

SEVENTH'S UNFORGETTABLE TO WILSON

New Wave of Antagonism to Democratic Administration

Stilles Washington—Majority Controlling Lower House But Grumbling Much and Continuing to Do His Bidding—Hawaii Sugar Interests Not Considered.

By Ernest G. Walker.
(Mail Special to The Advertiser.)

WASHINGTON, June 18.—A new wave of antagonistic sentiment regarding President Wilson's administration has been felt here in recent days. It is tumbling voluminously into Washington. It also arises here. There is not such analysis of it yet but the situation is voiced by declarations that the President is actually "losing out" and that the country is making ready to pronounce an unfavorable verdict in November, when a National House of 435 representatives and one-third of the ninety-six senators are put to the test of ballots. Such waves of sentiment advance and recede in Washington as administrations come and go, but there is no discounting the present Democratic alarm over the current political status whatever it may actually be.

Something like it has occurred every time the President has advanced any portion of his legislative program. Business forces are undoubtedly identified with the present sounding of tocsin. They are making an impression with it, too, beyond what they were able to do when the currency bill was being pressed last September upon a weary congress and even beyond what was accomplished by way of general disturbance of industrial conditions a few months ago when the railroads were in the midst of their hard campaign for an increase in freight rates. Presumably the stern and determined opposition to the anti-trust program, just being disposed of in the house and coming immediately before the senate, has much to do with the lugubrious criticisms becoming more forceful, as Washington views them, than at any previous period of the Wilson administration.

Not Much Grumbling

There is not as much grumbling among Democrats in congress, as one might infer. The majority partisans are not very pronounced in their private comments. They think the President lives too much into his political self. If he consulted and cooperated more with Democratic congressmen there would be a decidedly better feeling toward him. The house is certainly doing his bidding right up to the hilt, the senate likewise, but with more deliberation. It is not so much lack of confidence in the President as it is consternation over the vigorous opposition. For the first year of Democratic rule, there seemed little popular approval of the critics. The dominant party at Washington began to regard itself as immune against Republicans and Progressives.

Red Times, Alarming

Back of all Democratic fears for the future is disappointment because business is not reviving. If times would become good, there would be Democratic confidence, and even defiance. That explains why the President in his conversations at his offices has said much about the depression being psychological. He believes business will improve. If it does, during the next two or three months, it will be abundant Democratic answers to all criticisms whatsoever. The millions of grumbling words that have been printed in the Congressional Record will go for naught. The orators of congress, who shortly will become the orators of the congressional campaign, will forget with their customary versatility what they have been saying. Indeed prosperity, or the lack of it, may become the great topic of politics.

Ready to Adjourn

The house is already possessed of the feeling that its work is done. It was likewise in that body a year ago at this time, when the Tariff Bill was near a conclusion at that end of the Capitol. The great appropriation bills, aggregating over a billion dollars—how much more than that the house is spending the people's money has similarly striven for retrenchment.

But with all the grunting and sweating for economy, totals have grown, simply because the business of Federal government has grown and can not be repressed. The trend toward centralization at Washington is not only irresistible, but is extremely popular. And as the government at Washington takes over work that the States have been doing, or ought to have done, the bills therefore must be met. There have been additional expenses for the landing at Vera Cruz, especially in the preparations for larger military activity than there has actually been. The new enterprises in Alaska, including the government railroad, there, call for many millions and, likely enough, what has been voted therefor at this session will be only a beginning. In money the Keahi Currents in Which P. Elker Drowned.

WILSON'S STOP DEPT AT RESCUE

Knew Swimmer Could Not Breathe

HONO, June 18.—Philip Elker, a member of the United States Geological Survey, who has been working here for several months, lost his life by drowning last Thursday, under circumstances peculiarly painful to his friends. He was bathing off Keahi when treacherous currents have been responsible for three or four drownings within recent years, and went out to top. An unusually large comb struck him, and then the current carried him out.

Mr. Fowler, chief of the survey party, saw him struggling and was only prevented from starting to the rescue by Hawaiians. He is not a first-class swimmer and even the Hawaiians would not try to go into the water where the unfortunate man was fighting for life. To those who know the Hawaiian's swimming abilities and readiness to go to the rescue in such cases, the means which Elker was seen to take to view, and his body was not recovered till the following morning. The opinion was expressed afterwards that if he had yielded to the current instead of fighting it, and had allowed it to carry him to sea, he might have remained afloat for a long time, and been seen by his rescuers.

The deceased was a resident of Omaha, Nebraska, and about twenty-three years of age. Efforts were made at once to communicate with his relatives by cable, but no answer was obtained. Mr. Hedemann, Danish consul at Honolulu, was here on Monday, and Mr. Williams, who had the body in charge, consulted with him, the Danish consul at San Francisco was called to.

Yesterday afternoon a cable was received from the father of the deceased, asking that the remains be returned to his home in Nebraska, and the body was accordingly embalmed.

