

CASTLE & COOKE CO., Ltd HONOLULU.

Commission Merchants

SUGAR FACTORS.

AGENTS FOR The Ewa Plantation Company. The Waiakua Agricultural Co., Ltd. The Kohala Cugar Company. The Waimaea Sugar Mill Company. The Fulton Iron Works, St. Louis, Mo. The Starboard Oil Company. The George F. Blake Steam Pump & Weston's Centrifugals. The New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston. The Aetna Fire Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn. The Alliance Assurance Company, of London.

INSURANCE.

Theo. H. Davies & Co (Limited.)

AGENTS FOR FIRE, LIFE AND MARINE INSURANCE.

Northern Assurance Company OF LONDON, FOR FIRE AND LIFE. Established 1855. Accumulated Funds .... $3,975,000.

British and Foreign Marine Ins. Co OF LIVERPOOL, FOR MARINE. Capital ..... £1,000,000

Reduction of Rates. Immediate Payment of Claims.

THEO. H. DAVIES & CO., LTD AGENTS.

Castle & Cooke, -LIMITED-

LIFE and FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS...

AGENTS FOR New England Mutual Life Insurance Co OF BOSTON, Aetna Life Insurance Company OF HARTFORD.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

The Famous Tourist Route of the World. In Connection With the Canadian-Australian Steamship Line Tickets are Issued To All Points in the United States and Canada, via Victoria and Vancouver.

MOUNTAIN RESORTS: Banff, Glacier, Mount Stephens and Fraser Canon. Empress Line of Steamers from Vancouver Tickets to All Points in Japan, China, India and Around the World.

For tickets and general information apply to THEO. H. DAVIES & CO., LTD. Agents Canadian-Australian S. S. Line, Canadian Pacific Railway.

THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY. THERAPION

This successful and popular remedy, used in the Continental Hospitals by Ricord, Roulan, Jobert, Velpeau, and others, combines all the desiderata to be sought in a medicine of the kind, and surpasses everything hitherto employed. THERAPION No. 1 maintains the world-renowned and well-merited reputation for derangement of the kidneys, pains in the back, and blooded ailments, affording prompt relief where other well-tried remedies have been powerless. THERAPION No. 2 for impurities of the blood, scurfy pimples, spots, blotches, jaundice and swelling of joints, gout, rheumatism, and all diseases for which it has been too much a fashion to employ mercury, arsenic, etc., to the destruction of the sufferer's health and ruin of health. This preparation purifies the whole system through the blood, and thoroughly eliminates all poisonous matter from the body. THERAPION No. 3 for exhaustion, sleeplessness, and all distressing consequences of dissipation, worry, overwork, etc. It possesses surprising power in restoring strength and vigor to those suffering from the enervating influences of long residence in bad, unhealthy climates. THERAPION is sold by the principal Chemists and Merchants throughout the world. Price in England, 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. In order to state which of the three numbers is required, and observe that the word "THERAPION" appears on the British Government Stamp (in white letters on a red ground) affixed to every genuine package by order of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners, and without which it is a forgery.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Entered for Record Sept. 2, 1904. Est of W L Wilcox by Exor to Hawa Land and Imp Co Ltd. Arthur H F Benton to George P A Benton. Mary Castle to S N Castle Est Ltd. W J White Tr to Victoria S Buffandean. Victoria S Buffandean and hab to Amelia E La Voy. Entered for Record Sept. 6, 1904. Manuel Gonzalez and wf to Jose Ma. Emma Hall et al to A Ledwith. Peter Silva to Jose F Ferrera. Jose F Ferrera to Maria de J Mar. Maria F Bente to Chew Chong. Manuel Duarte and wf to Elizabeth

