

EMPLOYMENT OF FILIPINOS IS PRESENTED

Kauai Japanese Threaten to Leave Unless Radical Methods Are Adopted.

OAHU LABORERS SYMPATHIZE

Little Brown Brothers Threaten and Steal, and Highway Robbery Is Common.

After several years of quietude upon the part of the Japanese plantation laborers, following the Oahuian strike for higher wages, signs of unrest are again appearing, this time chiefly on Kauai, where the presence of Filipinos is causing widespread agitation.

According to information received by the Hawaii Shippo, which is, least of all, an agitating newspaper, the Kauai laborers are extremely wrought up and have notified several of the plantation managers that they will no longer work on the plantations where Filipinos are employed.

"Alleged Laborers." The little brown brothers are sarcastically referred to as "alleged laborers" in the Honolulu Japanese newspapers, and the Japanese of this island are also being aroused over the question, extending their sympathy and encouragement to their brethren on the northern island, who report several outrages perpetrated on them by Filipinos.

Calling them "loafers and highway-men," the Japanese are entering on a consistent campaign against their Filipino competitors. A number of the latter have been "fired" from the leeward side of the island and the Lihue, and neighboring Japanese are rising in protest, following several attacks made upon them by the Filipinos.

Threatened With Death. The islanders have been entering the houses of Japanese, threatening and stealing, and highway robbery has become a common thing they assert.

Monday a Japanese named Nakamoto was held up at the Hanalei plantation, part of the Lihue plantation, near the Lihue hospital, by three Filipinos and robbed of fifteen dollars on a threat of death, ugly Filipino triangular knives being held at his throat.

Tuesday ten Filipinos attacked a Japanese named Nakamura from Kapaa, but thanks to a good horse he broke away from them and escaped. It is understood that several of the managers are ascribing the trouble to liquor and have warned the "saloons" to stop selling booze, notwithstanding the fact that Kauai is supposed to be dry anyway.

Japanese papers report that it is dangerous for the Japanese to go abroad either day or night, alone and the Japanese themselves have issued a manifesto saying that unless radical methods are at once adopted with the Filipinos, they will leave all the plantations where they are employed.

NEWLY BORN BABY CUTS HIS TEETH

A baby born last Sunday has commenced to cut his teeth. This is the remarkable news brought to the Advertiser yesterday morning by the proud father of the infant wonder, Wong Wa, who was advised by his admiring friends that he should have this unusual intelligence published broadcast.

It was a glad enough day for the parents when the child was born last Sunday and was found to weigh thirteen pounds. The couple had been married for six years and this was their first offspring. There were great festivities and so one thought that they could be any happier. But a greater joy was to be in store for the happy parents.

NO GOLD BEING HOARDED AWAY

Treasurer Is Putting Coin into Circulation at a Very Rapid Rate.

Before the end of the month the territorial treasury department will have passed out in good coin over its counters for the thirty-one days something like a hundred and sixty thousand dollars. A little more than half of this amount will have been paid over to the various counties as their share of the taxes for 1910 remaining; the other seventy-odd thousand will go for current bills, which are somewhat heavier than usual.

This hundred and sixty thousand reduces to quite an extent the amount of public gold in the various banks, the demand for cash having compelled Treasurer Conkling to go into the bank vaults to keep enough in his own for the demand.

The fact that the treasurer is drawing rather more freely than usual upon the surplus deposited in the local banks accounts for the street reports that the loan money market is tightening up, so far as the banks go. It has been stated that Treasurer Conkling is drawing the greater part of the Territory's surplus from the banks and hoarding the gold in the treasury vault, but this is an error.

"The scarcity of money reported can not very well be blamed on the treasury department," said Mr. Conkling yesterday, when told that he was credited with having hoarded gold lying idle, with the street hungry for more currency. "We are passing out the money as fast as possible and getting it in circulation. The treasury department is not withdrawing any more money from the banks than it has to have to meet the demand. We will put out a hundred and sixty thousand dollars among the county treasurers and the people whom the Territory owes before the end of the month. We have no surplus money hoarded away, nor do we want to have any."

