

BROOKSVILLE.

Rev. E. C. Lee has been away all the week, holding a meeting near Birmingham.

Mr. J. L. S. Peterson is in Battle Creek undergoing treatment. We hope he will soon be entirely restored.

Mrs. Fair and children, of Louisville, Miss., spent several days recently with relatives here. Miss Dorsey Jamison, her sister, who teaches near Crawford, met her here.

Mr. T. J. Hopkins, of Meridian, has been on a visit to his uncles, Messrs. John and Will Bell.

Miss Sasser, of Brookhaven, has been a guest at the home of her brother, Rev. T. L. Sasser this week.

Mrs. Annie McMorries and Mrs. Smith Peterson went as delegates to the U. D. C. convention in Vicksburg.

Miss Ruby Barnhill, of the I. I. & C., has been at home on account of the illness of her mother.

Mrs. Murray Robertson, of Deerbrook, returned Wednesday evening from a stay in Meridian.

Mrs. Dale Shaver and the two Mrs. Walcutts were shopping in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Lawrence McRaven, of Meridian, has been a guest at Mrs. T. D. St. John's most of the week.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the memorial services at Soule Chapel Thursday. Mr. Joe Stewart, of West Point, preached the sermon.

Dr. and Mrs. Barclay, of Macon, were in town Thursday.

Services are still being held at the Methodist church by the Rev. Mr. Freeman. He is giving the church a very strong, earnest gospel.

Miss Mary Agnes Jacoway, of the I. I. & C., is at home.

Mesdames Boykin and Williams of West Noxubee, were on our streets the first of the week.

The Woman's Missionary society met with Mrs. Glenn at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Wilkins Monday afternoon.

Gholson Items.

The rain last week was a great benefit to the farmers here.

Mr. R. E. McGraw made a business trip to Shuqualak this week.

We had two very quiet weddings last week. Mr. D. J. Shepherd and Miss Jessie Cotton, Mr. Oscar Vernon and Miss Bessie Maxey, also of this neighborhood.

We want to ask two more good men, such as Hon. Sam Vernon and Jeff Price, to announce for representative.

The young folks attended memorial at Kellis Store.

The Vicksburg Herald seems to be going it alone in its crusade against the lawless element of that city, but it is putting up a noble fight. It does seem like with the U. S. marshal residing in that city, the assistant U. S. district attorney living only 45 miles away, a good sheriff and diligent police force within the limits that blind tigers could be apprehended without being pointed out by a newspaper. But Vicksburg has always been different from other Mississippi towns—it should be detached from the Magnolia State and ceded to Louisiana. As this is election year the people of Vicksburg should see to it that either the laws are enforced or a new set of officials are voted in. The Herald should be upheld in the stand it has taken to suppress these flagrant violations, and will be by the good citizens of that city.

The Mission of Flowers.

BY MRS. J. E. HUBBARD

Some one has said: 'Tis a mistaken fancy of the poet, that Full many a flower is born to blush unseen and waste its sweetness on the desert air. Myriads of beautiful birds and insects revel in the sweetness of the floral creation; besides the pharmacist draws many of the balms that ease and quiet the ills of physical life from the floral creation. Flowers impress us with the greatness and loving care of Him who scatters them abroad in beauty and profusion and who said, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Flowers are appropriate upon our altars especially at Easter-tide, when the lily waving in triumphant purity of beauty, commemorates our risen Lord.

Flowers cheer the sick room. Languishers upon beds of suffering, weary with the monotony of indoor life, are refreshed by their beauty and fragrance. The breath of flowers recalls scenes and faces of by gone days. "A grove where soft magnolias blow," or the face of a dear one in whose icy hand you last saw a tube rose or a jessamine.

Flowers are treasured by tourists, a spray of Arbutus off Look-out mountain, a daisy plucked from Chickamauga Park are retained as souvenirs.

On one occasion the late Emperor of Brazil, Don Pedro, when visiting the United States, was invited to see the children of an orphan asylum in Washington City, and upon taking leave of them, stepped back a few spaces to cull from a growing plant a memento of his pleasant visit.

Memorial Day in the south, children scatter flowers and sing: Under the sod and under the clay, Here sleep the blue and there sleep the gray. Come sisters come, let's scatter anew Wreaths for the gray and wreaths for the blue.

These wreaths are immortelles that bind in our hearts memories of the heroic dead. Flowers are effective for festal boards—a chrysanthemum wedding or a violet tea; while the beauty of the plainest board is enhanced by them.