A S Clinton. John W Kaku and wf to C Brewer & Co Ltd. Francisco G Silva and wf to C Brewer & Co Ltd. H P Baldwin to George E Miner. Mrs Henry Lyman by Dep Sher to Puhl Koloa (w). Bishop Fahia to Pou Ngee Tong Society. Y Ahn to D Kaohi. Y Ahn to D Kaohi. Fow Kee to C Ako. Manuel Francisco and wf to Antonio R Pimentel et al. Kum On et al to Ho Wa Chan. Entered for Record Sept. 7, 1904. Wa Chong to Li Kim Yuen. Jack Payne and wf to Honokaa Sugar Co. Francis T Bickerton to Pacific Sugar Mill. W R Castle and wf to Western & Hawa Invest Co Ltd. J R Higby to Lee Hoo. Oahu Lumber & Bldg Co to Lee Kong. Lee Hoo et al to Chuck Shin Tong. Est of W L Wilcox by Exor to Manuel K Cook Tr. Y Hamada by atty of mtgee to H Hackfeld & Co Ltd. First Am Sav & Tr Co of Hawaii Ltd to C Spreckels & Co. Evelyn G Bishop to F Faxon Bishop. Rel Dower Chung Chook. Walkiki Seaside Hotel Ltd to Trs of Est of B P Bishop. Ah Chew Bros (firm) to Lee Loy et al. BS; int in bus of Ah Chew Bros (firm) No 5 King St, Honolulu, Oahu; $2000. B 265, p 142. Dated Aug 29, 1904. Alfred S Kenway et al to Luke Mon Wong See (widow) et al; D; R P 2222, Puaulo, Hamakua, Hawaii; $1. B 254, p 67. Dated Aug 24, 1904. Luke Mon Wong See (widow) et al to F M Swanzey; D; R P 2222, Puaulo, Hamakua, Hawaii; $6132. B 264, p 68. Dated July 29, 1904. Recorded Aug. 30, 1904. C W P Kaeo to G W McDougall; Agrmt; in re management and control of 1-3 int in pe land, livestock and paddock, etc, Waiata, S Kona, Hawaii; B 265, p 143. Dated Aug 1, 1904. James A Allen by mtgee to Hawa Land & Imprvmt Co Ltd; Forel Affdt; lots 15, 16 and 17, blk 10, Pearl City, Ewa, Oahu; B 259, p 414. Dated Aug 29, 1904. James A Allen by atty and mtgee to Hawa Land & Imprvmt Co Ltd; D; lots 15, 16 and 17, blk 10, Pearl City, Ewa, Oahu; $330. B 264, p 70. Dated Aug 29, 1904. James Helenihl to Paul Muhlendorf; M; R P 394, Kul 10923C, Ana, Waiakua, Oahu; $200. B 260, p 114. Dated Aug 29, 1904. Bank of Hawaii Ltd to Ton Sung et al; Rel; lots 90, 91, 100 and 101 of Gr 374, Kulaokahua, Honolulu, Oahu; pe land, Kailua, Koolau-poko, Oahu; R P 2222, Puaulo, Hamakua, Hawaii; $3500. B 163, p 177. Dated Aug 29, 1904. First National Bank of Waialuku to Luke Tung Sun; Rel; 1-3 int in lots 90, 91, 100 and 101 of Gr 374, Kulaokahua, Honolulu, Oahu; $1100. B 256, p 131. Dated Aug 29, 1904. First National Bank of Waialuku to Luke Mong Wa; Rel; 1-3 int in lots 90, 91, 100 and 101 of Gr 374, Kulaokahua, Honolulu, Oahu; $2500. B 256, p 243. Dated Aug 29, 1904. R A Wadsworth to Luke See Chin; Rel; 1-3 int in lots 90, 91, 100 and 101 of Gr 374, Kulaokahua, Honolulu, Oahu; $1500. B 247, p 251. Dated Apr 30, 1904. Luke Mon Wong See (widow) et al to Hawa Electric Co Ltd; D; lots 90, 91, 100 and 101 of Gr 374, Kulaokahua, Honolulu, Oahu; $8200. B 264, p 72. Dated June 16, 1904. Palau T Kauliakama and hsb (M) to Manuel Espinda; D; por Ap 3, R P 1616, Kul 1041, Adlgs, etc, cor Adelaide and Kuakapu Sts, Honolulu, Oahu; $500. B 264, p 74. Dated Aug 29, 1904. Manuel Espinda to W R Castle Tr; M; por Ap 3, R P 1616, Kul 1041, Adlgs, etc, cor Adelaide and Kuakapu Sts, Honolulu, Oahu; 1/2 int in Est of J Espinda, dec, Lahaina, etc, Maui; $1000. B 260, p 116. Dated Aug 29, 1904.