FAIR AUCTIONEER MAKES A RECORD

Knocked Down Kapaa Lot at Figure Twelve Times More Than Usual Price.

There is material for a suffragette argument in the report of a sale of one of the Kapaa townsite lots, which came from Kauai yesterday. The land was auctioned off by a member of the weaker sex, who kept the crowd so anxious to respond to her "What am I bid? Make it a half, a half, going, going, are you all through?" until the upset price was multiplied twelve times before the hammer fell and the final "Gone" was spoken.

Miss Bernice Hundley was the auctioneer. She holds the position of subland agent for Kawaihau as well as that of teacher in the government school, and in the former capacity mounted the steps of the Kapaa courthouse on Saturday last and faced the fifty or more men who had gathered for the occasion. The parcel offered was one of the best lots left unsold in the new Kapaa townsite, having five rent-producing buildings on its twenty thousand square feet. The advertised upset price was $100 and there were several at the sale who figured on buying it in at from two to three times that figure.

They estimated without the knowledge of the auctioneer, however, who described the land so well in her opening remarks that the opening clatter was a bid of $400. This came from E. J. Morgan, head carpenter of the Kestia plantation.

C. B. Gray, proprietor of the Kapaa Wine Company, saw the four hundred and raised it to the half-thousand.

The "small farmers" throw down their hands and watched, while the bidding went on, by tens and twenties, until the wine merchant made it $1150 and dared the carpenter to call. This topped Morgan's limit and Gray got the property.

GLACE PRODUCTS OF PINE COMPANY

Candied Pineapple Put Up in an Attractive Form for Trade.

The manufacture of glace fruits on a large scale will be one of the enterprises of the Hawaiian Pineapple Company and its subsidiary company, the Hawaiian Pineapple Products Company. Pineapple will form the basis for most of this output, and a sample lot of fruits, put up in fancy baskets, has found favor with the trade, and when the company is able to devote more time this will be one of the principal by-products.

BODY RESCUED FROM TORRENT

Found in Cave Under Waterfall, Bathed in Rainbow Spray.

KIPAHULU, Maui, January 16.—The body of J. E. Kirkman, the young Mermon elder who lost his life while fording a mountain torrent at Alele recently, has been recovered from the whirlpool at the foot of the 200-foot precipice over which he and his mule were carried by the swollen stream. The body was found in a water cave just below the falls.

Brave men let themselves down the heights into the gorge by ropes twice during the search for the body. The first time all they could find was the battered body of the faithful mule, which for a week or more has been swirling round and round in the pool. But fate was kinder to the body of the missionary of his faith, and the tumbling waters, as though propitiated with the sacrifice, gently carried the remains to the sandy margin of the cave, where, veiled by the falling waters and washed continually with a rainbow spray, it was preserved as though in sleep, some day to wake again.

Body Is Recovered. With tender care the body was drawn to the brow of the cliff, and under the direction of Frank McMaisters, who was his companion at the time of the accident and escaped with his life, warned by his friend's fate, it was placed in a rude coffin, temporarily, and the solemn procession started for Kipahulu and the cemetery.

It was late in the day when the body was recovered; but the sun shown in all its splendor, sifting among the great tree ferns and tropical jungle through which lay the road, and powdering the bearers and their burden with golden notes. And so, about dusk, the mourners reached their destination.

Outside the village, back toward the hills, lies the little cemetery where the dead lie sleeping to the rhythm of the living mountains, clothed in their green mantles, with a coronet of snow, and frontward shines the sea. Here rests the body of the man from the deserts of Utah, whose life was given to duty.

The Funeral Setting. Over Kaupo shone the crescent moon, symbol of hope, and the shadows from the sunset bathed the valley in mourning haze. The little company gathered about their dead and, by the flickering light of lanterns, paper and glass, made such a resting place in old Mother Earth's bosom as weary travelers sleep in.

