CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, it is said, has just received a letter from Paul Hartsch, a rich planter of the United States of Colombia, in which the foreigner says he is suffering from an incurable ailment, and that in his will he leaves to Mr. Dewey one-half of his estate, which is valued at $2,000,000. This is in return for $500 which Mr. Dewey had given him eight years ago, which was to develop an invention for crushing sugar cane.

It is proposed to open the Passion Play at Eboroda, the open air theater and garden on the Hudson at which the spectacle of "Solomon" has been running all summer. This recalls the tornado of outraged public sentiment which saluted Morse's attempt to produce the sacred drama again in New York in 1882. He had costumes and scenery prepared, but was not permitted to use them, and now the Eboroda management has purchased them.

In the last expedition against the Dahomeans the French army was accompanied by a missionary priest, the Abbé Wathélet. He was almost a giant in size and a never ceasing smoker, his capacious pockets were always packed with cigars. The soldiers had little tobacco and often applied to the abbe. He was always generous but made it a condition that in return for the cigar the priest should do some valiant deed. The priest died in France, with Gen. Dodds and died there last month.

The statue of Abraham Lincoln, erected as a memorial to the Scotch-American soldiers of the American civil war, was unveiled at Edinburgh in the presence of the municipal authorities, many distinguished guests, a number of American officers and the newly appointed Mayor of Edinburgh. The statue is of bronze, stands on a base of polished red granite. Upon the base sits a freed slave in bronze his face turned to Lincoln, who holds in his right hand the emancipation proclamation.

For many years two old people lived in a Paris lodging house. The old woman died and the old man, who the landlord decided not to report her death, but to continue to draw from the poor law board, the allowance of 6 francs a month, which the old woman had received. Every month they divided the spoils of the landlord taking the larger share. The landlord was discovered and the old man acquitted because he had used some of the money in paying the dead woman's debts.

SOUTHERN CYCLONE.

Several Tornado at Savannah, Ga.—Forty Persons Reported Killed and Great Property Loss.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 29.—Forty persons are reported killed in a cyclone at Savannah, Ga., and damage is reported to the amount of $10,000,000. Wires are down and passengers are at present unobtainable. The storm also worked havoc from Florida to South Carolina.

A special to the Courier-Journal from Savannah, Ga., says: Almost on the anniversary of the great hurricane of 1851, Savannah was swept last night by one of the severest storms it has ever known. The storm, which had been predicted by the weather bureau for several days, began early in the afternoon and increased from then on until it reached the climax between 11 and 12 o'clock last night, having blown for eight hours in a terrific hurricane. It began raining at 10 o'clock, but only in gusts. After the first fall it ceased and did not begin again until the afternoon. Then the work of destruction began and lasted until the storm had spent its force at midnight. All the wharves about the river and the wharves of 1851, Savannah was swept last night by one of the severest storms it has ever known.

The ruin at quarantine is immeasurable. Nothing is standing where one of the finest stations on the south Atlantic was twenty-four hours ago, except the doctor's house, and how this light revealed a scene of wreck and ruin that surpassed that of the great hurricane of 1851.

NEW YORK STRUCK.

Downing of the Great Storm in the Vicinity of the Metropolis.

CONY ISLAND ALMOST A WRECK.

All the Coneypeny Tramway Washed Out to Sea—Row of a New York. Homes Blown Down—Very Much in Peril.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The hurricane from the south did much damage here. An electric wire that had been loosened by the storm fell in the street. Two monster homes owned by a brewing company were standing directly under the wire and it fell fairly across their backs. Both animals were instantly killed. At 6:15 the wind lifted a part of the roof of the second-story brick house of John Buckner, in Brooklyn.

The building was swept away into houses that stood in a row on Cony Island. These houses, not being quite finished, were not occupied. At Grattan street four four-story houses that were going up were lifted from their foundations.