It is stated by those who knew socially, the distinguished southern novelist, Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson, that she always placed upon her dining table a vase of fresh flowers.

The rose-crowned "Queen O' the May," and the bridal wreath of orange blossoms indicate the prominence of floral decorations in feminine attire, to say nothing of the boutonniere so dear to the heart of the Dude. From time immemorial flowers have been regarded as emblems of certain characteristics they are therefore convenient and significant messengers for sentimental people. The bashful school boy scribbles upon his slate of roses and violets, and later expends his well earned coin for a bunch of violets; or a bouquet of half blown roses which he dispatches with the lines:

Blushing as a rose
Into lovely womanhood
O; may thy life's repose
Be sweet as thou art good.

Flowers are synonyms of youth and joy. Victor Hugo in his advanced years when writing of the immortality of the soul has this beautiful simile: "Winter is on my head, but eternal spring is in my heart, I breathe at this hour the fragrance of the lilacs, the violets, and the roses as at twenty years."

Flowers, wherefore do you bloom?
We strew thy pathway to the tomb.

1863 AND SINCE.

One Sunday eve long time ago,
A dinner was given some soldiers
about four,

With others from Jackson, I was sent,
To stay in Macon and be content.

Six weeks or more I think I stayed
And learned to love one sweet bright maid;

I learned to love some Maconites,
Who attended us both day and night.

I wish I could recall to mind
Some families who were so very kind,

Uncle Daniel Dupree I know was one,
Uncle Hamp Jerrigan another noble son,

With their good wives, they came to cheer,
And bring us things we thought so dear.

Ten thousand times I've wanted to say,
We'll meet in Heaven some future day.

Where wars and trouble will be no more
Upon that bright and happy shore.

I did not know nor think it then,
Some Noxubee girl I would sometime win,

And next to God I'd loved her more
Than all the girls I'd seen before.

The mother of our children dear,
Who taking now such special care,

The ones at home or those abroad,
Are glad that we both love the Lord,

They write and say don't over do,
For we will sure take care of you.

The finest property I ever saw,
Was good kind children who would not jaw,

Their better halves I know is kind,
And then I think Oh never mind,

Grand children too how neat and sweet,
Would they lay down at the Saviour's feet,

Who loved the world so, though rich
or poor,

We would be with Christ for ever more.

Negro Lynched.

Early Wednesday morning a negro passing over the bridge across the ravine, a few hundred yards southwest of Gholson, found lying near the center of the bridge, the dead body of a negro man about 25 years old. The body was that of Jabe Gathright and a mob had shot him to death the night before.

Monday morning the neighborhood on the Summerville and Shuqualak road about six miles west of Shuqualak, discovered that this negro had sent one or two indecent letters to a young white girl of the neighborhood and a crowd of men captured the negro. This was in the morning or near mid-day. He was carried to Gholson and turned over to Justice Jarvis, an affidavit made against him for sending an obscene letter, the only technical offense he was guilty of. A mob was expected that night, but none came.

The idea seemed to grow among the white people, however, that the law provided no adequate remedy for the offense, a short term in jail or on the road being the only penalty.

The prisoner was confined Tuesday night in a negro cabin on the premises of Justice Jarvis and two white men guarded him. About midnight the door of the cabin was suddenly pushed open and masked armed men stepped in, covering with guns and pistols the guards and their prisoner. They took the negro away, warning the guards under penalty of death to stay in the cabin, and in a quarter of an hour pistol and gun shots were heard. The body was not discovered until the next morning.

An inquest was held by Justice Jarvis. The body was found riddled with bullets and buck shot. He had not been beat up or mistreated otherwise—simply very thoroughly killed. The jury brought in a verdict of death by persons unknown under circumstances not discoverable by the jury.

Mob law is always much to be deplored and in most cases is much to be condemned. But under the circumstances of this case, where the scandal of the negro's conduct would have been made public if a trial was had and the law afforded no adequate punishment, lynch law is as excusable as it can be.

The Pleasure of Work.

Hard work by itself, under reasonable conditions and hygienic surroundings, and disassociated from worry, is one of the greatest blessings of the race. Man was made for work; his muscles, his heart, his lungs, his brain, eye and his nerves, too, were given him for service, and the fullest and most perfect development of the human body and all its functions comes through their natural use and activities. We get on best, both physically and mentally, yes, and morally and spiritually, too, when our time is fully occupied with work or play.

Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, love, and mercy on the hearts of thousands you come into contact with year after year. Good deeds will shine as the stars of heaven.—Selected.