And soon the casket was in place and about the open grave assembled the men who had toiled for this moment, reverent, awe stricken in the glory of the tropic night; above, the shining stars, the tilted moon, the wonders of the heavens; below, the shadows and the darkness, the moaning of the sea and specks of light, that lit with a dusky paleness the mound of earth and bent heads.

Hope in Farewell. By the side of the grave stood Elder McMaisters, silent for awhile, with tears unnoticed flowing from brimming eyes. And he stretched out his hands and spoke words of supplication to God, of farewell to his brother in friendship, of hope in life everlasting.

Word will be sent to the family of young Kirkman in Utah and if they decide to bring home to the land where his people live the body now at rest, it will be shipped to the Coast sometime in the spring. But wherever he sleeps will be the peace of the Almighty.

This morning the school children of Kipahulu decorated the grave of the stranger with fresh flowers.

FUNERAL STOPS, MOURNERS POSE, CAMERA SNAPS

Stopping a funeral in order to pose for a group photograph is the latest innovation in Honolulu. A Japanese funeral procession which was slowly winding up Nuuanu avenue toward the cemetery, on Tuesday, was halted near the bridge, where a photographer was in waiting, and the mourners, relatives and attendants left the carriages and were arranged in proper photographic groups to face the camera.

The photographer with an artistic eye for the proper arrangements, stretched the line of mourners, relatives and others from the curb toward the home, the line and the carriages forming a V at the opening of which the photographer took his station and snapped the gathering.

But in order that no feature of the procession should be missing the photographer had the floral decorations removed from the carriages and placed in front of the line of people.

This innovation followed a desire on the part of relatives of the dead person to forward to Japan some evidence of the funeral and the respect in which the deceased in his lifetime had been held here, and decided that a photograph of the funeral procession would establish the facts.

COTTRILL AFTER SOME POINTERS

Letter From Unknown Factor in Internal Revenue Matter Seeks News.

Intimations of trouble seem to have reached Charles A. Cottrill, the Toledo, Ohio, negro, appointed collector of internal revenue of Hawaii, if inferences from letters now in the hands of the local civil service commission are correct. Charles R. Doll, of Columbus, Ohio, although for the present, the gentleman's identity ends there, is a new figure on the scene who either aspires to the first deputyship under Cottrill, or else is agent for Cottrill, or, still inferring, may be Cottrill himself.

John Scott, secretary of the local civil service commission, lately received letters from Hon. Albert Douglas of the house of representatives enclosing letters received by him from Charles R. Doll, of Columbus, asking numerous questions relating to the appointing power of Cottrill, should his appointment to the local office be confirmed, and also the regulations governing the office here.

Can Not Appoint. The answers to these questions, which have been fully prepared by the civil service commission not only set at rest any ideas Cottrill might have of importing his own force, but also put the quietus on several attempts to get other local men into the deputyships. Under certain rulings, Carl Wileman, who has already been offered the first deputyship, is as much barred as any man that Cottrill could bring.

When the last first-class clerical examinations were held by the commission, a list of fourteen eligibles were created, but only three of these expressed their willingness to take position in the internal revenue office. Lately all the balance have done so and this full list must first be used up by Cottrill, providing, in the first place, that he discharge any of the present staff for cause under the civil service rules.

Civil Service Status. The answer is as follows: "The commission has the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 20, 1910, enclosing a communication addressed to you by Charles R. Doll of Columbus, Ohio, in which he submits a list of questions relating to first grade positions under the Collector of Internal Revenue of Hawaii. In reply you are advised as follows:

"First. Federal positions in the Territory of Hawaii are filled in the same manner as positions in the same class in other localities outside of Washington. Insular positions in Hawaii are not qualified.

"Second. This commission has a local branch of the civil service at Honolulu which conducts the examinations which are held at Honolulu for all federal positions in the classified competitive service.

