

KOREANS HERE PLEASED AT MURDER

Say Prince Ito Deserved Death for His Actions Toward Hermit Kingdom.

LAUD ASSASSIN AS PATRIOT

Promise Him a Glorious Name in Their History for Example He Has Given.

(From Wednesday Advertiser.)

"His selfishness has received its reward. The crimes of him who is dead were unpardonable! We do not know who the patriotic Korean was who stabbed Ito to death, but whoever it was, he did it for the sake of his country and his people. His name shall be written in honor in our history forever. His self-sacrificing patriotism has been poured out as an example before the slumbering twenty millions."—From a circular issued yesterday by the Korean Patriotic League of Honolulu.

The Koreans of Honolulu are elated at the news of the death of Prince Ito. The report of the assassination on Monday of the leading statesman of Japan, which plunged the Japanese community of Hawaii into mourning, has been hailed with great satisfaction by the Koreans, who openly exult in the success which attended the murderous assault of one of their race upon the former resident-general of Korea.

Issue Congratulatory Circular.

Almost as soon as The Advertiser, containing the report of the assassination, appeared upon the street yesterday morning, the members of the Korean Patriotic League of Honolulu took steps to pass along the good news to the Koreans of the city. A translation of The Advertiser report was made, a half-tone of the murdered prince was borrowed from The Advertiser office, the satisfaction of the leaders of the league was expressed, and the circular scattered throughout the city.

A literal translation of the circular, excepting the cable, is:

Korea's Opportunity.

"Now is the chance for our twenty million people to secure the independence we so desire. Ito is dead, he who brought our beautiful country of eighty-two thousand square miles under the oppressive rule of the Japanese government and enslaved our twenty million people.

"His selfishness has received its reward. The crimes of him who is dead were unpardonable!

"Do we not remember what he promised the Powers of the world in regard to our independence when the Russo-Japanese war was begun? Where is our liberty now? What is the position of our country?"

"What has happened to him is a fitting reward for his trickery and a just punishment for the theft of our country.

"We do not know who the patriotic Korean was who stabbed Ito to death, but whoever it was he did it for the sake of his country and his people. His name shall be written in honor in our history forever. His self-sacrificing patriotism has been poured out as an example before the slumbering twenty millions."

Ming Blames Ito.

Outside the ranks of the patriots, with their murderous ideas, the general Korean community here is inclined to the belief that Prince Ito courted his fate and only got what was coming.

Reverend C. Ming, the Korean clergyman, connected with the Korean mission on Punchbowl street, discussing Korean affairs yesterday, gave it as his opinion that Korea suffered much at the hands of Ito, who promised the Koreans much and gave them nothing of what he had promised.

"While I could not for a moment attempt to endorse the action of the assassin who killed Ito, I am willing to state that the Koreans have been badly treated by the Japanese and by so in particular," he said. "The Koreans have not a chance in their own country. The Japanese have taken away their land from them and they are in a most deplorable condition of servitude and poverty.

"Ito himself made promises to the Koreans to the effect that they would be protected in every way. Their land should remain in their own possession, save what they should sell willingly and the big Powers would be diplomatically approached on the subject of trade for the benefit of the Koreans. These promises were not fulfilled and, if the Japanese continue their methods of oppression, I fear there will be a grave outbreak of the Korean people."

BAR ENDORSES JUDGE DOLE

Resolutions Adopted Urging the Reappointment of the Venerable Jurist.

(From Wednesday Advertiser.)

Judge Sanford B. Dole was yesterday afternoon unanimously endorsed by the bar association for reappointment to the bench of the United States district court. The association adopted a resolution expressing the entire confidence of the members in the way the judge has conducted himself in the position he now occupies, the resolution referring also to the universal esteem felt in the community for him and urging President Taft to name the grand old man of Hawaii to succeed himself in the position he has held with so much credit to himself and to the community.

Judge Dole's term expires on November 23, and it is probable that an appointment will be made by the President before that time, though any nomination cannot be acted on by the senate until December, as congress does not meet until that month.

However, so far as known, there is absolutely no opposition in any quarter to the reappointment of the judge, and it is extremely probable that he will continue to sit on the bench of the United States district court for the district of Hawaii.

