Professor Charles Frederick Chandler of Columbia University, a well known chemist, declares that beer is the best brain food.

In a recent address he said: "Beer is a beverage prepared from barley, water, hops and yeast. Beer is food. American beer contains 6 per cent solid food, only 3 to 4 per cent alcohol and also lecithin, which is real brain food.

Beer and bread both made from cereals; bread with water and is solid; beer with more water and is liquid. Yeast converts both into palatable and readily digested food. Both contain alcohol. Beer is not adulterated. If the prohibitionists drive beer from the household they will deprive a large part of the population of a wholesome article of food."