"Third. The records show that an examination was held at Honolulu November 19, 1910, to establish a register for filling first grade and clerical positions in each branch of the federal service in that city. As a result of that examination a register of fourteen eligibles was established on November 21, 1910, and it appears that only three of that number were willing to accept appointment in the internal revenue service. It further appears that one of that number has since been notified for appointment.

How Appointed. Under the civil service rules the appointing officer is required to make selection for filling a vacancy from the highest three names on the register with sole reference to merit and fitness unless objection in made and sustained by the commission to one or more of the persons certified.

"Fifth. This question is answered in four.

"Sixth. When there is at least one eligible and not more than two eligibles on the register in any grade in which a vacancy exists the rules require that the name of the one eligible and the name of the two eligibles shall be considered by the appointing officer with a view to probational service, and if the appointing officer shall elect not to make a probational appointment from such list of less than three names then, if temporary appointment is required it shall be made from such certificate unless reasons satisfactory to the commission are given why such appointment should not be made.

"Seventh. It appears that all positions under the collector of internal revenue at Honolulu are in the classified competitive list.

"Eighth. The matter of the bonding of the deputy collector is a question that relates to the treasury department. Vacancies.

"Ninth. Any vacancies occurring in the classified competitive positions under the collector of Honolulu not filled by reinstatement, transfer, promotion, or reduction, is required to be filled by selection from the eligible register.

"Tenth. The policy of the head of the department when a new officer is appointed, as to retaining the force employed when he assumes control, is a matter which relates to the administration of the treasury department, the commission having no authority to interfere unless it appears that appointments have been made in violation of the civil service rules."

FLIES FROM CRUISER.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 18.—Aviator Ely today gave a remarkable exhibition of accuracy in handling a biplane. He flew from Aviation Field, South San Francisco, to the cruiser Philadelphia, in the bay, and alighted easily on a platform built on the deck of the cruiser. After remaining there for a while, he successfully ascended and returned to the field.

M'QUAID TESTIFIES IN OWN DEFENSE

Family Tragedy Is Rehearsed by Heartbroken Husband and Father.

MRS. WILLIAM M'QUAID. Prominent in the trial of her husband for the attempted murder of Volney Driver.

Telling of the breaking up of his home by the man whom, in a fit of madness, brought on by brooding and drink, he tried to kill, William McQuaid yesterday took the stand in his own defense in Judge Cooper's court and rehearsed the whole sordid story which ended in a revolver duel in the city's busiest street.

The prosecution rested its case early yesterday morning, McQuaid being the first witness in his own defense after Attorney Douthitt had given an outline of the defense to the jury. The defendant almost collapsed several times under ordeal of baring the shame of his family and after breaking down several times, the court adjourned the trial at twelve o'clock until this morning.

Driver came to Kona in 1906, when McQuaid was the manager of the Kona Development Company and the latter not only gave him a position as book-keeper under him, but introduced him into his own home, where he lived for some time while better accommodations were being constructed elsewhere.

Driver's intimacy with Mrs. McQuaid commenced during that year although it was not until the first of 1910 that McQuaid learned of it. When he came to that part of his testimony where he described his first discovery of his wife's unfaithfulness he could not speak and had to answer with signs.

One pathetic part of the evidence was that wherein after the steamer had brought him to Honolulu the day before he was expected, and after he had discovered Driver slinking from his house, his little child made a curious remark the next morning which bared the whole thing to him.

McQuaid will continue his testimony this morning.

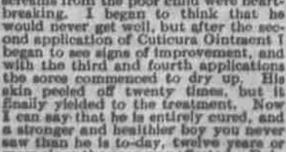

William N. Stewart and Miss Julia Quinn were married at Lihue, Kauai, on Tuesday, the ceremony taking place at the residence of A. S. Wilcox.

NOT AN INCH OF HEALTHY SKIN

Left on Whole Body—Boy of Five a Mass of Itching Eruption and His Screams were Heart-Breaking—Bandages Stuck to His Flesh.

