

The woman on the right never neglected her hair. She neglected her hair, and now herself suffers from neglect. On the contrary, the woman on the left has always used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and owes to it much of her youthful appearance and attractiveness.

Ayer's Hair Vigor produces beautiful hair. Long, rich, heavy hair. Soft and silky hair, free from dandruff.

ARE RESCUED BY WIRELESS
Kailua Conventioneers, in Danger of Being Marooned, Summon Help.

The late week has proven that the wireless has many uses not generally accredited to it, for besides being the means of capturing an escaped prisoner, it also prevented the Kailua convention from becoming stranded on the shores of the Fire Island.

The delegates and visitors to the convention became so enthusiastic over the questions before them that they did not realize that though they were only a short distance from home, walking was bad.

When the convention came to an end they found themselves as numerous as the sands that they walked upon, and were unable to decide who should take the Mauna Loa home and who should wait.

Then they bethought themselves of the wireless, and an aerogram was soon speeding to the capital praying for succor. It came in the form of the steamer Maui, which joined the Mauna Loa and rescued the marooned convention from a dry and uninteresting existence of about a week on a lava flow.

MORE THAN A MILLION IS MISSING

ALBANY, New York, July 4.—Serious irregularities are charged against the Phoenix Insurance Company of Brooklyn in the report of the insurance commissioners. The commissioners claim that the actual surplus of the company is only $421,200, instead of $1,546,048 as claimed by the company.

RACE RIOTING IN MANY STATES

At Houston, Texas, the rioting was serious for a while, and other riots made the afternoon lively at Fort Worth. Three negroes were killed in the fighting at Augusta, Georgia, and the whites put two negroes to death in Little Rock, Arkansas.

SAYS PRIAR LAND DEAL WAS CLEAN

General Edwards Defends Sale Against Attack of a Congressman.

Gen. C. R. Edwards, accompanying Secretary of War Dickinson on his round-the-world tour, declared upon his arrival here that the attack of Congressman Martin of Colorado on the recent sale of Priar lands in the Philippines was unwarranted and unjustified. It is remembered that Alfred Finley Thayer, an ex-newspaper man from Honolulu, went to the Philippines some time ago and purchased large tracts of Priar lands, claiming that he represented Walter Dillingham, which transaction, members of the Dillinghams claimed, was not in behalf of Walter Dillingham.
"Martin never delivered the whole of the speech he got permission to print in the Congressional Record," declared General Edwards. "It was inspired by the Colorado beet sugar men and written by Irving Winslow of the anti-imperialist league. He calls everything but a sealawg who had anything to do with the lands."
"We are going to have a full investigation and made it a matter of record, so there will be no question in the future. I know that the whole deal was clean all the way through, but we are going into it so as to convince the beet sugar people and the public generally that it is all right."
"As the three backers of the purchaser of the Mindoro lands had stock in the Colorado beet sugar trust, Martin claimed that there was crookedness in the transaction and the deal was not legal. Martin charged that the best lands in the islands were being sold to the sugar trust. The truth is, the lands in Mindoro have not been in cultivation for years, and most of that island is pasture land."
Secretary Dickinson and his party will go to the China coast upon leaving the Philippines. After visiting Peking and other large cities, they will take the transiberian railway across Asia and Europe to Paris, arriving there about October 15. General Edwards has traveled around the world several times, having accompanied President Taft, Congressman Longworth and Alice Roosevelt, his bride-to-be, on their four years ago.

ARREST ALLEGED MANOA SHOOTER

Concealed a Bad Gun, but Could Not Conceal Equally Bad Reputation.

Chief McDuffie commenced working on the case as soon as possible, tracing a few clues that pointed to the gun man, they finally led up to Yanagi. The Japanese fired upon was an employe of the Davison dairy, and the chief was told by him and by other residents in the neighborhood about a "bad" Japanese who was persona non grata with every resident, master or servant, in Manoa Valley.
It seems that a Japanese had come to the valley about six months ago inquiring for Yanagi and for a position at the same time. Namura, the boy who answered his first question, was the one who was fired upon last week. Ever since the stranger had asked about Yanagi, the latter gentleman, who evidently considered him a person looking for his job, has been down on Namura. Every time that he passed him or any of the other Davison employes he would spit at them and walk past without saying a word. He did not confine his bad manners to his fellow countrymen but bestowed them impartially on all that he met.
Yanagi is also charged with letting the cows and the bull of the Dinklage dairy, of which he is an employe, loose upon the neighborhood, the cows destroying the gardens of the residents and the bull destroying their nerves and good temper.
A pig sty was also burned down on the premises of a neighbor who was supposed to be at outs with this estimable gentleman, pigs soaked in oil being found around the charred ruins wherein a litter of pigs had been burned to death.
Working on the theory that this man seemed to be the only one in the valley who had a grudge against Namura, McDuffie went to his house accompanied by Special Officer Bergan, the Japanese interpreter of the detective force.
All the doors and windows were firmly locked and the house seemed to be deserted. McDuffie broke in and found an inner room also locked. He heard a knocking inside and breaking in he also found the man he was after, scared white and trembling so that he could hardly stand up.
"Where's that gun?" demanded the chief, threateningly, before Yanagi could lose the impression that he was going to be shot down on the spot.
The Japanese pointed to a gun of antique pattern hanging on the wall which hadn't been fired since the American revolution. McDuffie thanked the badly scared man for his information and backed him up against the wall where he had a short heart to heart talk with him. It all resulted in Yanagi going to his bed and dragging a 32-caliber revolver from under the mattress.
The chief considered the circumstantial evidence that he had secured sufficient to hold the man for a little more investigation and started to take him down the road. When he passed the house where the Davison employes were sitting on the lanai, Yanagi called to them, saying:
"You informed on me. Wait until I get out and I'll see you, this time."
He spoke in Japanese, evidently thinking that he was safe in doing so, but Bergan overheard him and it will make good testimony against him.
The case against the man is further strengthened by the fact that in the broken end of the rope that was tied around the door, holding the other Japanese prisoner, McDuffie found the counterpart to a broken end of rope that was tied around Yanagi's dog. The wire that assisted the rope in imprisoning the man was also traced and points against Yanagi.
Another exhibit that will appear against the man is the gun itself and the bullets that were found under his mattress. McDuffie has taken the precaution of securing one of the discharged bullets that had imbedded itself in the wall of the house where Namura was a prisoner. He then extracted a pellet from one of the whole bullets and compared it with the discharged one. Both are of the same caliber, both have the same beading around the side and both have an identical indentation on the under side.
There is further testimony forthcoming to the effect that the gun was carried around by Yanagi. One day he was riding in one of Judge Frank Andrade's wagons, sitting beside the driver, when he remarked that the horse was not going fast enough. He pulled out his gun which he had wrapped in a piece of cloth and fired it at the side of the road. The horse developed sudden speed and the driver departed just as suddenly for the bottom of the wagon.
McDuffie is not going to take chances in constraining the law any longer and will let the city attorney's office fix the charge against the man tomorrow.

THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH.
A new scientific method of life insurance is being introduced. HAWAII GETS ALL SHE WENT AFTER

The large appropriations and authorizations for naval improvements at Pearl Harbor. In practically every instance congress has given the Territory all the money asked for, and this has been done without contention worth any emphasis. The cut which the house made temporarily in the Pearl Harbor appropriations and the temporary withdrawal of authorization for a larger drydock there were only technical and had very little significance—much less than was apparently thought in Hawaii.
Then the general legislation for Hawaii this session has been material, including the Organic Act bill and the prohibition reorganization.
Delegate and Princess Kalamianole left here this morning for home. Mr. and Mrs. G. B. McClellan will remain in the States for a while and may go upon a short automobile tour next week.
Concrete for Lilehua.
Mr. McClellan learned at the war department this morning that the quartermaster-general has decided upon the concrete type of construction for the cavalry barracks near Honolulu. Congress appropriated over $200,000 for these barracks a long time ago but there have been many delays in getting around to expend the money. The quartermaster-general asked Mr. McClellan to see him after July 1, when he expects to give him more information about the construction plans. Mr. McClellan has also asked the war department to prepare estimates to be submitted to congress next autumn covering the cost of filling in the swamps back of the artillery fort at Waikiki.
Frear Heard From.
Governor Frear, who is at Yale University this week, has been heard from by Hawaiians here to whom he has stated that he is uncertain whether he will be able to return by way of Washington. It is thought he may have some recommendation to make regarding the appointment of a new collector of internal revenue for the Islands.
Not Believed In.
The complaint filed here regarding the treatment of Russian immigrants in Hawaii has made no impression here whatever and seems to be regarded as a purely routine matter. Judge Hatch has been inquiring with regard to it but there is no prospect that the federal government will interfere.
The Wynne Case.
The department of justice will await the recommendations of federal officials in Hawaii before taking any steps in the proposed commutation of the sentence of Murderer Wynne. The Delegate and Mr. McClellan went twice to the department of justice in his behalf and on one of these visits saw the attorney-general. The fixing of September 5 as the date for the execution is regarded as far enough away to give time for the papers to be returned here from Hawaii. It is customary to have the recommendation of the judge who tried the case and of the district attorney before taking any definite action.

HIGHER WAGERS OUT OF JAIL.

King street, where a few bananas were indulged in and the congratulations of their friends extended.
Without waiting upon the order of their going, all four were immediately rushed off to the Honolulu Athletic Park, just in time to see the Waseda baseball team come off the diamond with laurels.
Another meeting was held at the Yamashira Hotel, the old assembling place of the officers of the Higher Wage Association and the place where the strike of a year ago was planned.
All four were released unconditionally and are perfectly free in every respect. Makino will resume the management of his drug store, at the corner of Nuuanu and Hotel, Soga and Tasak will again take their places in the Nippon Jiji office, the first as editor and the second as assistant. It will be a gala edition of the Nippon Jiji which comes out today, edited for the first time since the strike by the old editors.
"Negoro's mother is very sick in Japan," said Makino last night, "and he will probably leave the islands to go to her this week or next. I can not say whether he will remain permanently or whether he will return to the Islands."
It is commonly believed, however, that it is hardly optional with Negoro as to whether he goes to Japan or not, for he has been considered the arch agitator of the exciting days of the strike, and it is conceded that he has been emphatically requested to depart for the island empire at the earliest opportunity.
The big excursion crowds that went to Maui on the Kinau and to Hilo on the Mauna Kea will be back in the city today barring mishap. The two vessels will arrive this morning.

"SUNNY JIM" IN AUTO SMASHUP

(Special Wireless to The Advertiser.)

HILO, July 4.—James McCandless met with an accident here today while riding in Mr. Kennedy's automobile. The machine, while running, sustained a broken axle, throwing the occupants out. Mr. McCandless landed with a thud and when account was taken of injuries it was found he had two broken ribs.

WHY SUFFER FROM RHEUMATISM?

It is a mistake to allow anyone to suffer from rheumatism, as the pain can always be relieved, and in most cases a cure effected by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by all druggists. Bennett, Smith & Co., Ltd., agents for Hawaii.
