

CIRCLED ISLAND TO ARREST WOMAN

Federal Force Autos Oahu to Apprehend Female "Blind-Pigger."

(From Monday's Advertiser.)
A federal expedition yesterday circled the island in an automobile on a mission which resulted in the arrest of a diminutive Japanese lady, whose name is supposed to be Miki Harano, on a charge of selling various kinds of liquor in violation of the United States internal revenue regulation which requires that the payment of a license fee of twenty-five dollars.

Miss Miki, or Mrs. Miki, had the license of a wide in a big seven-seater select company, though she doubtless carries somewhat as to what the law will do to her for neglecting to pay the $25.00 license fee.

United States Internal Revenue Collector Walter F. Drake, United States marshal Eugene R. Hendry, Interpreter George Yamada, Revenue Inspector J. L. Stanley, Stephens and the chauffeur occupied the machine going to the windward side of the island, the little lady adding but little to the human cargo on the return.

The machine was taken over the Paia road to Waimea, about five miles north of Haleiwa, where Miki Harano's home joint was located. She appeared surprised at the sudden appearance of a distinguished crowd, little suspecting that Sunday of all days would be a occasion of such a call. Her male friends offered no resistance to the officers of the law, contenting themselves with voicing objections in their own language, which were enjoyed only by the interpreter. Miki was allowed to get together a few personal belongings to add to her comfort during detention and was made room for in the machine without difficulty.

The return trip was made by way of ahiaha, the party getting back to town by six o'clock last evening, bringing in some of the booze as evidence.

THEY ALL DEMAND IT

Honolulu, Like Every Other Community, Receives It.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of aching back, relief is eagerly sought. There are many remedies today to relieve but do not cure. Here is evidence to prove that Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cure, and the cure is lasting.

Mrs. N. U. Miller, 1509 Jackson St., Baltimore, Md., says: "For over a year I suffered from kidney complaint. Every day movement sent sharp pains through my loins and it often seemed as if my back were being pulled apart. I did not sleep well and had all the symptoms of a bad case of kidney trouble. My feet and ankles swelled so I could hardly wear my shoes. My kidney secretions were unnatural and I knew that I was in need of a kidney medicine. I was dizzy when I first awoke in the morning and was often unable to grasp something to keep from falling. Headaches were common and suffering nearly drove me frantic. The contents of two boxes of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills effected a complete cure and during the past three months I have had no recurrence of my complaint. I can not praise Doan's Backache Kidney Pills too highly."

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists and storekeepers 50 cents per box (six boxes $2.50) will be mailed on receipt of price to the Hollister Drug Co., Honolulu, sole agents for the Hawaiian Islands. Remember the name, Doan's, and do not substitute.

SCHEDULE FOR THE PAPAIOU RUN

On or about October 15 the Hilo road Company will have finished its big bridge near Papaioou and be ready to start a regular train service between that town and Hilo. It is planned to start it with a three train service at first, the schedule being only temporary one, and, if it can be found beneficial changes can be made, which will make the service more convenient to the traveling public, the management will take the matter up at that time and see that the trains leave at desired times. -Hilo Herald.

WILL PETRIE AND M'CLELLAN QUIT?

Move on to Get Two Democratic Supervisorial Candidates to Leave Ticket.

There is a strong movement on foot among prominent business men to get Leslie Petrie and W. H. McClellan to withdraw from the Democratic ticket as candidates for the supervisorial board. The reasons given are that their presence on the ticket, pledged to support the Democratic platform which is anti-immigration, is inimical to the best interests of the Territory inasmuch as, adding their strength to the work of Link McCandless for delegate to congress, they increase the possibility of Link slipping into Washington and agitating anti-immigration legislation.

The situation is made more interesting by the fact that both Petrie and McClellan are men well and favorably known and not without popularity. But they are employed by corporations which are more or less connected with sugar interests and sugar is far and away the chief industry of the Territory.

Leslie Petrie is with the Oahu Railway and Land Company, while McClellan is with the Honolulu Iron Works, and representative business interests are bringing it to the consideration of the railway and the iron works that it is inadvisable that two such men as Petrie and McClellan should lend their influence to a cause opposed to immigration and therefore to the best interests and general welfare of the islands.

It is argued that these men, standing as they do against immigration, since they are Democrats and at least supposed to be backing the Democratic candidate for congress, by withdrawing from the Democratic supervisorial ticket and allowing others to take their places, others whose employment does not represent the big concerns which Petrie and McClellan represent, would lessen the chances of the country suffering so great a misfortune as McCandless being elected, and would strengthen the cause of Kuhio and immigration for which the Republican party stands.