CURED BY CUTICURA TWELVE YEARS AGO

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did no good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put his Cuticura ointment on him on bandages, so it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-breaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. Now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day, twelve years or more since the cure was effected. Robert Wattam, 1148 Forty-ninth St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9, 1900."

Millions of women prefer Cuticura Soap to all other skin soaps for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. For rashes, itchings and chafings, red, rough hands, dry, thin and falling hair, for infantile eruptions and skin blemishes and every purpose of the toilet, bath and nursery, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are invaluable.

Cuticura Soap (25c), Cuticura Ointment (15c) and Cuticura Balm (10c) are sold by all druggists and dealers. For a full description of the merits of Cuticura, see the book "How to Cure Skin Diseases," which is sent free on application to the Cuticura Laboratories, 1148 Forty-ninth St., Chicago, Ill.

FROM KEY WEST TO CUBA IN BIPLANE

Young Aviator Is Arranging to Cross Straits in One Flight.

HOPES TO LAND IN HAVANA

The One-Hundred-and-Twenty-Five-Mile Flight Would Set New Record.

KEY WEST, January 19.—Preparations are being made here by Aviator McCurdy and his staff of assistants to fly from this city to Havana, Cuba, a distance, approximately, of one hundred and twenty-five miles, south by west.

McCurdy is confident that in his biplane he will be able to cover the distance, necessarily in one flight, unless he is blown out of his course to the westward, where he could find some sandy keys to make a landing upon.

Faster Than Any Tug. The daring young aviator is negotiating with the proprietors of an ocean going tug here to follow him across the strait in case of some unforeseen accident, but those experienced in flights assert that the tug will have no chance to keep up with the aeroplane if the flight is a successful one, even from the start.

McCurdy says he will start next week, as all arrangements will be ready by that time, but the day itself has not been decided upon, for it will depend upon the state of the weather as to when the start is made.

May Set New Record. If McCurdy's effort is successful it will set a new record for flights over any large body of water, especially between two countries. The English Channel, which has been crossed a number of times, is only about one-third the distance between here and Havana. The last attempt made to cross the channel was by the American aviator Grace, who lost his life.

DOCTOR BURKE IN EMPHATIC DENIAL REFUTES CHARGES

SANTA ROSA, January 19.—Dr. William Burke, on trial in the superior court here on a charge of blowing up Miss Lu Etta Smith and her baby with dynamite, in an attempt to kill them, took the stand in his own behalf yesterday.

During the long trial sensation has followed sensation and the courtroom was packed yesterday, when the doctor took the stand, and in the most positive manner denied that he was implicated in any way with the dynamite outrage.

At the same time Doctor Burke took occasion to refute the story of his relations with the Smith woman, denying that she was his mistress or that the child was his. It is expected that the case will go to the jury some time on Friday.

CONTESTED LAND IN MANOA GOES TO THE COLLEGE

Governor Frear yesterday issued a proclamation giving the thirty acres of contested land in Manoa Valley to the College of Hawaii which it is to use in its agricultural and other practical instruction after, and possibly before, the new college buildings are built there.

The Hop Sing Company, which was first evicted when the Territory took possession of the land after winning its suit against the Kapiolani Estate for its possession, has been granted three months' time in which to take off the vegetables now growing on it, $100 being paid the government as rent for that period.

C. W. Ashford, who is reported to have threatened to bring contempt proceedings against Attorney-General Lindsey for his share in the matter, has not given up the fight on behalf of the estate. He spent some time in Judge Robinson's chambers yesterday, emerging once to ascertain the condition of the court calendar and then returning again, leaving Territory officials wondering about just what manner of artillery he is going to bring up in the next battle of Manoa Valley.

K. Kawatani, accused of the murder of a fellow countryman at Kakaako a few weeks ago, was arraigned before Judge Cooper yesterday, pleading not guilty. His case has been continued to be set.
