CONSTANTINOPLE, February 7.—(Special to The Advertiser)—The Sheik ul Islam has proclaimed a holy war throughout the Moslem world. This will aid the Turks in their Balkan struggle and will make every Mohammedan a possible soldier in the struggle of the Crescent against the Cross.

(By Federal Wireless Telegraph.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, February 7.—(Special to The Advertiser)—The terrific fighting between Turkish and Balkan troops on Gallipoli Peninsula, which has been in progress two days, was resumed at daylight. The Bulgarians are holding the villages already captured, but the Turks are making a desperate stand at Gallipoli in defense of the Dardanelles.

Reports that the Turks lost several thousand men in yesterday's battle were semi-officially confirmed today.

WAR MAY END SOON.

LONDON, February 7.—(Special to The Advertiser)—With Belgrade dispatches admitting that the bombardment of Adrianople is continuing today with only the slightest damage to that fortress, diplomats and military observers here are rapidly settling to the belief that the exhaustion of both Turkey and the Allies will soon end the Balkan war.

Europe, it is said, will not loan money to either side, and as the Allies are known to be nearly as impoverished as Turkey, it is expected that peace negotiations soon will be resumed, because both will lack means to fight further.

COAL MINERS GET ADVANCE

Increase in Wages of Five Per Cent Promised Workers in British Federated Area.

LONDON, February 7.—(Special to The Advertiser)—Coal miners in the federated area of England and Wales have been granted a further increase in wages of five per cent, effective in January.

This is in addition to the five per cent increase granted last year and it brings the wages of the men up to sixty per cent above the standard wage of 1888.

The Scottish and South Wales coal fields, where there is always more or less trouble between the men and the employers, are in the federated area.

Map showing portion of Turkish Empire most affected by the present fighting. At Adrianople the besieging Bulgars and Serbs expect to take the city by storm. The fighting at the Tchatalja lines, a few miles from Constantinople, is constant, but the main campaign of the Allies is now in the Gallipoli peninsula, the fortifications of which prevent the Greek fleet from following up its victories over the fleet of the Turks and threading the Dardanelles into the Sea of Marmora and to Constantinople. The main Greek army and a large force of Bulgarians are now facing seventy thousand Turks and Arabs in this district. Below—the two Turkish leaders.

OPIUM HAUL IN YOUNG HOTEL MADE

Aged Guest Caught With Trunk Full of Forbidden Juice of the Poppy.

THREW UP SPONGE AT ONCE

Confessed as Soon as Officials Entered His Room—Was His Seventieth Birthday.

From Saturday Advertiser.

"I know what you're here for. There's no use denying it. If you look in my trunk you'll find the opium." So spoke S. D. Hausman, of Seattle, a guest at the Alexander Young Hotel, after he had answered a peremptory knock at his room door yesterday afternoon and found R. W. Brecknon, United States district attorney, and E. R. Stackable, collector of customs, at his threshold. He waved his hand towards his trunk and sunk into a chair. It was his seventieth birthday and the police patrol wagon was waiting for him at the door.

A few minutes later, carrying a heavy box containing one hundred and ten tins of contraband dope, the two officials left the room, accompanied by the old man. They hurried past the curious crowd in the lobby to the street, where they entered the police auto-patrol and were whisked away.

Shortly after four o'clock the two United States officers went into the hotel. There was nothing unusual in their appearance in the lobby, for Mr. Brecknon had been frequently seen there in the last week, meeting friends from the Rocky Mountains and elsewhere. They went up to the third floor and paused in front of room 89, at the door of which they knocked. They were admitted by a tall, dignified looking man whose hair was silver. He was a benevolent looking man, well known to the habitués of the lobby.

The two officers went inside and the door was locked. The occupant of the room knew of their mission and denial was useless. He forestalled direct inquiries as to whether he had any opium in his possession by suddenly saying:

"I know what you're here for. There's no use denying it. If you'll look in my trunk you'll find one hundred and ten tins of opium!"

With an invitation of this nature the officers lost no time in opening the trunk and there were revealed the familiar looking tins containing poppy juice. It was the biggest seizure for months and represented a small fortune.

The tins were taken out and a search made of other baggage, but all the opium was where the old man said it would be found. It was bundled and after Hausman had prepared himself for his destination he accompanied the officers, passed into the police patrol and was soon at the police station, where he was booked and given a cell. He remained there last night.

Several Traps Here. Mr. Hausman is a real estate man of Seattle, where his wife, almost his own age, resides. He has made several visits to Honolulu, but whether he has engaged in the business of smuggling before has not been made public. It is understood that he has figured in opium deals.

All the local boats plying between the Coast and Honolulu are now watched as closely as the through boats, and opium is beginning to turn up in unexpected places. It is rumored that Hausman has divulged information which will be followed up by the officers, whose net will, in all probability, snare several others with whom Hausman and his confederates have been doing business.

GENERAL MILES LAUDS REPUBLIC OF ORIENT

WASHINGTON, January 25.—That the American government, because of the success and happiness it has brought the people of this country, is being copied the world over, was the declaration of Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles at the annual banquet of the Masonic Veteran Association of the District of Columbia.

"No people on earth, as a people, are enjoying more privileges or greater happiness than are the people of the United States," declared the speaker. "People here are better clothed, better fed and better housed than anywhere else on the globe. I prophesy that the future has richer stores than anything we have had before." He declared that conditions were favorable for such a condition because of the improvement in means of communication.

General Miles pointed out the Chinese revolution and birth of the Chinese Republic as an example of how the form of government of this country was being copied by the other nations of the earth.

"When it was my privilege a few years ago to make a trip around the world," said the veteran warrior, "we stopped for a while in China. The Chinese did not ask about the military affairs or conditions of the United States, but about the Constitution of this country, democracy and the system of government. I was surprised to find them well up in the study of our government and American institutions. It was only a few years later that the Chinese revolution broke out, and tonight we cannot boast of being the greatest Republic of the world."

In concluding, General Miles predicted that Russia would soon have a similar form of government, and he pointed out that all countries "south of the Rio Grande have copied our own government."

(By Federal Wireless Telegraph.) SAN FRANCISCO, February 7.—(Special to The Advertiser)—Charles Bruce Potter, who has just concluded installing a Denio telephone fire alarm system at Honolulu, arrived here on the Mongolia a few days ago, just in time to be made defendant in a $25,000 breach of promise to marry suit, instituted by Mrs. K. Stewart, a divorcee of a San Francisco court last September.

The papers were served by the woman herself as Potter was about to take the train East last night. "Take them along with you Charlie," she said, "and read them on the train."

Three months ago Mrs. Stewart came to San Francisco from Honolulu where she had been staying with her sister. It was to buy her trousseau, the complaint says. Potter was to follow quickly. The weeks passed into months and Potter stayed in the Islands.

A few days ago Mrs. Stewart received a letter from her sister that Potter was aboard the Mongolia. She met him at the dock and gave him a surprise. Then, her complaint says, she dined with him at the Palace and later at the St. Francis Hotel. At the latter place she alleges he discovered he had to go East on business.

"All right," said Mrs. Stewart, "I'll go with you to the train." She did as she agreed and then handed him the complaint in her suit.