McClellan, working for the Honolulu Iron Works and running for supervisor on the Democratic ticket, would have a tendency to draw support from among the many employees of the iron works, drawing votes which might be cast for McCandless as well as for McClellan, since McCandless and McClellan stand on the same anti-immigration platform. The influence of a man among them running for office would perhaps spread to the extent of his winning votes for other Democratic candidates than himself, for it is reasonable to suppose that an earnest Democrat is working for the entire Democratic ticket and not alone for himself.

The same thing may be said of Petrie's influence as being a candidate for office from among the employees of the Oahu Railway and Land Company.

It is sought to be shown to both Petrie and McClellan that it is for the welfare of the islands, for the advancement of prosperity in Hawaii, for the betterment of business and other conditions generally that they remove from the voters the temptation of voting for them and perhaps for others of the same party which, chiefly through Link McCandless, is so violently opposed to the very thing upon which is based hopes for a greater, broader, richer and happier Hawaii; namely immigration.

Just how Petrie and McClellan look on this proposal it is difficult to say, and numbers of their friends are inclined to resent the idea, but it is argued that the situation is such that these gentlemen should be willing to withdraw their candidacy and allow two others of less influence, standing for less that is dependent on Hawaii's main industry, to take their places.

Immigration is the main issue of the campaign and the fact that two such men as Petrie and McClellan, by their candidacy, practically declare themselves against immigration is considered regrettable.

For several days there has been considerable more or less indefinite talk about Petrie and McClellan withdrawing, but now the matter seems to be assuming something of a more definite character.

Practically it is a proposition of the sugar interests saying to the iron works and to the railway: "Why should two of your best employees, whose interests are dependent upon the prosperity of your corporations, come out and fight against immigration when immigration is what we need to develop the country, and unless we get immigration of the right sort the sugar business, which supports your corporations, will suffer. We will suffer, you will suffer and they will suffer. Will they not withdraw and remove an influence and an example which is bound to work harm to the vital interests of Hawaii?"

Not only are they the sugar men who take this stand, but most of Hawaii's industries are prominently represented. And it is said that both Petrie and McClellan are seriously considering sacrificing their own interests upon the altar of the country's best interest.

DISCOVER COAL IN QUEENSLAND

BRISBANE, Queensland, September 10.—Discoveries of the greatest importance to the state are reported to have been made in an entirely undeveloped district. Geological surveys are being carried out with the object of confirming these reports to hand of the new discoveries of coal, and in the event of a confirmation of the statements received, a fresh source of revenue to the state will have been revealed.

NEW DREDGER DOES WORK WELL

The Hawaiian Dredging Company's new scraper dredge "Gaylord," recently launched, was put in operation Saturday over the bar at the entrance to Pearl Harbor channel, and did all that is claimed for this kind of machine. The machine is a new patent and the bucket is dragged towards the dredge. This test was satisfactory in every way and the machine, it is believed, will expedite the clearing up of the bar, which is one of the most difficult pieces of work in all the sections contracted for, because of occasional rough

FATAL SICKNESS ON BOAT.

When the Inter-Island steamer Kinns arrived yesterday morning, she had on board Maile Lumai, a Hawaiian woman, long a resident of Honolulu, who was returning from the Garden Island, where she had been taken sick. As soon as the steamer docked the police patrol was sent for and she was taken to her home on Luzzo street, but died in the afternoon. She was the stepmother-in-law of Desk Clerk A. K. Nawahi of the police force.

JAPANESE SHIPS DUE NOVEMBER 2

Armored Cruisers Asama and Kasagi Will Be Here on Mikado's Birthday.

His Imperial Japanese Majesty's armored cruisers Asama and Kasagi, according to advices received here yesterday by the Japanese consul-general, will be in Honolulu from Japan on November 2 next, to remain here for nearly a week. They will leave this port on November 8 for San Pedro, San Francisco and South American ports, and then return to Honolulu on February 3 to remain in this harbor until the fifth day of that month.

While the two cruisers are in this port there will be a special celebration, in which they will take part, of the birthday of the emperor, on November 3, an occasion when, because of the presence of the squadron, thousands of local Japanese will wax enthusiastic.

The squadron is carrying one hundred and forty cadets, eighty-nine being aboard the flagship Asama.

Rear-Admiral Takafushiro is commander of the squadron. Captain Tanaka is in command of the Asama, and Captain Yamaji commands the Kasagi.

The Asama heads what is termed the Asama class, the Tokiwa being her sister ship, and was built in England in 1898. She has a displacement of 9750 tons, a complement of 500 men, is 408 feet in length on the water line, with a beam of 67 feet and a maximum draft of 24 1/2 feet. She is armed with four eight-inch and fourteen six-inch guns, besides a dozen twelve-pounders and seven 2 1/2-pounders. She has five torpedo tubes, four below and one above the water line.

The Asama on trial reached a speed of twenty-three knots, but she can't touch this now, and the utmost made by the Asama in the war was nineteen knots, and that rarely. She is said to require reboiling. Her coal consumption is about ten and a half tons an hour at 10,000 horsepower, about twenty tons at full power.