LYCURGUS WILL ERECT NEW GRILL

New $50,000 Building to Be Put Up on Old Site—Will Be Strictly Modern.

(From Wednesday's Advertiser.)

George Lycurgus is going to erect a new, two-story concrete building for the Grill. He announced the fact last night, stating that the new building is to be strictly modern, to cost not less than $50,000, and is to be started within a very short time.

The new building will be erected on the site of the present Grill building, which, of course, will have to be torn down, thus removing one of the old landmarks of Honolulu. The present building is out of date and is too small, besides being lacking in many conveniences needed in an up-to-date eating place.

The plans for the new building are already drawn and work on the structure will be commenced as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

The lower story of the new building will seat one hundred people. The floor and the walls part way up will be tiled and all the furnishings will be of modern design.

The second floor will be divided by movable partitions into six private dining rooms, which can easily be thrown together by taking out the partitions. This can be done very easily.

In addition to other conveniences, there will be a large cold storage room in which the delicacies of the season can be kept for the entire day.

Just what will be done during the time the new building is in course of erection and after the present quarters are torn down is not yet announced, but it is hinted that a large room in a building recently erected may be temporarily occupied.

The new Grill will have a depth of fifty-five feet.

CIVIL WAR HERO ENDS HIS CAREER

General Howard Dies at His Home in Vermont—Had Fine Record.

(By Associated Press.)

BURLINGTON, Vermont, October 26.—General O. O. Howard, who greatly distinguished himself in the Civil War, died here yesterday.

He was seventy-nine years old at the time of his death and left behind him a remarkable military and literary record. On March 13, 1865, he was brevetted major general for distinguished services after having taken part in most of the important battles of the Civil War. This brevet was presented principally for conspicuous gallantry at the battle of Ezra Church. Later he received the thanks of congress.

In 1862, at the battle of Fair Oaks, Virginia, he was severely wounded in the right arm, necessitating amputation. After the Civil War he served in many Indian campaigns. He was instrumental in suppressing the Seminole rising in Florida, was peace commissioner to the Indians in Arizona and New Mexico in 1872 and commanded in the Nez Perce campaign in 1877.

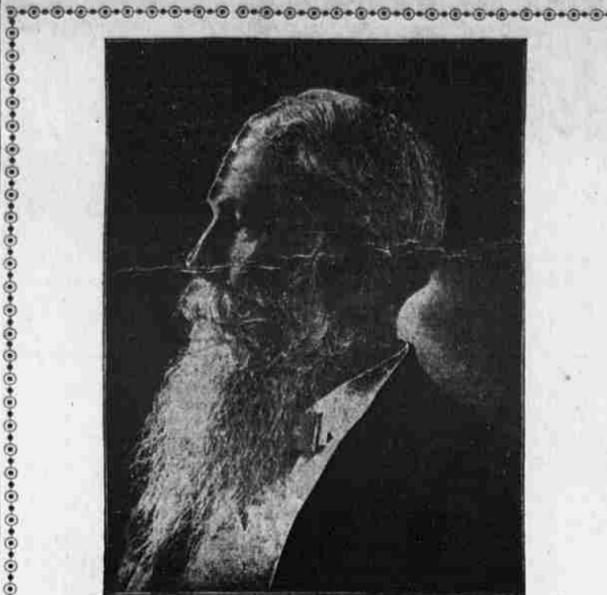

During 1881 and 1882 he was superintendent at West Point and from then till 1888 he was commandant of the Platte, Pacific and Atlantic military depots. In 1895 he founded the Lincoln memorial university at Cumberland Gap, Tennessee.

He was a chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur of France and a commander of the Loyal Legion. During the latter part of the last century he was a popular lecturer and wrote several successful historical novels and reminiscences.

SOME, October 26.—A storm is raging in the Bering sea. The whaler Olga has been wrecked and many crew are believed to have been driven ashore.

JUDGE SANFORD B. DOLE ENDORSED BY BAR ASSOCIATION FOR REAPPOINTMENT BY THE PRESIDENT.

WASHEE WASHEE MEN GET STUCK

Little Gamblers Are Arrested, but Big Fellows With Pull Are Not Molested.