HOW A SAKIED SAILOR FAILED TO SEE KILAUEA Drank Japanese Infant Food on His Way to the Volcano and Knew Nothing of the Sights He Saw.

The Washington Star says: "Every time I read, as I read lately, that the Burning Lake of Kilauea is getting busy again, I recall with a certain sheepishness how I once spent a day and a night right at the mouth of that boiling, bubbling crater without knowing anything about it." remarked a Washington man, now settled and seadate, who put in a couple of cruises as a chief petty officer in the United States navy. "And that's probably where you picked up this smoking habit of yours," chorused his listeners. "Fact, nevertheless—a whole day and a night so close to the orifice of one of the sizzling volcanoes in the world that I could have tossed a biscuit right down to the place of hot finishes, and yet I didn't know any more about it than a snowbird until it was all over. I was saked and consequently all in."

"Saked" is a cute word," put in one of the listeners. "What kin is it to shanghaied?" "Happened in '95," continued the former man-o-war's man, ignoring the side cracks. "The American man-o-war on board which I was such an ornament was lying in the harbor of Hilo. I belonged to the starboard watch, the first liberty gang allowed to hit the beach, and about forty of us made up a party to take the stage ride up to the brink of Kilauea, where the nifty Peter Lee—who told me a lot about myself when I met him in Honolulu a little later on—keeps the Volcano House, with the help of his pretty daughters. I met the pretty daughters, also, later on, and the things they told me about me at Kilauea didn't serve to make me feel stuck up any."

IN MEDITATION AND RESOLVE. "We had a three-day shore liberty, and the forty of us chartered five stage coaches to go up to Kilauea. We were to start on the trip soon after hitting the beach on the following morning. "I spent the night before going ashore on that occasion in meditation and in making swell resolutions. I'd been on the aqua cart for nearly a year, and I wanted to stay with it, and to sidestep the ship's brig, double-irons, and all the rest of it.

"When the party made the beach next morning all hands scampered for the rumormong of a Greek named Lyeurgus to purchase a couple of quarts of swipes each to last them on the ride up. Swipes is a combination, they tell me, of wood alcohol, sweet chewing tobacco and lava juice, and it sure has action, but the swipes that these fellows seized out to last them on their ride wasn't in it with the stuff that I, like a pinhead, went up against.

"I was regarding my shipmates and their booze purchases with a superior grin when Lyeurgus' barkeeper, an American, asked me if I wasn't in on the swipes buy. I told him that there would be nothing transpiring in that line for mine—that it was me for the higher and nobler until the wind-up of my cruise.

MERE CHILDREN'S FOOD. "Good boy," said the barkeeper, without the quiver of a muscle. "But you'll need something sort o' wet to cool yourself off on the ride up. The first spring is twelve miles up, and the temperature gets pretty sultry and sulphury as you climb along toward the Burning Lake. I guess it'll be you for about a couple quarts of saki, hey?"

"Saki—I'd heard a lot about saki, the Jap rice wine, as they call it, but I'd never toyed with it. "Too jolly, isn't it, for a man riding the water wagon?" I asked the barkeeper. "Nix, no," he replied, and I didn't know until afterward that the blackguard was winking at the rest of the bunch when I wasn't looking. "Why, saki's dope for young 'uns. Jap kids drink it instead of milk. Tastes like the gooseberry wine your aunt used to make, only it's even more harmless than that. It drowns the thirst—and you'll have one of those thirst things before you get anywhere near the Burning Lake; and there's none of that what-for-did-I after-thinks following saki."

"Wrap me up about four bottles of that Jap infant food, then," said I. "Then all hands hiked for the barn where the five coaches were waiting, climbed aboard, and were off for the Burning Lake with a clatter. "My seven mates in the stage pretended to kid me over my indulgence in such silly, non-joking stuff as saki as I took the first long pull at the bottle, and it wasn't until a couple of days later that I found out that the cut-throats knew all about saki all the time, and the devilishness thereof.

