E. P. WADE

The Most Widely Known Afro-American of the State, Gone to His Rest.

Mr. Edward P. Wade, who for the past 30 years has been a resident of St. Paul, died in the city hospital Wednesday evening from tuberculosis after an illness of long duration.

Mr. Wade was born in Lexington, Ky., and lived in New Orleans, Little Rock and other places, but finally made his home here. He was a born politician, and was never more happy than when dealing in politics. He held several political positions—clerk and judge of elections, delegate to all grades of conventions, was a member at times of city and county committees. Was postmaster of the House of Representatives one term, and was private messenger to five of Minnesota's governors, viz.: A. R. McGill, W. R. Merriam, Knute Nelson, D. M. Cough and John Lind.

He, unquestionably, was the most widely known of any Afro-American in Minnesota, and himself knew nearly every politician of any note in the state and nation.

He probably knew more state secrets than any other man in the state.

He was the pioneer Afro-American newspaper man of the state, having published "The Review" over a quarter of a century ago. He sold out to some white parties, and the paper is still being published here.

Since he got out of his political position, he has acted as representative of the Gazetteer and Guide of Buffalo, N. Y., and as solicitor and collector for the Virtue Printing Co.

He was about 60 years of age and married, though his wife has been an inmate of the Rochester asylum for several years.

He was not known to be a member of any church, but received the last rites in the Catholic church, and his funeral will be held at St. Peter Claver Catholic church on Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Lyles, director.

The deceased counted his friends by the thousands, all of whom will shed tears for his memory.

Requiescat in pace.

"THE BOY DETECTIVE."

The Next Attraction at the Grand Opera House.

"The Boy Detective," "Willie Live," and written by Chas. E. Blaney, comes to the Grand next week, with Lyle LaPine, the well-known St. Paul boy, in the role of Willie Live.

Special announcements of all sorts are due this extraordinary attraction, as it is conceded by all to be the most sumptuously mounted, engaging forty well-known, reputable actors and actresses, of all the popular-priced productions which this season are regaling the patrons of these playhouses.

From a scenic standpoint, it is marvelous and a most engaging outlay, some decidedly pretty stage pictures being shown, notable, the upper and lower deck of a ship at sea, and from which "Willie Live," the boy detective, manes his daring escape by leaping through the port hole, thus thwarting the villain in his attempts to get possession of incriminating evidence which "Willie Live" has. Too much credit cannot be given its organizers, popular, jovial "Willie Live" played by a comedian of well-known ability, and surrounding him in support, is a coterie of stage celebrities, who interpret the drama in a most engaging and intelligent manner.

As to the play, it is a detective story, with the main incidents dealing with a band of express thieves, who are finally run to earth by "Willie Live," "The Boy Detective." The author, Chas. E. Blaney, has given it a most interesting atmosphere, in which the audience breathes the fragrance of intermingled romance, adventure and thrilling escapades. An interesting story is told, one which holds the auditors spellbound, as it were, throughout. A bright vein of comedy is furnished. Specialties of a high order, well executed song and dance numbers, are also among the features.

CHILDREN TEETHING

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Some of the people to whom THE APPEAL is as regularly sent as it is issued—and that is every Saturday—act as though they are under no legal nor moral obligations to pay for it; when, as a matter of fact, they are under both. There is no law compelling any one to receive THE APPEAL, but there is law to compel any one to pay for it who receives it, upon the principle of law that one must pay for anything he receives. Ordering a paper discontinued does not pay any amount that may be due and unpaid, and the publisher has the right to continue to send his paper until whatever may be due for it is fully paid; then an order to discontinue must be obeyed. It is hoped that every one who reads this, that is indebted to the paper, will bring or send to the office the amount due. Every one who receives THE APPEAL is expected to pay for it.
