

THE WAR IN TENNESSEE.

The State of Tennessee and Tennessee have been made one vast battle-ground by this war. Every county and every township has been the scene of some fierce struggle, or the theatre of some bloody drama, whose memory will live for generations. Grass-grown roads, where rude guide-posts point ways no traveler ever went; sleepy hamlets, unknown to the census-taker and the tax-gatherer, where the spilling-blood and the mail-bag never were seen; lonely log meeting houses, where some ignorant pastor doled out to a scanty crowd of more ignorant "white trash" weekly portions of "whole hog" admonition; and—the country newspaper, have become world-famous. Distant lands have heard of them; and distant times will speak of them, and romance and poetry will couple their names with heroic deeds, and make them holy places in our nation's history.

At every station on the Nashville road the traveler sees indications of the fierceness of this struggle, and evidences of a valor worthy of the most heroic ages. At Mansfieldville, on a little mound overlooking the Green River, is a low earthwork encircled by a shallow ditch, and inclosing less than an acre of ground. There Col. Wilder and a small band of raw Indiana soldiers arrested the northward march of Bragg's army for 40 hours.

"It is the whole of Bragg's force! It is madness to resist! We must surrender!" exclaimed one of Wilder's lieutenants.

"I know we must surrender. But we'll do it when they make us," replied the brave commander.

Five thousand Rebel muskets belched fire upon them during six hours, but crouching behind those mud walls that handful of brave men sent back a storm of hail that mowed down the advancing ranks as the scythe mows down the summer grass.

"Surrender at once, or we'll give no quarter," was borne to them by the flag of truce.

"We ask none," was the sole reply, and the work of death went on.

Fifteen thousand men, six deep, their bayonets gleaming in the sun, then enveloped that little hill, and again and again, within thirty feet of that frail breastwork, poured in their deadly volleys, but at each discharge clear and loud rang out the words: "Aim low, boys. Let every shot tell!" and broken and decimated the assailants fell back to their quarters.

At sunrise of the third day another flag approached. "You are brave men.—We would spare your lives. We have posted cannon at every angle. We can level your intrenchments in half an hour!"

"I do not believe it: convince me of it and I'll surrender."

They led him out. He saw the guns and surrendered.

"If he had held out another half hour I should not be here to tell you of it," said the quiet young corporal who told me the story.

Into a stagnant pool at the left of the fort, 850 mangled rebels were thrown at nightfall. Seven hundred now lie buried in the woods near by. How great a graveyard for so small a town.

A wise father once endeavored to teach his son the nature of an inference.

"Thus for example," said he, "when we read that the deluge covered the whole earth, the inference is that the inhabitants thereof were all drowned. Now Naaman, the Syrian, was commanded to wash seven times in the Jordan—what inference would you draw from that?"

"That he must have been very dirty!" was the precocious lad's answer.

THE PLATFORM.—The following is correctly said to be the "genuine Copperhead platform": "The Union as it is, under Buchanan, the Constitution as it is, under Jeff. Davis."

PROF. O. J. WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.

This astonishing preparation turns the Hair back to its original color, after having become gray, and reinstates it in all its original health, luster, softness, and beauty—removes all Dandruff from the Scalp, and all unpleasant itching. It will also cure Cutaneous Eruptions, such as Scald-head, Tetter, &c., and hence, creates a perfectly healthy condition of the Scalp, by acting as a Stimulant and Tonic to the organs supplying the coloring matter to the Hair, completely restoring them to their original vigor and health—thus preventing all tendency to become gray.

It also prevents the Hair from becoming unhealthily and falling off, and causes it to grow and thickened where it is gone, by reuniting the organs necessary to supply nutriment and coloring matter.

Thousands of Soldiers in the Army have testified to the above, who had become gray and lost their Hair by sickness, change of climate, and inattention, while performing camp duty.

As a Restorative and Dressing, it has no equal.