"I lasted pretty good, Saki's a whitish-brownish stuff, and it goes down without jarring you any more than a mild Hines wine. It rolled in so smooth and easy that I gulped down about a quart of it to ally that thirst thing. "I didn't feel any different for four or five minutes, although I observed, not without wondering what it meant, that the other fellows in the coach had fallen into a great state of calm, and that they were washing me with singular intensity and grunting as if I'd been making 'em a stumpy speech.

"I GOT SAKIED ALL AT ONCE. "Then I got saked all of a sudden. It came with a clatter. I could feel myself getting lousy all in half a second. I saw those seven shipmates of mine slapping their thighs and heard 'em howl, and the rest of it is all a hashed nightmare. "I only know what happened by hearsay. They all told me, you can gamble on that. They were telling me until the hour I wound up that cruise. "It seems that when the saki got me I climbed out on to the seat with the driver and told him that he could sit on the back step for his—that I was going to do the driving. He couldn't see it, but before he found it necessary to argue the point with me I fell off the seat on to the bowlder-strewn road. "The procession came to a halt, and I was dumped back into my place in the leading coach, where I promptly nailed quart No. 2 of the Japanese infant food and got outside of it. Then I made my seven shipmates a melancholy speech, in the progress of which I informed them that two minutes previously I had received a cable dispatch stating that three aunts of mine that I'd never had in San Francisco had been burned to death in a gasoline explosion, and that they'd bequeathed and devised unto me, their favorite nephew, their entire joint estate, a mere bag o' shells, consisting of some three billions of yen. "I wound this speech up rather suddenly by climbing out through a window to the roof of the stage and essaying to walk on my hands over the stage roof, while the coach was moving along at full career on an incline of 45 degrees. I didn't get by with this acrobatic feat, it seems, and only escaped a violent death by being yanked back into the coach in the nick of time, an instant before the stage turned a sharp curve. "The rest of the ride up doesn't matter. I insisted on riding on the back of the rear off horse, it seems, for a great part of the distance, and they told me that I only fell off and got run over once in a while. I don't know. "The stages reached the Volcano House, which is almost on the edge of the Burning Lake of Kilauea, along toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but I never saw it, and I've yet to see it. By that time I had finished all of the baby food, and when the stage that was carrying me pulled up in front of Peter Lee's hostelry I was solemnly inviting any man on the coach to match dollars with me for the possession of the entire Hawaiian group, or, if they didn't care for that method of determining the ownership of the islands, to engage in teeth encounters with me for the same, all parties to the contest to hold their arms rigidly at their sides and just bite. "When, on dismounting from the stage, I first clapped one eye on Peter Lee, I hailed him, with choking sobs, as a sister of mine that I hadn't seen in eighty-four years—and then it was me for a little white bed, while the rest of the bunch, none of them worse off than a little bit cheery and biddy from their swipes, separated into bunches and took in the Burning Lake of Kilauea from every point of view.

HOW A SAKIED SAILOR FAILED TO SEE KILAUEA

Drank Japanese Infant Food on His Way to the Volcano and Knew Nothing of the Sights He Saw.

The Washington Star says: "Every time I read, as I read lately, that the Burning Lake of Kilauea is getting busy again, I recall with a certain sheepishness how I once spent a day and a night right at the mouth of that boiling, bubbling crater without knowing anything about it." remarked a Washington man, now settled and seadate, who put in a couple of cruises as a chief petty officer in the United States navy. "And that's probably where you picked up this smoking habit of yours," chorused his listeners. "Fact, nevertheless—a whole day and a night so close to the orifice of one of the sizzling volcanoes in the world that I could have tossed a biscuit right down to the place of hot finishes, and yet I didn't know any more about it than a snowbird until it was all over. I was saked and consequently all in."

"Saked" is a cute word," put in one of the listeners. "What kin is it to shanghaied?" "Happened in '95," continued the former man-o-war's man, ignoring the side cracks. "The American man-o-war on board which I was such an ornament was lying in the harbor of Hilo. I belonged to the starboard watch, the first liberty gang allowed to hit the beach, and about forty of us made up a party to take the stage ride up to the brink of Kilauea, where the nifty Peter Lee—who told me a lot about myself when I met him in Honolulu a little later on—keeps the Volcano House, with the help of his pretty daughters. I met the pretty daughters, also, later on, and the things they told me about me at Kilauea didn't serve to make me feel stuck up any."