The Kasagi is a sister of the Chitose, and has a displacement of 4760 tons and carries 405 men.

Her armament consists of two eight-inch and ten 4.7-inch guns, besides twelve twelve-pounders and six 2 1/2-pounders. She has four torpedo tubes above water.

Very little of the deck armor of the Kasagi is four and a half inches thick; most of it is half that thickness. The eight-inch guns have only small shields to them. Twenty-five torpedoes are carried. She carries automatic searchlights.

The Kasagi, like her sister, the Chitose, is a very heavy roller and is not very seaworthy. Two similar ships, Takasago and Yoshino, built at Elswick, were lost in the war. The Kasagi was built by Cramp's, in America.

THE DAY'S DOINGS ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE

Judging from the market of yesterday, the recent panicky slump in stock values ended with last week, a stronger tone being general throughout late trading. With the exception of Oahu Sugar, all other stocks netted increases or remained firm at their closing quotations of last week.

Waiaina jumped into favorite's place with numerous sales at 119, which one of the two session sales confirmed. Almost $10,000 changed hands for this stock yesterday, and while there are no immediate indications of a further rise, there is less indication of another decline.

Besides a block of 30 Waiaina, 20 shares of Ewa were the only stock sold during the session, most of the trading being noted from Saturday afternoon, when prices commenced to make a rapid run back to former levels. Both session sales, however, were confirmation of higher prices. Seventy shares of Hawaiian Commercial moved at a uniform 38, Honokaa showing up particularly strong in the sale of a large block of 106 at 14.50, a half-dollar increase.

Oahu Sugar, the first sale of which after Saturday's session was made at 30.125, dropped at once to the flat figure, where it remained, the same being asked and a fraction less bid.

Sales for the day were:

Waiaina	35 @ 119; 10 @ 119; 15 @ 119; 10 @ 119; 10 @ 119.
Oahu Sugar	5 @ 30.125; 25 @ 30; 50 @ 30; 65 @ 30.
Hawaiian Commercial	50 @ 38; 20 @ 38.
Honokaa	100 @ 14.50.
Ewa	20 @ 21.25.

NOTED THEOSOPHIST DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

LOS ANGELES, September 24.—Countess Constance Wachtmeister, a writer and lecturer on theosophical subjects and for many years closely associated with the late Mrs. Blavatsky, died here last night, aged 73. She had been ill about three weeks. Her son, Count Axel Raoul Wachtmeister, is expected to reach this country on the steamer Coron, due in New York today. He was summoned from abroad as soon as it was realized the illness of the countess was serious.

DRUNKEN WOMAN DIES BY FIRE

Aged Hawaiian Awakes on Burning Mattress—Too Insuperable to Save Herself.

Maikali Kaaalele, wife of Kaaalele, early yesterday drank herself into a drunken stupor, overturned the lamp and received burns which resulted in her death a few hours later.

The victim was a well-known Hawaiian woman, over seventy years of age. Late Saturday night she and her husband commenced to drink in their home on the Aylwin road and had by the small hours of the morning reduced themselves to drunken insensibility.

About ten minutes to four the lamp in some manner was overturned, according to what can be learned, and set fire to the mattress upon which the two were sleeping. They were awakened by the flames which were actually licking their bodies before they realized what the trouble was. Even then the woman was too far gone in liquor to set for herself and her aged husband dragged her as best he could to the door.

By this time, however, almost all the skin on her body had been burnt and her right side was in a horrible condition.

Desk Clerk Dan Kamahu of the police force, a near neighbor of the Kaaaleles, was called and rushed over to the burning cottage where Kaaalele had just succeeded in getting his wife to the lanai. Meanwhile the department had responded to a call from Box 56 but were unable to save the cottage which burnt to the ground.

Kamahu brought the injured woman to his own home where he left her while he hunted up the police patrol which had answered the fire call. She was taken to the Queen's Hospital at once where it was found that she was so badly burnt that the skin dropped off at the touch. Everything possible was done but she died about three o'clock in the afternoon.

COMPREHENSIVE REVIEW OF MEXICAN PROGRESS

The second annual national edition of the Mexican Herald, the Centennial Anniversary number, a handsomely illustrated magazine of 140 pages, contains a vast amount of information about the development of that country, well written and attractive typographically. There is much praise for President Diaz throughout the volume, and the improvements in the republic under his administration have been very marked.

The leading article of this edition has as its introductory the following: "One hundred years ago, on the night of September 15, 1810, Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, the parish priest of Dolores, in the present state of Guanajuato, summoned his parishioners around him, by ringing the bell of the church, and proclaimed the independence of Mexico."

