liquors etc., wish for, is a non-refillable bottle and any one who can get up one which is practicable and cheap, has a fortune assured. Mr. R. Hearns, of St. Paul, has secured a patent on what is believed by those who have seen it to be just such a bottle. He, like most inventors, however, has not the amount of cash to properly manufacture the bottle and offers the following plan to raise the same which he is presenting to our citizens and which they will do well to investigate.

He has two models made in metal which show the workings of the bottle, but in order that its practicability may be fully demonstrated he wishes to have made of glass. To do this will entail considerable expense and for the purpose of raising the money necessary for this purpose he has capitalized at $3,000 representing 3000 shares at $1.00 each. He proposes to sell $500 worth of interest certificates to those who wish to get an interest in the patent. Those who buy these interest certificates will have a voice in the manner of disposing of the patent and their remuneration will be on the basis of the capitalization.

The certificates may be purchased of R. Hearns 413 Aurora ave., of T. H. Lyles No. 20 E. 4th st. Mr. Lyles is to be custodian of the money until the amount needed for making the bottles etc. is fully raised. A model of the bottle may be seen at Dillingham & Pettis' barber shop on Minnesota near Fifth.

Any information as to the patent may be learned from Patent Attorney T. D. Merwin Esq., 910 Pioneer Press Building.

W. FOREST COZART.

Head Waiter at the Merchants Hotel Author of the Hotel Waiters Manual.

Among the wide awake progressive men who have recently made their homes in St. Paul must be numbered Mr. W. Forest Cozart, head waiter of the Merchants Hotel. He has made his profession a close study and has written a number of articles which have appeared in print on the same. He has at last compiled his thoughts and experiences in book form entitled "Hotel Waiters Manual."

The Manual is a book treating of hotel waiting in all of its branches, telling "how to become a good waiter," "how to get up and serve an order," "how to set a banquet table," "how to serve a banquet," "how to serve wines," "general instructions to waiters," "final remarks to young head waiters," "rules and regulations for waiters," and an amount of comedy "Ole Olson." This was the first of the so-called Anglo-Swedish plays which emanated from the brain of that talented author-actor, Gus Heege and it has enjoyed an almost continuous reign of success. It is a play with a plot containing a love interest, but its main success in this to the numerous comedy features. The Swedish character is not burlesqued in the play but is treated in a legitimate manner and is offered as a distinct comedy characterization. Music is one of the principal ingredients of the piece and many specialties are also introduced. "Ole Olson" needs but very little introduction to the theatre goers of the Twin Cities. It has been seen here before and has enjoyed remarkable success. It comes this season heralded as being up to date in every particular and in the hands of the best company ever seen in the play.

There is one great feature with the production which has not failed to prove a strong drawing card and that is the engagement of that well known bicycle rider, John Lawson, better known as the "Terrible Swede" who has records up on records to be one of the fastest cyclists in the country. Mr. Lawson's appearance in this play consists in a wonderful invention in theatrical realism, a great bicycle contest in which Lawson rides against all comers in his attempt to lower his own and the world's record in one mile. Local riders of stellar reputation are invited to contest with Mr. Lawson in these marvelous speed demonstrations.