IN MEDITATION AND RESOLVE. "We had a three-day shore liberty, and the forty of us chartered five stage coaches to go up to Kilauea. We were to start on the trip soon after hitting the beach on the following morning. "I spent the night before going ashore on that occasion in meditation and in making swell resolutions. I'd been on the aqua cart for nearly a year, and I wanted to stay with it, and to sidestep the ship's brig, double-irons, and all the rest of it.

"When the party made the beach next morning all hands scampered for the rumormong of a Greek named Lyeurgus to purchase a couple of quarts of swipes each to last them on the ride up. Swipes is a combination, they tell me, of wood alcohol, sweet chewing tobacco and lava juice, and it sure has action, but the swipes that these fellows seized out to last them on their ride wasn't in it with the stuff that I, like a pinhead, went up against.

"I was regarding my shipmates and their booze purchases with a superior grin when Lyeurgus' barkeeper, an American, asked me if I wasn't in on the swipes buy. I told him that there would be nothing transpiring in that line for mine—that it was me for the higher and nobler until the wind-up of my cruise.

MERE CHILDREN'S FOOD. "Good boy," said the barkeeper, without the quiver of a muscle. "But you'll need something sort o' wet to cool yourself off on the ride up. The first spring is twelve miles up, and the temperature gets pretty sultry and sulphury as you climb along toward the Burning Lake. I guess it'll be you for about a couple quarts of saki, hey?"

"Saki—I'd heard a lot about saki, the Jap rice wine, as they call it, but I'd never toyed with it. "Too jolly, isn't it, for a man riding the water wagon?" I asked the barkeeper. "Nix, no," he replied, and I didn't know until afterward that the blackguard was winking at the rest of the bunch when I wasn't looking. "Why, saki's dope for young 'uns. Jap kids drink it instead of milk. Tastes like the gooseberry wine your aunt used to make, only it's even more harmless than that. It drowns the thirst—and you'll have one of those thirst things before you get anywhere near the Burning Lake; and there's none of that what-for-did-I after-thinks following saki."

"Wrap me up about four bottles of that Jap infant food, then," said I. "Then all hands hiked for the barn where the five coaches were waiting, climbed aboard, and were off for the Burning Lake with a clatter. "My seven mates in the stage pretended to kid me over my indulgence in such silly, non-joking stuff as saki as I took the first long pull at the bottle, and it wasn't until a couple of days later that I found out that the cut-throats knew all about saki all the time, and the devilishness thereof.

"I lasted pretty good, Saki's a whitish-brownish stuff, and it goes down without jarring you any more than a mild Hines wine. It rolled in so smooth and easy that I gulped down about a quart of it to ally that thirst thing. "I didn't feel any different for four or five minutes, although I observed, not without wondering what it meant, that the other fellows in the coach had fallen into a great state of calm, and that they were washing me with singular intensity and grunting as if I'd been making 'em a stumpy speech.

"I GOT SAKIED ALL AT ONCE. "Then I got saked all of a sudden. It came with a clatter. I could feel myself getting lousy all in half a second. I saw those seven shipmates of mine slapping their thighs and heard 'em howl, and the rest of it is all a hashed nightmare. "I only know what happened by hearsay. They all told me, you can gamble on that. They were telling me until the hour I wound up that cruise. "It seems that when the saki got me I climbed out on to the seat with the driver and told him that he could sit on the back step for his—that I was going to do the driving. He couldn't see it, but before he found it necessary to argue the point with me I fell off the seat on to the bowlder-strewn road. "The procession came to a halt, and I was dumped back into my place in the leading coach, where I promptly nailed quart No. 2 of the Japanese infant food and got outside of it. Then I made my seven shipmates a melancholy speech, in the progress of which I informed them that two minutes previously I had received a cable dispatch stating that three aunts of mine that I'd never had in San Francisco had been burned to death in a gasoline explosion, and that they'd bequeathed and devised unto me, their favorite nephew, their entire joint estate, a mere bag o' shells, consisting of some three billions of yen.

