On last Saturday afternoon little Margaret Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Adams, celebrated the tenth anniversary of her birthday. She had issued dainty little invitations to twice ten of her little girl friends, and seventeen of them were present, making a veritable Adamless Eden, at least, so far as the guests were concerned. The little ladies began to gather promptly at 4 o'clock, and when all had arrived enjoyed themselves in childish and girlish games. A W. A. was present and rendered a piano solo. Adina Adams gave an illustrated poem, Gertrude and Carrie Howard sang a duet and the little hostess gave a recitation. They then repaired to the dining room, and when all were gathered around the beautifully decorated table they formed a very pretty picture. The centerpiece was a large vase of chrysanthemums and carnations, and at each plate was a red carnation boutonniere, a German supper and a pretty souvenir box of imported violet pastilles tied with violet ribbon holding the place card. A tempting repast of chicken salad, finger rolls, cocoa, ice cream, orange-ade, cake, oranges, apples, bananas, nuts and candy was enjoyed while a graphophone concert was furnished. When the little guests had taken their places at the table, the little hostess made a little speech as follows:

"My dear little friends, some of you who are present must remember that my papa and mamma gave my sister Adina a birthday party last year when she was ten years old. They then promised to give me one on the tenth anniversary of my birthday, and I have been looking forward to it ever since. At last the long-looked-for day has come, and I have invited you here to help me celebrate it with this little tea party. I thank you very much for the pretty presents you have brought, and though the Bible says it is more blessed to give than to receive, I do not see how you can enjoy giving them as much as I do in receiving them, and I thank you for them very, very much. I will try to keep them nice as long as I can, and your kindness will be recalled every time I see them. Now I hope you will all enjoy being here as much as I do in having you here and that this occasion will always be remembered with pleasure by you as it will be by me. Again I thank and welcome you."

Little Hattie Pettis was called upon to respond and said: "My Dear Margaret, I have been selected to respond to your kind words of welcome, and I assure you that we all feel that it is good to be here to help you celebrate your birthday, and while you must feel big, you must remember there are bigger folks than you. The presents we have given are merely slight tokens of our love and esteem for you, and we have enjoyed giving them very much. We have had a good time already and this beautiful well filled table gives ample evidence that there are all delighted to be here and wish you many happy returns of the day."

The party was chaperoned by Messdames H. Johnson, J. H. Dillingham and J. W. Milton.

The gifts presented were as follows: Thimble, Mildred Plummer; perfume, Ida Loomis; thimble, Alberta Bell; gloves, Olive Howard; perfume, Blanch Walker; handkerchief, Caroline Howard; sewing basket, Gladys Wright; vase, Ruth and Edna Lawrence; lamp, Ollie Beard; picture of unbanned babies, Hattie Pettis; book, Gertrude Howard; picture, "The Dancing Lesson," Ethel Gardner; jewel case, Henrietta Dunn; cup and saucer, Mary Vassar; cup and saucer, Florence Cunningham; vase, Willa Moore; cup and saucer, Mrs. Dillingham; cup and saucer and ten pennies, Mrs. Milton; Brownie Band, Adina, John and Elythella Adams; Buster Brown and Tige, Mr. Cyrus Field Adams.

After supper Prof. Weir furnished music for the little ones to dance, and all had a nice time until about 8 o'clock, when they went home delighted.

Those present were: Gladys Wright, Hattie Pettis, Ethel Gardner, Willa Moore, Blanch Walker, Ida Loomis, Ruth and Edna Lawrence, Ollie Beard, Mildred Plummer, Florence Cunningham, Carrie Howard, Mary Vassar, Alberta Bell, Gertrude Howard, Myrtle Allen, Henrietta Dunn, Olive Howard.
