ANADARKO ITEMS.

Everything is lovely about this Agency, and the crops look well.

Jim Jones has returned from Ft. Smith, and is much under the weather. He goes back again sometime in August, unless he comes out all right.

While a Wichita school boy was having a circus performance on our new suspension bridge, he fell overboard, and in consequence will not likely perform there again soon.

Wm. G. Williams will start on about the 14th inst. for Denison, Texas, in company with his wife. They are going after their two daughters, who have been same time at school at Denison.

James Britton is still in the employ of W. L. Williams, and is still breaking all the wild horses he can find. James is a good one, and does not care how much they buck—as long as he is not on them.

S. H. Deer is building a new house on his place ten miles from the Agency, on the new road to Ft. Reno. T. A. Paley is still on the place in charge of the cattle, and is furnishing the people of this locality all the good butter they want.

From our regular correspondent.

Mrs. H. R. Brown left a few days ago for Chicago, Illinois.

Frank Watson, formerly cattle inspector at this place paid a short visit this week.

Miss Jennie Bates and Miss Molne have been quite sick, but are now on duty again.

The buggies are getting quite numerous here, but for some reason they do not cause many marriages.

Mrs. W. H. Doty's health has been very bad ever since her arrival here. It is to be hoped it will improve soon.

All the Indian freight for this Agency is in for this year; the last train of wagons unloaded at the commissary last Monday.

Work on the wagon bridge has stopped on account of high water, but Mr. O. G. Brown informs us it will be all ready to put in by the time the river goes down.

The recent rains raised the Washita river higher than it has been for three years. The suspension bridge was well patronized, and Anadarko could not do without it.

It is whispered around that Mr. Longstaff was to be back here soon to re-open the telegraph office. Mr. L. seems to be anxious to get back here. There certainly seems some attraction here for him.

Agent Hunt and Dudley P. Brown have returned from Ft. Smith. Mr. James N. Jones' trial was postponed until the August term of court, and he was released on bail. His many friends at this place are glad to welcome him back again.