"I wound this speech up rather suddenly by climbing out through a window to the roof of the stage and essaying to walk on my hands over the stage roof, while the coach was moving along at full career on an incline of 45 degrees. I didn't get by with this acrobatic feat, it seems, and only escaped a violent death by being yanked back into the coach in the nick of time, an instant before the stage turned a sharp curve. "The rest of the ride up doesn't matter. I insisted on riding on the back of the rear off horse, it seems, for a great part of the distance, and they told me that I only fell off and got run over once in a while. I don't know. "The stages reached the Volcano House, which is almost on the edge of the Burning Lake of Kilauea, along toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but I never saw it, and I've yet to see it. By that time I had finished all of the baby food, and when the stage that was carrying me pulled up in front of Peter Lee's hostelry I was solemnly inviting any man on the coach to match dollars with me for the possession of the entire Hawaiian group, or, if they didn't care for that method of determining the ownership of the islands, to engage in teeth encounters with me for the same, all parties to the contest to hold their arms rigidly at their sides and just bite.

"When, on dismounting from the stage, I first clapped one eye on Peter Lee, I hailed him, with choking sobs, as a sister of mine that I hadn't seen in eighty-four years—and then it was me for a little white bed, while the rest of the bunch, none of them worse off than a little bit cheery and biddy from their swipes, separated into bunches and took in the Burning Lake of Kilauea from every point of view.

SLEPT BY THE SULPHUR PIT. "I don't know how I ever got out of that room, but the next morning they found me lying at the mouth of a sulphur pit that was working. I had all of my clothes on, and I was sound asleep. "They hurled spring water all over me, and for about one-eighteenth of a second I came to. Then, unfortunately I just joggled my head from side to side, and there I was, saked all over again. Saki's a cheap bun, by the way—all you've got to do is to wink, and there you are, jugged all over again. "That's how I didn't see the Burning Lake of Kilauea or any part of it. On the down trip that afternoon it was mine for a nice little pallet on the deck of the stage, although I don't remember even that end of it. I came to in a room of a Hilo hotel, with four of my shipmates prodding me. "I felt as if I'd been through a copper mine cave-in—my mouth felt particularly coppery—and my hair was dyed a cute apple green from my slumber alongside the sulphur pit. "When I was able to get into my clothes I got two gaudied clubs and went after that barkeep of Lyeurgus who had told me about what a nice article saki was for thirst-quenching purposes, but somebody tipped him off that I was on his trail, and he took to the foothills and stayed there under cover until our ship pulled out of Hilo Harbor for Honolulu."

Given Away by Gift. MADRID, Aug. 29.—"Try those," dryly remarked young King Alfonso, holding out to his finance minister a couple of cigars at a cabinet meeting. "I can assure you they are very good, as they were made with tobacco raised in Spain and were sent to me from Andalusia." As the raising of tobacco by private persons is strictly forbidden in the peninsula, Finance Minister Omsa sent to Andalusia detectives who discovered that tobacco was cultivated extensively in the southern provinces, and the local authorities and the government thus have been deprived of millions of revenue.

HOW A SAKIED SAILOR FAILED TO SEE KILAUEA

Drank Japanese Infant Food on His Way to the Volcano and Knew Nothing of the Sights He Saw.

The Washington Star says: "Every time I read, as I read lately, that the Burning Lake of Kilauea is getting busy again, I recall with a certain sheepishness how I once spent a day and a night right at the mouth of that boiling, bubbling crater without knowing anything about it." remarked a Washington man, now settled and seadate, who put in a couple of cruises as a chief petty officer in the United States navy. "And that's probably where you picked up this smoking habit of yours," chorused his listeners. "Fact, nevertheless—a whole day and a night so close to the orifice of one of the sizzling volcanoes in the world that I could have tossed a biscuit right down to the place of hot finishes, and yet I didn't know any more about it than a snowbird until it was all over. I was saked and consequently all in."

"Saked" is a cute word," put in one of the listeners. "What kin is it to shanghaied?" "Happened in '95," continued the former man-o-war's man, ignoring the side cracks. "The American man-o-war on board which I was such an ornament was lying in the harbor of Hilo. I belonged to the starboard watch, the first liberty gang allowed to hit the beach, and about forty of us made up a party to take the stage ride up to the brink of Kilauea, where the nifty Peter Lee—who told me a lot about myself when I met him in Honolulu a little later on—keeps the Volcano House, with the help of his pretty daughters. I met the pretty daughters, also, later on, and the things they told me about me at Kilauea didn't serve to make me feel stuck up any."