Along Cony Island everything has been completely wiped away and the roofs of many buildings have been lifted off and carried blocks away. On Grattan street the world's fair grounds, the building where the Italian Indians were sleeping was blown down. The little frame structure began to rock at 3:30 o'clock, and the Indians, terribly frightened after last week's falling out on the beach, and other things, fled in all directions. The building fell at 4 o'clock, but there was no one in it at the time.

The big awning of a hotel on Sea Beach Palace walk was blown down at 4 o'clock, which Charles Barlow, the manager, was standing under. The awning had four ribs broken and suffered from several scalp wounds. Along the beach all the other catch-penny stands were blown down. Electric and gas lines were broken by the wind. The gaslight globes have been blown from their sockets and large canvas awnings and flags have been torn into ribbons.

The southeast corner of the roof of the Seabright Palace hotel has been torn away. The roof of the building was blown away in several places. The fence around Pain's fireworks inclosure has been blown down and the long roof of Swigert's building on Jones avenue was swept off and blown into the water. The big building of the Cony Island Athletic club was on the water's edge and rocked for hours yesterday morning, while the heavy wind blew in windows and shattered the glass in pieces on the floor.

The Marine railway, which carries the boats to the water, was blown down. The heavy wind blew in windows and shattered the glass in pieces on the floor. The boats, tobagans and other amusements were unable to stand the heavy pressure of the tornado and fell.

The cars on the Brighton Elevated and the Marine railway were not running on account of the storm. The telegraph and telephone wires were down, and it was very hard to communicate with people in the city. The people are waiting patiently for the return of the tide, when they expect the storm will abate.

The Robert Garrett, the largest of the ferry boats of the Staten Island Rapid Transit line, had a rough time coming on an early trip to this city. The boat was blown by the wind at about 4:50 o'clock. At that time the wind was blowing a hurricane and the crew hesitated to go ahead. The fury with which the water beat against the men's side of the boat, threatened to sweep it off the floor of the cabin, which was made of heavy pine, soon yielded to the waves and one by one the boards loosened and were torn up. The rain was falling heavily and the floor of the cabin was soon under water. The boat was blown down and the sound of falling glass after the floors of the cabin had been torn up only added to their terror. Notwithstanding the danger, the boat proceeded on her way to the slip at the foot of Whitehall street, where the belated Staten Islanders were landed. The Garrett, without taking any passengers, returned to St. George, where she is now laid up.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

George Withers and Five Companions Meet Death in Lake Champlain.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—George P. Withers, of Port Henry, and six young companions, who were sailing on Withers's yacht, the Alpha, were capsized in Lake Champlain at 1 o'clock yesterday. Withers and five of the boys were drowned. All were of Port Henry, and Albert Brush, 15 years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Joseph Labarge, 11 years old, saved themselves by swimming to the Vermont shore.

Withers was a young man and an all-around athlete. He graduated from Cornell college in June and was elected captain of the Varsity crew. He was a competent yachtsman, but the boat was blown heavily with iron ore, and when it struck the boat it went over with utter wreckage. Withers died in an effort to save Young Brush's life. The yacht was raised during the afternoon, but none of the bodies had been found until 9 o'clock last evening, when four bodies were recovered.

THE CONDEMNED CHOCTAWS.

The Federal and Choctaw Authorities Still Disputing.

CADDO, La., Aug. 28.—Inspector Simon Judge Wilson, of the Wilkinson court, and District Attorney Simon Lewis held a lengthy conference here regarding the shooting of the nine condemned Choctaws at Wilburt, September 8. They tried to keep the object of the shooting a secret, but it was learned that the Choctaws have become very tired of being fooled with by the United States government, and demanded of Inspector Faison that they be allowed to execute the prisoners themselves. The United States government take the prisoners in hand and do as they pleased with them; that they would not hold them longer than September 8. Inspector Faison objected to this, and proposed that the Choctaws be executed on the spot, but the United States government take the prisoners in hand and do as they pleased with them; that they would not hold them longer than September 8.

INSPECTOR Faison objected to this, and proposed that the Choctaws be executed on the spot, but the United States government take the prisoners in hand and do as they pleased with them; that they would not hold them longer than September 8.