Six more Chinese were arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Apiana and booked at the police station on the charge of gambling. It will be another matter, however, to convict them, convictions being as scarce as hens' teeth in comparison with the number of arrests.

The officers claim that the new law passed by the legislature at the last session, making barred doors and obstructed entrances prima facie evidence of gambling, is not helping them much, for the Chinese have got wise and are playing practically in the open. Instead of resorting to locks and bolts, they are keeping their money out of sight and are playing with chips and counters, which are doubtless cashed after the game is finished.

However, it is noteworthy that only in very rare instances are the big men being caught by the officers. Men who are suspected of running percentage games are not brought in. It is the poor devils of laundries, who work seven days in the week and only occasionally take a half hour off from wielding the flatiron to the goddess of fortune to the tune of about seven cents, who are arrested. This makes a fine showing on the police court blotter, however. When it is announced that Officer So-and-So has arrested eleven Chinese for gambling, the general public does not know whether it is a bunch of poor laundrymen playing a quiet little game among themselves, such as is played at the clubs and bridge parties throughout the city, or a few of the big gamblers who are running a regular percentage game of fan-tan or pai-ka. Generally, however, it is the former.

Nine alleged gamblers were discharged by Judge Andrade yesterday morning. Same old story—no evidence. The case against another was not pressed, in the hope that he would come through with some information that would convict others. He didn't.

BAROMETER LOWER THAN FOR TEN YEARS

The weather continued cold yesterday. This gladdened the hearts of many of the older kamaainas, who recognized a return of oldtime conditions. When asked what he thought about the weather, Captain Campbell said, "Why, this is what we always used to expect in the old days—a kona wind and rain, with a drop in the temperature. It may be a trifle early, but it is just what we ought to have."

On the corresponding day of 1908 the maximum temperature was eighty-two, the minimum seventy-one, making an average of seventy-six and a fraction. Yesterday the maximum was seventy-six, the minimum sixty-three, making an average of a trifle less than seventy.

A noticeable feature of the weather report is that the barometer is lower on this date than it has been for ten years. Yesterday it was still dropping slowly, but steadily at 29.88. In these latitudes the barometer moves much less than in the northern climes. Occasional disturbances in the way of hurricanes in more easterly longitudes make a flutter of the mercury, but the barometer falling so low at this time of year is quite remarkable.

At the time of going to press the sky was clear but clouds were banked on the southern horizon and there is nothing to show that the cold wave and rain are past.

COMMISSIONERS ACKNOWLEDGED

Brewery Admits the Power of Liquor Board and Cases Are Not-Pressed.

(From Wednesday's Advertiser.)

Acknowledging the power of the liquor commissioners to enforce the rules and regulations made by that body, the attorneys of the Honolulu Brewing and Malting Co. yesterday morning notified the attorney-general's department that they were willing to abide by those rules. As a result, when the criminal cases instituted against Charles Bartlett as its manager came up before Judge Whitney in the circuit court, nole prosequis were entered in both instances.

In asking that the cases be not-pressed, Deputy Attorney-General Lorin Andrews said, "The idea in bringing these criminal proceedings was to stop the deliveries of beer and liquor on Sunday which made more or less of a farce of the Sunday laws. We are very glad to see the brewery, which is a substantial concern in this city, taking that view of the matter."

Previous to the motion for not-pressing the cases coming before the court, Attorney W. A. Kinney, of the firm of Kinney, Ballou, Prosser and Anderson, outlined to the court the stand of the brewery in the following words:

"The attorney-general's department has taken the position and practically ruled from their standpoint that deliveries of beer by the brewery from the cold storage on Sunday, even though it is conceded that the beer was sold bona fide on a week day, would be a violation of the Sunday law. Counsel for the brewery felt some doubts about that, but after reviewing the matter carefully we are of the opinion that while some individual jury might rule otherwise, that if the matter was passed upon by the judges of the courts the ruling probably would be in accord with the position taken by the attorney-general's department.

"We therefore were confronted with the proposition whether we should attempt to get a ruling to the contrary from a jury as against the rulings that would probably be made by the courts, and all of us were of one opinion, and the officials of the brewery also, that we did not want to occupy any such position. The officials of the brewery informed us if it was our view that that would be the position taken by the courts, they were perfectly willing to discontinue all such Sunday deliveries, that is, all deliveries of beer on Sunday from the cold storage as long as the present license commissioners maintained the present rules and regulations in regard to sales and delivery of beer on Sunday.