IN MEDITATION AND RESOLVE. "We had a three-day shore liberty, and the forty of us chartered five stage coaches to go up to Kilauea. We were to start on the trip soon after hitting the beach on the following morning. "I spent the night before going ashore on that occasion in meditation and in making swell resolutions. I'd been on the aqua cart for nearly a year, and I wanted to stay with it, and to sidestep the ship's brig, double-irons, and all the rest of it.

"When the party made the beach next morning all hands scampered for the rumormong of a Greek named Lyeurgus to purchase a couple of quarts of swipes each to last them on the ride up. Swipes is a combination, they tell me, of wood alcohol, sweet chewing tobacco and lava juice, and it sure has action, but the swipes that these fellows seized out to last them on their ride wasn't in it with the stuff that I, like a pinhead, went up against.

"I was regarding my shipmates and their booze purchases with a superior grin when Lyeurgus' barkeeper, an American, asked me if I wasn't in on the swipes buy. I told him that there would be nothing transpiring in that line for mine—that it was me for the higher and nobler until the wind-up of my cruise.

MERE CHILDREN'S FOOD. "Good boy," said the barkeeper, without the quiver of a muscle. "But you'll need something sort o' wet to cool yourself off on the ride up. The first spring is twelve miles up, and the temperature gets pretty sultry and sulphury as you climb along toward the Burning Lake. I guess it'll be you for about a couple quarts of saki, hey?"

"Saki—I'd heard a lot about saki, the Jap rice wine, as they call it, but I'd never toyed with it. "Too jolly, isn't it, for a man riding the water wagon?" I asked the barkeeper. "Nix, no," he replied, and I didn't know until afterward that the blackguard was winking at the rest of the bunch when I wasn't looking. "Why, saki's dope for young 'uns. Jap kids drink it instead of milk. Tastes like the gooseberry wine your aunt used to make, only it's even more harmless than that. It drowns the thirst—and you'll have one of those thirst things before you get anywhere near the Burning Lake; and there's none of that what-for-did-I after-thinks following saki."

"Wrap me up about four bottles of that Jap infant food, then," said I. "Then all hands hiked for the barn where the five coaches were waiting, climbed aboard, and were off for the Burning Lake with a clatter. "My seven mates in the stage pretended to kid me over my indulgence in such silly, non-joking stuff as saki as I took the first long pull at the bottle, and it wasn't until a couple of days later that I found out that the cut-throats knew all about saki all the time, and the devilishness thereof.

"I lasted pretty good, Saki's a whitish-brownish stuff, and it goes down without jarring you any more than a mild Hines wine. It rolled in so smooth and easy that I gulped down about a quart of it to ally that thirst thing. "I didn't feel any different for four or five minutes, although I observed, not without wondering what it meant, that the other fellows in the coach had fallen into a great state of calm, and that they were washing me with singular intensity and grunting as if I'd been making 'em a stumpy speech.

"I GOT SAKIED ALL AT ONCE. "Then I got saked all of a sudden. It came with a clatter. I could feel myself getting lousy all in half a second. I saw those seven shipmates of mine slapping their thighs and heard 'em howl, and the rest of it is all a hashed nightmare. "I only know what happened by hearsay. They all told me, you can gamble on that. They were telling me until the hour I wound up that cruise. "It seems that when the saki got me I climbed out on to the seat with the driver and told him that he could sit on the back step for his—that I was going to do the driving. He couldn't see it, but before he found it necessary to argue the point with me I fell off the seat on to the bowlder-strewn road. "The procession came to a halt, and I was dumped back into my place in the leading coach, where I promptly nailed quart No. 2 of the Japanese infant food and got outside of it. Then I made my seven shipmates a melancholy speech, in the progress of which I informed them that two minutes previously I had received a cable dispatch stating that three aunts of mine that I'd never had in San Francisco had been burned to death in a gasoline explosion, and that they'd bequeathed and devised unto me, their favorite nephew, their entire joint estate, a mere bag o' shells, consisting of some three billions of yen.