"On the night of September 15, 1910, Gen. Porfirio Diaz, President of Mexico, in the ceremony of the Grito, rang that same bell, which now hangs over the central window of the National Palace."

"Thus, it may be said, Miguel Hidalgo and Porfirio Diaz clasped hands across the intervening century."

"It has been given to Porfirio Diaz to put the crown on the structure whose foundations Hidalgo sealed and cemented with his blood."

"To Hidalgo's initiative is due the birth of Mexico as an independent country. To Porfirio Diaz is due the consolidation of Mexico's progress and the building up of a community, once profoundly divided and torn by religious and civil discord, into a compact, united and prosperous nation."

COAST SHOULD GET EXPOSITION

Banker Damon in Favor of San Francisco for the Fair.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 21.—S. M. Damon, a prominent banker and large property owner of Honolulu, who is on his way to London on business, believes that as a matter of course the Panama-Pacific exposition will be awarded to San Francisco when the matter comes up in congress this December. He says that there could be no other decision if the relative merits of the two cities were properly discussed. As a man of large affairs, dealing with other big-caliber men, he looks at the case largely from the standpoint of personality, and asserts that there is nothing that can not be accomplished by the men who are behind the exposition project.

"You have able men here," said Damon at the Palace yesterday, "big men who take hold of things and accomplish whatever they make up their minds to do. I know of no failures out here in the West. Everything is pointing upwards. These strong men will carry through the project, I am sure."

"I don't see how New Orleans can hope for the exposition when San Francisco is her competitor. There can be no comparison between the cities, even considered as cities and not because of their geographical locations. You have the hotels, the wonderful site for an exposition facing the Pacific, the climate and the people who have proven that they can do things."

"As to geographical location, the call of the West will bring more people to San Francisco than could ever be drawn to New Orleans. The tide of travel is this way; very few go South. I think the statistics will bear me out in this. People will come out here, exposition or no exposition. Commerce is here, and the canal will bring it more than ever. Naturally we are interested in San Francisco and the canal, for our trade is here and with the eastern ports that will be connected with us after the canal is opened."

"You have everything here—the climate, the site, the people. But most of all the people. If the case is given fair discussion in congress San Francisco will be awarded the Panama-Pacific exposition for 1915."

ELEANOR GATES WRITES SKETCH FOR VAUDEVILLE

NEW YORK, September 23.—Eleanor Gates can now enjoy the honor of being a successful playwright, as well as her husband, Dick Tully, author of "The Rose of the Rancho." Her first attempt, "Justice of Gideon," is a vaudeville playlet. It had its initial production at Elizabeth, New Jersey, last night.

The writing of the piece followed a suggestion made by Edwin Holt, the comedian, to Tully. The actor wanted a certain short story dramatized. He did not remember the author, and sketched out the plot for Tully. It proved to be one of Eleanor Gates' short stories. The sketch will be produced in New York in three weeks.

Holt toured last season in the Ado sketch, "The Mayor and the Manicurist." He made a decided hit as the father of the freshman in "The College Widow." He staged the playlet of Eleanor Gates.

Eleanor Gates spent several weeks in Honolulu last spring.

FAMORED AS SUCCESSOR TO PRESIDENCY

WASHINGTON, September 21.—An interesting, though unofficial, report circulating in Washington today is that President Diaz of Mexico has decided that Enrique Creel, now minister of foreign affairs and formerly ambassador at Washington, shall succeed him as head of the republic of Mexico.

This would mean the elimination of Vice-President Corral, but the importance of the report from the American point of view is the assurance that Creel's presidency would give of the continuance of friendly relations with this country that were originated by President Diaz.

According to the report, Diaz has decided that Corral is not big enough for presidential honors.

FAMOUS DETECTIVE DECLARES THE BUILDING WAS WRECKED BY NITROGLYCERINE.

LOS ANGELES, October 3.—The ruins of the Times building, which was destroyed by an explosion early Saturday morning, have cooled sufficiently to permit searchers to commence operations. Up to date five bodies, unrecognizable, have been taken out, and the death list, as revised, is now twenty-one. That is supposed to be the final estimate, barring such deaths as may occur among those suffering from injuries received in the fire, of whom there are many.

The Los Angeles city council has raised the previous reward offered by it to $10,000. No arrests of importance have been made yet, although several suspects are being held under surveillance.

The police are guarding the homes of General Qtiq, president of the Times-Mirror company, publisher of the Times, and Harry Chandler, the general manager.

Other industrial plants in the city who have been fighting hard in cooperation with the Times against unionism have been threatened and more trouble is feared. Several of the large iron works are among these.

William J. Burns, the famous detective who ran the graft cases in San Francisco to ground for Francis J. Heney has been sent for to take up the case on behalf of the Times publishers. He examined the ruins yesterday and after a minute search declares that the cause of the explosion was nitroglycerine, one of the most deadly of explosives.