"We have no intimated to the attorney-general that the brewery will undertake to see that there are no such deliveries on Sunday and to bring itself into accord with the ruling of the department and the ruling that probably will be sustained by the judges of the court."

ITALY PLEDGES SUPPORT TO RUSSIA

Paris Report Points to a Set-back for Germany, by Humbert.

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, October 26.—A Paris publication announces that in the recent conference between Czar Nicholas and King Humbert it was agreed between the two sovereigns to work together for the economic development of Montenegro. It was further agreed to preserve the island of Crete for the Greeks, allowing them to manage the internal affairs of the island for themselves. The Italian King pledged the support of Italy to Russia in working out her policy in the Balkans.

The great significance of this, if the report is true, is that it isolates Germany more effectually. Italy having heretofore in closer alliance with Germany than with Russia and considered an ally of Germany in the Balkan situation.

M. T. Simonton, J. Marcellino and John Batechelor have been appointed by Judge Robinson as the appraisers of the estate of Carrie Marx Alexandre, a minor, deceased.

MORI'S TRIAL IS CLOSED INCIDENT

Instructions Ready for Jury and Argument Will Begin Today.

(From Wednesday's Advertiser.)

Like the Portola festival, the trial of Tomikichi Mori closed in a blaze of glory yesterday morning at eleven-thirty in the circuit court before Judge De Bolt. As the trial drew to a close the defense became more antagonistic to the evidence which the prosecution was seeking to introduce on rebuttal. The fine distinctions that have been drawn hitherto relating to Mori's real intent—whether it was murder or a mere desire to cut Sheba's head off—was dropped and a larger tiammer brought out. Evidence which the defense was saving till the last and which, from the fight that was made to have it entered, must have been depended upon to a great extent, was not admitted and from then on, a more vigorous opposition to the prosecution was manifested.

Mori's redirect and recross-examination was finished early and the defense put three or four of Mori's old Maui acquaintances on the stand in order to show the defendant's reputation for veracity. The prosecution objected frequently and the evidence had to be placed on record in a roundabout way. K. Kasamoto was the first of the Maui witnesses and testified that he was a photographer by occupation and was connected with the Salvation Army.

He made a bad witness as far as straightforward testimony was concerned for he attempted to avoid compromising himself with direct opinion as to the details of Mori's reputation. Cathcart, on cross-examination, became impatient at his loquaciousness and he did not add much to the case of the defense, his testimony being lost in verbiage.

Senator W. J. Coelho of Walluku was the next to take the stand and also testified to his good reputation. William Sparks of Kahului, now serving on federal juries, was called to corroborate the testimony of the other two.

Mori undoubtedly did bear a reputation for truth on the other island according to the evidence rendered by responsible witnesses, and it remains now for the jury to decide whether a man can be truthful under ordinary circumstances and have murder in his heart at the same time.

James L. Coke, associate counsel for the defense, was then placed on the stand and the rockets and Roman candles immediately went off. The first part of his testimony, under examination by Lightfoot, was similar to his three predecessors.

He had met the defendant about eight-thirty on the morning of August third, the date of the assault, on Hotel street, and when the defense attempted to have the conversation between the two men placed on record the pilikia started. Cathcart entered an objection on the grounds that it was immaterial and irrelevant and the objection was sustained. Douthitt then interrupted Lightfoot in the act of asking another question and announced that they would attempt to get the evidence ruled upon before the court. He did not at the time make an offer of proof and the judge became a trifle impatient. Douthitt finally made the offer of proof and the jury were excused. Cathcart and Prosser started in to laugh and the former went out in the corridor to enjoy himself with less restraint. Lightfoot joined him, both in laughing and in the hall.

Douthitt then explained that the evidence that they wished to introduce was to the effect that the conversation between Coke and Mori related to the latter's appearance in a Maui court as a witness. Douthitt argued that they had a right to have the evidence admitted on the grounds that a man who was making preparations to see a friend off on a boat at noon and later, to follow himself to appear as a witness in a case in which that friend was interested, would not inconvenience himself with a charge of murder. This, said Douthitt, would greatly damage the prosecution's contention that the defendant was making preparations all morning for the slaughter.

