"The Prince of Tonight," coming to the Grand January 19th, is a mannerly and beautifully dressed entertainment that trips along to the rhythm of several pretty tunes and halts not more stammers over a libretto that is more promising than many that have been successfully built up by the industrious Adams Hough duo. It is handsomely set, richly costumed, admirably staged, and will prove one of the best and most pleasing attractions ever here.

All complaints of delivery should be reported to the Circulation Department. Phone 44.

DICKENS' METHOD OF LABOR

Great Novelist Evolved Plots as He Walked, According to Testimony of Old Friend.

Marcus Stone, the veteran painter whose old-fashioned young men and maidens meeting or parting in old-fashioned gardens have for so many years delighted the British public, celebrated his 72nd birthday last week. He has been giving some of his reminiscences.

Every Christmas and every summer for 20 years Marcus Stone used to visit Charles Dickens at his various homes, especially at Gad's Hill, near Rochester.

"Dickens," says Stone, "was one of the greatest and kindest men I ever met. He was imbued with the true Christian spirit. What particularly struck me at Gad's Hill was the atmosphere of calm and comfort one felt at once on entering the house."

"At 3 o'clock every afternoon we used to have a 20-mile walk in the country round. Dickens spoke but little while walking, and this after a time led me to discover the secret of his amazing industry. He sat only for a few hours at his desk, and I always wondered how he could be so prolific an author."

"Well, owing to his tactfulness in our country walks I began to suspect that it was then he evolved most of the plots of his novels. His brain was active all the time and the task of reproducing on paper the things he imagined and thought about became more or less a mechanical process."

NOT LIKELY TO SPOIL SCENE

Actor Willing to Guarantee He Would Make Decent Corpse as the Dead Julius Caesar.

Speculation is rife along the New York Rialto as to whether or not in William Faversham's production of "Julius Caesar" Fuller Mellich, who has been cast for the part of Caesar, will actually appear in the oration scene. This is because of a quip that retort of Sir Herbert Tree, which has just found its way across the Atlantic.

Tree is quite a stickler for detail and although it is generally customary for the dead Caesar to be represented in the oration scene by a dummy, Tree, in his recent revival of the Roman drama, insisted that the actor cast for Caesar should actually appear upon the bier.

The Caesar of the play demurred, averring that he was subject to colds and that the drafts upon the stage might cause him to sneeze, thus spoiling the effect of the scene, to which Tree quickly and dryly retorted, "Never mind; in that case you'd be playing 'Julius Cnaesar.'"

To Mr. Faversham's solicitous inquiries Mr. Mellich has hastened to reply that he rarely sneezes, so the stage director can feel assured of a free rein.

Earning College Expenses.

Miss Florence McArdle, a senior at Boston university, is in charge of the girls' department of the students' employment bureau. This year about one hundred women students have been supplied with work. Boston university was one of the first colleges to realize the value of an employment bureau for its students.

Miss McArdle says that one of the best ways for girls to work their way through college is to get into a family where in return for performing certain household duties they get room, board, laundry and car fares. Never before have so many girls been working their way by this method as this year, and the supply was not equal to the demand. Miss McArdle is working her way through college and in return for a specified number of hours at the bureau gets her tuition free. Before taking up this work she had tutored, done office work and many other things to support herself while getting education.

Hard to Explain Otherwise.

"Dubbs interrupted his wife yesterday."
"How much did he win?"
"What do you mean?"
"Didn't he do it on a bet?"

Gift of Danes to Native Land. Americans of Danish descent have purchased a tract of 300 acres of typical and virgin Danish heather landscape in the province of Jutland and have presented it to the Danish nation as a memorial of their love and good will. The park is to be known as "the Danish-American Park," and the only proviso in the deed is that on each Fourth of July the stars and stripes are to be hoisted over the park and the park turned over to Americans. The late king Frederick VIII had signified his intention of personally accepting the park on behalf of his people, but that duty will now devolve upon some representative of the royal government.

"The Prince of Tonight," the gorgeous musical fantasy, coming to the Grand, January 19th. As a great spectacular production it outshines everything that has been attempted by a management in stage settings. The iridescent glories of the Deltwood forest in the land of the Moon, and the glittering whirl of a blue and silver chorus is not only the climax of artistic efforts in the show itself, but the last word in contemporaneous extravaganzas.

Musical Hohenzollerns.

The announcement that Kaiser Wilhelm has composed a number of patriotic airs, which are to be sung by the troops at the German army maneuvers, is a reminder that the Prussian royal family has a special talent for the creative side of musical art. Prince Henry of Prussia has composed several marches which are very popular in the German army and navy, and last year the emperor presented to the Royal Academy of Music a splendidly bound volume of musical compositions by Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia. William II. is particularly proud of the stirring "Song of Aegir," of which he is both composer and librettist. The Kaiser's famous ancestor, Frederick the Great, was easily the most prolific of all royal composers, having over one hundred compositions to his credit.—Westminster Gazette.

Advantage of Being a Mindreader.

A combined mindreader, fortune teller, soothsayer and seventh son of something or other was resting in the tavern at Skeedee from a spell of stress and strain when there entered to him "Squire Ramsbottom, the well known justice of the peace, who made to the seer a tender of certain moneys if he would teach him the art of mindreading. "Business yur is sorter slow at this time o' year, professor," explained the jurist, "and I 'lowed if I could learn to peer into the minds of my feller citizens and read their thoughts like an open book, I could fine for contempt of court a passel of gents that at present I can't touch, and thus, as you might say, augment my proratty to a considerable degree. Yur's your money, professor; now just get busy and spread your self. I've got a case for day after to mor'."

He was very affable and free with his opinions, was this young man, but that was about all he was free with.

To the man who had carried his not unheavy bag to the little country station he had given one whole penny. Notwithstanding the forlorn look on the man's face, he still continued to chat in an easy manner.

"I shall never forget," he continued, "the splendor of the scenery when I was in Switzerland. It was an education to see the sun rise, tipping the little blue hills with gold—"

"Ah!" interrupted the man who had tolled with his bag. "Them 'lls was luckier than me, weren't they?"—London Tit-Bits.

HOW ONE WOMAN WON

Her Health and Strength Back Again by The Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was all weakened and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui as a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help."

"I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it."

Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health.

It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical.

Fifty years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.

In every community, there live some who have been benefited by Cardui.

The beneficial effects of this time tested woman's remedy, soon show themselves in many different ways. Try it.
