BUSH'S YACHT HIS COFFIN.

Scuttled at Sea With His Ashes, the Crew Reports.

Portland, Me.—A story which for novel features has few parallels is told by the crew of the schooner yacht Lydia, scuttled about ten miles off this port late in August, with the cremated body of her owner, James Freeman Bush, a wealthy paper manufacturer, resting on a table in the cabin. The sending of the handsome craft to her final anchorage with the ashes of Mr. Bush aboard was the result of a dying request made by him to his wife in a hospital here, where he had been operated on and where he died Aug. 24.

According to the story told by members of the crew and not denied by Mrs. Bush, the Lydia, aboard which Mr. Bush had spent a great deal of time in late years, left Portland late in August with all sail set and towing a motorboat. Mrs. Bush was aboard. So were two close friends of Mr. Bush. On a table in the cabin lay the ashes of the owner, Captain Frank M. Skolfield of Cundy's Harbor, who had sailed the vessel for Mr. Bush, was at the wheel. About ten miles off the port the vessel was broadside into the wind, the persons aboard were placed in the motorboat, and with an ax a hole was cut in the craft. Slowly she filled and sank to her grave.

CAN'T REFORM; WANTS TO DIE.

Youth, Arrested in St. Louis, Says He Will Commit Suicide.

St. Louis, Mo.—Sidney J. Pincus, twenty years old, who says he is the black sheep of a prominent New York family, is going to commit suicide the first time he has a chance because he is an habitual forger and can't reform. He told detectives this when they arrested him on a charge of trying to pass a forged check.

"It's no use trying to be good," Pincus said. "I have no resistance. I have no power to control myself when the impulse to do wrong seizes me. I am going to kill myself at the first opportunity."

Pincus says he left home when he was eighteen years old because he was bad and couldn't help it.

CONDUCTING INQUIRY INTO COST OF LIVING

President Orders Investigation of High Prices.

Washington.—An investigation into the reasons for the high cost of living which is nation wide in its scope has been going on quietly for some time at the direction of President Wilson.

Administration officials are devoting particular attention to marketing methods in an effort to get at the root of the matter. The greater part of the work has fallen on Secretary of Agriculture Houston and his department.

The problem of the high cost of living embraces two divisions, so far as the investigators are concerned. These are:

How to afford means to the farmer to increase the production of his land and how to lift the burden of the steadily increasing cost of food from the masses.

It is recognized by administration officials that scientific farming alone will not offer a solution of the problem, but that a study must be made of marketing facilities, organization and community effort in order that something effective may be done.

It is admitted that there is considerable doubt over the fact that indications point to a sharp rise in the price of foodstuffs during the coming winter. This is particularly the case with eggs and beef. The former, it has been said, will rise to 75 cents per dozen, while warnings have been issued that beef may reach the dollar mark before long.

Secretary Houston has formulated a list of questions which are being sent to farmers in all parts of the country. These questions deal with ownership, tenancy and credits, and from the answers Secretary Houston hopes to build the groundwork for his investigation.

IN RUNAWAY WITH DYNAMITE.

Yellow Jackets Attack Horses, and Explosive is Tossed About.

Wilkesbarre Pa.—While driving a team of horses attached to a wagon which contained 1,000 pounds of dynamite, George Willis had an exciting experience when a swarm of yellow jackets attacked the horses and they ran away.

For three miles the team dragged the wagon, dynamite and driver over a rough road. Willis realized that if he jumped the team and wagon would surely be blown to pieces, and he decided to take a chance and keep them in the road.

Several times the wagon nearly upset, and the dynamite was tossed about. The horses stopped when exhausted.

Another Comet Located.

London.—The fourth comet of the year was discovered by Senor Delarain, assistant in the La Plata observatory in Argentina. It is of the tenth magnitude and is probably identical with Westphal's comet of 1832, which is due and with which Metcalf's comet, which was discovered a month ago, was mistakenly identified.

FIELDING COMBS.

Celebrates the Seventieth Anniversary of His Birthday.

The Good Book says, the span of a man's life is three score years and ten, and as Mr. Fielding Combs had reached that period in his early existence on last Wednesday, his children, relatives and friends gathered at residences of his sons-in-law Messrs J. W. Kelly and O. Lobbins, living side by side on St. Anthony avenue to celebrate the great event.

The guests, principally the "old settlers," gathered at the residence of Mr. Kelly, which was very tastefully and appropriately decorated. On the dinner table was a very large square cake on which the figures "70" was outlined with tiny wax candles in little rose holders.

The house was packed to overflowing and the gathering was most unique, there being more old timers present than on any occasion for many years.

After the crowd got too large for comfort the main portion of the guests repaired to the residence of Mr. Lobbins, next door, where they, as the Hon. Bardwell Sloat says, in the "Almighty Dollar," had a H. O. T. (high old time).

It had been intended that Mr. W. A. Hilyard was to act as master of ceremonies, but owing to the sudden illness of his wife he was unable to be present and his place was very ably filled by Mr. G. W. James.

After the smoke had been sorter pushed aside, Mr. James made a few appropriate remarks and called upon Mr. A. H. Drake of Stillwater, who made a few remarks. He was followed by Mr. J. B. Johnson, Mr. W. T. Francis, Mr. T. H. Lyles, Mr. J. H. Loomis, Mr. Chas. H. Miller, all of whom made splendid and appropriate speeches, full of pleasing reminiscences of the happy days of Mr. John Combs.

He Hickman Sr. was then introduced, he spoke at some length and at the close of his talk presented to guest of honor a handsome "cellerette" with its accompanying equipments among which was a brass tray upon which was engraved the names of the donors as follows: T. H. Lyles, Allen French, J. P. Anderson, W. A. Hilyard, E. O. James, Wm. Williams, Geo. Duckett, A. H. Drake, T. R. Hickman, K. S. Jones, W. T. Francis, John Clark, W. R. Godette, T. J. Stark, F. D. Parker, Wm. Stevens, Jas. Lindsay, G. W. James, Chas. Morgan, C. Waldon, Jas. Dover, J. H. Hickman, B. R. Durant, C. H. Miller, J. H. Loomis, Chas. Shepard, W. J. Gardner, J. B. Johnson, Wm. Liggins, J. H. Daubins, Thos. Bush.

As only those who had lived in the state for 30 years were eligible as speakers no more were called upon and the guest of honor made his response, which like all the speeches that preceded it was a very apropos.

The ladies who had been left in the other house had a very good time among themselves, but they did not like it one bit, because they were shut out from the old stage.

Mr. Combs was also presented a number of other useful and valuable gifts.

Of course elegant refreshments were served in abundance. The entire occasion was most highly enjoyed and the guests at a late hour, left wishing the 70 years young man many happy returns of the day.