"I wound this speech up rather suddenly by climbing out through a window to the roof of the stage and essaying to walk on my hands over the stage roof, while the coach was moving along at full career on an incline of 45 degrees. I didn't get by with this acrobatic feat, it seems, and only escaped a violent death by being yanked back into the coach in the nick of time, an instant before the stage turned a sharp curve. "The rest of the ride up doesn't matter. I insisted on riding on the back of the rear off horse, it seems, for a great part of the distance, and they told me that I only fell off and got run over once in a while. I don't know. "The stages reached the Volcano House, which is almost on the edge of the Burning Lake of Kilauea, along toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but I never saw it, and I've yet to see it. By that time I had finished all of the baby food, and when the stage that was carrying me pulled up in front of Peter Lee's hostelry I was solemnly inviting any man on the coach to match dollars with me for the possession of the entire Hawaiian group, or, if they didn't care for that method of determining the ownership of the islands, to engage in teeth encounters with me for the same, all parties to the contest to hold their arms rigidly at their sides and just bite.

"When, on dismounting from the stage, I first clapped one eye on Peter Lee, I hailed him, with choking sobs, as a sister of mine that I hadn't seen in eighty-four years—and then it was me for a little white bed, while the rest of the bunch, none of them worse off than a little bit cheery and biddy from their swipes, separated into bunches and took in the Burning Lake of Kilauea from every point of view.

SLEPT BY THE SULPHUR PIT. "I don't know how I ever got out of that room, but the next morning they found me lying at the mouth of a sulphur pit that was working. I had all of my clothes on, and I was sound asleep. "They hurled spring water all over me, and for about one-eighteenth of a second I came to. Then, unfortunately I just joggled my head from side to side, and there I was, saked all over again. Saki's a cheap bun, by the way—all you've got to do is to wink, and there you are, jugged all over again. "That's how I didn't see the Burning Lake of Kilauea or any part of it. On the down trip that afternoon it was mine for a nice little pallet on the deck of the stage, although I don't remember even that end of it. I came to in a room of a Hilo hotel, with four of my shipmates prodding me. "I felt as if I'd been through a copper mine cave-in—my mouth felt particularly coppery—and my hair was dyed a cute apple green from my slumber alongside the sulphur pit. "When I was able to get into my clothes I got two gaudied clubs and went after that barkeep of Lyeurgus who had told me about what a nice article saki was for thirst-quenching purposes, but somebody tipped him off that I was on his trail, and he took to the foothills and stayed there under cover until our ship pulled out of Hilo Harbor for Honolulu."

Given Away by Gift. MADRID, Aug. 29.—"Try those," dryly remarked young King Alfonso, holding out to his finance minister a couple of cigars at a cabinet meeting. "I can assure you they are very good, as they were made with tobacco raised in Spain and were sent to me from Andalusia." As the raising of tobacco by private persons is strictly forbidden in the peninsula, Finance Minister Omsa sent to Andalusia detectives who discovered that tobacco was cultivated extensively in the southern provinces, and the local authorities and the government thus have been deprived of millions of revenue.

BAD COMPLEXIONS

Dry Thin and Falling Hair and Red Rough Hands Prevented by

CUTICURA SOAP.

MILLIONS use CUTICURA SOAP exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes, for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially to mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the best skin and complexion soap, the best toilet and best baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour, Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA Ointment, to instantly allay itching and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to cool and cleanse the blood. Sold throughout the world. Australian Depot: R. Towns & Co., Sydney, N.S.W. So. African Depot: LEKSON LTD., Cape Town. How to have Beautiful Skin, Hair, and Hands, free. FOTTER CORP., Boston, U. S. A. Sole Props., CUTICURA REMEDIES.

MOST POPULAR

PUBLICATION

IN HONOLULU

THE SUNDAY

ADVERTISER

WAR NEWS, CHURCH NEWS, SPORTING NEWS, GENERAL NEWS AND ALL THE LATEST WORLD'S NEWS BY CABLE.

MISCELLANEOUS, LITERARY AND HUMOROUS SELECTIONS, AND A CONTINUATION OF THOMAS FITCH'S INTERESTING ARTICLES ON HIS FOREIGN TRAVELS. PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS OF THE BYSTANDER.

INTERESTING READING TO SUIT EVERY T