When she was six years o'd, her father and mother died, leaving her all little helpless creature, without a friend in the world. Margery had not the least idea what was to become of her. She had cried because of her forlorn condition until her heart and oyes had ached. She cried so bitterly that her grief had appealed to the sympathies of old Dr. Delving, the Principal of the Seminary and he had taken her home with him, promising that if she was a good girl he would educate her and give her a home.

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused and to meet the protestations which have been made. The doctor was cured four years ago and is real and attenting to his professional duties to-day. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattlemore in the community is beyond question, and the statements they make cannot for a moment be doubted. Dr. Henion's experience shows that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, and that it can be cured.