The court finally refused to consider the offer of proof, the jury was recalled, and Douthitt noted an emphatic exception.

During the argument, Judge De Bolt said, somewhat sharply, "I do not think it proper for you gentlemen to trifle with the court in this manner—to persist in attempting to get before the court evidence not in accordance with the law."

After Douthitt completed his argument, the court modified the statement and then Douthitt asked that "the opposing counsel be admonished not to indulge in raucous mirth."

Cathcart was on his feet in an instant to remind counsel that Lightfoot had also joined in the raucous mirth and stated that he did not think, that being the case, that the admonishment would be in order. Judge De Bolt expressed himself to that effect and "raucous mirth" occasionally enlivened the proceedings for the rest of the day.

Coke was the last witness for the defense and in rebuttal the prosecution entered a minute testimony relating to the examination of Mori at the police station directly after he had been arrested for the crime. Miss Gussie Clark, stenographer for Kinney's firm was the first witness as she took down in shorthand the statements made by the defendant that so incriminated him.

Jarrett, Milverton and Breckons followed her. Their testimony damaged the theory of the defense that Mori's assault on the editor was the result of sudden and uncontrollable impulse. Mori, at the police station, had said, as he said on the stand that he committed the act to punish Sheba, but he did not say as the defense said he did that he had a personal feeling towards Sheba. He reiterated his reason for the assault by saying that he wanted to punish Sheba because the latter was a bad man to the Japanese.

ITO'S DEATH IS CALAMITY TO NATION

Tokio and All Japan Are Wearing Mourning for Death of Diplomat.

RUSSIA WILL NOT CHANGE

Officials Who Were to Consult With Ito Will Not Be Affected.

(By Associated Press.)

TOKIO, October 26.—So great has been the influence of the late Prince Ito, who fell beneath the blows of the assassin's knife on Monday, that his death has been regarded as a public calamity, and as something that might alter the whole tenor of Japan's negotiations in the Manchurian situation. So much has been said along this line that yesterday an official statement was given out by the premier to the effect that Japan's course on the Asian mainland would continue the same as outlined, irrespective of the death of Prince Ito.

Yesterday Tokio was in gloom, the populace joining in the official consternation caused by the receipt of the news from Harbin. Throughout Japan the one topic of conversation was the assassination of the veteran statesman and the effect his death might have on the Empire.

Russian Relations Unchanged.

ST. PETERSBURG, October 26.—It is officially announced that the murder of Prince Ito, who was about to consult the Russian officials at Vladivostok regarding the claims of Japan and Russia in Manchuria, will not affect in any way the relations between the two nations.

Assassin Ran Amuck.

HARBIN, October 26.—The assassination of Prince Hirobumi Ito by an unknown Korean yesterday occurred just as the prince was arriving at the railway station here.

Three wounds were inflicted by the murderer, two being received in the prince's abdomen.

Ito died within twenty minutes after the attack, remaining unconscious from the moment he was assaulted, breathing no word to those who hastily gathered to ascertain the extent of his injuries.

The Japanese consul-general at this city and two others of prominence were also objects of the assassin's attack, for they received wounds, and the Russian minister of finance had a narrow escape for his life, the Korean fanatic attempting to take his life, but being captured before he could do further harm.

The assassin admits to the police that he came to this city with the express purpose of committing the crime for which he is held, and declares that his purpose was to avenge his country, Korea, and to avenge friends of his whom Prince Ito had ordered to be executed.

The body of the dead prince will be sent to Japan today.

TIDAL WAVE DOES DAMAGE IN MEXICO

(By Associated Press.)

CITY OF MEXICO, October 26.—The district of Santa Rosa has been swept by a tidal wave and many lives have been lost. Damage to property amounts to at least five millions of dollars.

new and responsible for the conditions that then prevailed.

The defense waived rebuttal and the case was closed. Their jury was dismissed and court and counsel at once commenced work on the instructions. These will consist of an exact description and analysis of the law discriminating between assault with a deadly weapon and assault with intent to kill. The argument before the jury will commence this morning at eight-thirty and the case will probably be in the jury's hands before noon.
