The Trap of the Automatic Refrigerator

is in the bottom of the ice chamber—farthest away from the foods. The trap of some refrigerators is in the food chamber—nearest to the foods. As all the condensed odors, gases and moistures from the foods, together with all the impurities from the ice pass through the trap, it is obvious that the trap, should be farthest away from the foods—in the bottom of the ice chamber. The trap of the automatic never clogs nor rusts. It cannot become broken or lost as it is attached, with a chain, to the wall of the the ice chamber. It is easy to remove and clean, though it seldom needs cleaning. The trap of a refrigerator may seem of little importance, but for health's sake don't buy merely a refrigerator—buy an Automatic Refrigerator. All of them are fitted with one perfect trap.
