Both teams play good ball, and owing to the prominence of the members of the teams in political and business circles, the game promises to be very attractive. Mr. Lennon will umpire, and Gov. Van Sant has promised to be present and pitch the first ball. Tickets of admission 25 cents.

"PRINCESS CHIC." At the Grand Opera House.

While "The Princess Chic," which comes to the Grand next week appears equally to the skilled musical and the ordinary theatergoer who that the presentation of this Opera Comique is, in every city, a big social event. During the engagement of this company in San Francisco last spring, the Bulletin said, "It is merely worth to be amused, it seems the best Comique Opera that has pleased the butterflies of fashion here for a long while. It is full of charming lyrics." While the cast of "The Princess Chic" contains among other well known artists, Vera Michelena, George Thomas, Lyman Wheeler, Forrest Adel, Stoneman, Dorothy Williams and Julia Coles, still as Hamlet says: "The play's the thing." Julian Edwards is said to have composed a score which is a credit to American genius, but the libretto with its strong comic and dramatic interest, is the work of the author.

A chorus of fifty trained voices blends in the ensembles of "Princess Chic," and it has been said that this chorus is drilled into stunning efficiency, singing with delightful voices and snap throughout.

LIVED A CENTURY. Iowa Woman Dies at the Age of One Hundred and One Years.

Clinton, Iowa, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Louisa Bugg, aged 101 years, is dead at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Carroll, in this city. In many respects she had a wonderful career. She was born in slavery in Mullenburg, Ky., March 18, 1802. Her early life was spent in slavery in her native state and in Tennessee. She was married to Hiram Bugg when quite young. In some manner, never explained, Bugg purchased his freedom. He then went to work and commenced a long and hard struggle to earn enough money to purchase his slave wife. However, he finally succeeded, and in Maury county, Tenn., in 1847, he paid her master $1,000 and secured her freedom. They immediately came North, reaching Clinton in 1859. Bugg, although ignorant, as far as book learning was concerned, was naturally a man of intelligence, and he prospered here. He opened up a restaurant and boarding house, and for a number of years conducted the finest establishment of the kind in the city. He died several years ago. Up to a few weeks ago Mrs. Bugg enjoyed good health and retained her faculties to a wonderful degree. She distinctly remembered the War of 1812 and other events of eighty or ninety years ago.

A HEINOUS CRIME. James Hayes is Arrested on a Serious Charge—Afro-Americans Place Themselves on Record.

Last Monday the Twin Cities were thrown into an intense state of excitement by the accounts published in the daily papers of the committing of a heinous crime in Minneapolis by a man named James Hayes, a black man, and the feeling that there would be some bold violence. The history of the case is about as follows: Hayes is accused of entering the home of Mrs. J. P. Steele, No. 1414 Sixth street south, early Monday morning by climbing on a shed and entering a second story window by cutting away the screen. He then chloroformed, or attempted to chloroform Ruby Steele, a 14-year-old girl. She was awakened when a handker-

William R. Morris acted as chairman, and the resolution adopted was: "That the Afro-American citizens of the city of Minneapolis have read with sorrow, regret and humiliation of a dastardly attempt to commit a heinous crime in our city, and as the crime has been charged upon a member of the race, they wish to state in official form that they deplore with unexpressed horror the brutal crime, and condemn it with all earnestness and as law-abiding citizens, offer their services, and, if necessary, require, their lives, in running down and putting into the strong arms of the law any person guilty of, or any person charged with such a crime." The resolution was signed by the committee, who were Ed. Hammond, J. G. Armstrong, John W. Hooper, John L. Lead, W. C. Jeffrey.

chief was placed over her face and screamed so loudly her mother was attracted to the room, where she found the man attempting to carry the girl through the window. The mother caught the girl by the foot and held on until the man hit her a stunning blow, knocking her down. He then took the girl out on the roof and threw her to the ground, a few feet below. He then took the girl through a corn patch to the barn where he was employed, where he sat down on the floor and held his hand over her mouth to keep her from screaming and choked her. At this juncture a man who had been called by Mrs. Steele, approached and Hayes ran away. Detectives were called and a watch was kept for Hayes, and shortly before 6 o'clock he attempted to enter the barn, when he was confronted by the officers and arrested. Hayes was arraigned in the police court Wednesday morning and when he was confronted by the girl, who is said to be about fourteen years of age, she was far more affected than his body. Hayes did not appear to be affected at all by the identification, but walked calmly away with the officers. His hearing was set for Thursday, but continued until today, because of the absence of Attorney F. L. McGhee, who with J. L. Curtis, Esq., have been retained to defend him.