Young Elker had made numerous friends during his stay here, and his tragic death brought grief to many outside of his immediate associates in the survey party.

THREE SUBSTATIONS ARE RECOMMENDED

The committee on county and municipal affairs of the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu met yesterday afternoon to recommend to the Board of Public Works the establishment of branch postoffices or substations in Kaimuki, at the Palama Settlement, and at the Kakaako Settlement. The committee did not consider that substations in Manoa, Nuanuu or at Waikiki would be particularly helpful, convenient or necessary. The houses congested sections of the city should, however, be provided with better postal facilities.

Inadequate Revenue

There has been such severe curtailment in many directions that the funds provided will not keep hundreds of federal undertakings going for the twelve months from the new year, which begins July 1 next. When the next and last session of the present congress starts next December, one may expect a mighty outcry from many quarters. Department heads and bureau chiefs will be saying the wheels must stop after a while unless more funds are provided. It is in anticipation of this that an such is heard just now about the proposed reorganization of the city.

Income Tax Increase

Such a contingency would require more revenue and an appeal to congress for amendment of the fiscal acts. It is unlikely that he would consent to any further tinkering with the tariff. The present year would be an increase of the income tax. There has been considerable talk about restoring duties on sugar, but it appears to have no foundation. Certain ones have seized upon an investigation which Secretary of Commerce Redfield is conducting through the bureau of corporations into the cost of producing and marketing beet sugar as proof that the abolition of duties upon that commodity would not be adhered to. As a matter of fact Mr. Redfield, expecting that free sugar would be a favorite point of attack, is attempting to demonstrate that the beet sugar industry is able to take care of itself under present conditions. He is trying to meet charges that beet sugar companies are being forced into bankruptcy and is making most comprehensive inquiry.

No Cane Sugar Inquiry

Agents of the bureau of corporations have already traversed States like Michigan and Colorado, where large sums are invested in beet sugar production. They are heading for California, another great beet sugar State. Secretary Redfield has also called upon the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce for figures about the sugar industry generally. It is not his intention, however, to investigate the cane sugar industry in general. No agents are being sent to Louisiana or to Hawaii and, probably, none will be. At the bureau of corporations, it is said final report on this investigation will not be ready for months. It is nevertheless believed that if the figures favor the Democratic view of free sugar, a report will be forthcoming in the early autumn in time for campaign consumption.

Pearl Harbor Work Assured

$4,986,500 for Big Project

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(Associated Press by Federal Wire)—Final passage of the bill increasing the Pearl Harbor appropriation to $4,986,500, now seems assured. The measure as amended by the senate increasing the amount to the sum named, passed in the senate yesterday, and now goes to conference. The conference in the house was appointed yesterday and were instructed to agree to the senate amendment. This probably will be done today and the measure will then go to the President for approval.

A special cablegram from Ernest G. Walker, Washington correspondent of The Advertiser yesterday morning announced that the United States senate has voted to increase the limit of cost of the Pearl Harbor naval drydock to a total of $4,986,500. This increase is not an appropriation but indicates acquiescence on the part of congress in the recommendations of the army engineers. The drydock will be rebuilt in its present location in accordance with the plans submitted by the late Alfred Noble, the civil engineer, who investigated the collapse of the original structure.

UTILITIES COMMISSION BUSINESS IS TIED UP

A pro forma session of the public utilities commission was held yesterday. Commissioner A. J. Gignoux met at two o'clock, ascertained that there was no quorum present and adjourned for one week. The sole remaining commissioner, J. N. S. Williams, is on Hawaii. All public utilities business is at a standstill because of Governor Pinkham's delay in filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of the chairman, E. A. Mott-Smith. When either Williams or Gignoux is out of town there is no quorum and no business can be done.

Interesting Commencement Exercises of St. Andrew's Priory Held at Davies Hall.

An interesting class of ten was graduated from St. Andrew's Priory last night at the commencement exercises held in the Davies Memorial Hall. Despite the fact that the electric lights came and went several times during the evening, the program was carried out most successfully.

Diplomas were awarded to the Misses Beatrix Carter, Yin Kyau Chung, Grace Crockett, Rose Cummings, Mary Ann Dow, Mary Hart, Bernia Kong, Len Lam, Madeline Lazarus and Gaelic Richardson.

Miss Beatrix Carter gave the salutatory. Miss Mary Hart read an interesting paper on Hawaiian music and Miss Madeline Lazarus was the soloist of the graduating class.

The music by the members of the class was well rendered, as was the duet by Miss Cummings and Miss Hart. Miss Richardson's solo pleased everybody.

Address by Bishop Restarick.

The address delivered by Bishop Henry Bond Restarick was a practical one based on the class motto "I will find a way or make one." He spoke first in regard to the strong, terse English of the saying and emphasized its lesson for the future life of the class.

A few impromptu remarks were made by W. O. Smith. He complimented the work of the school as evidence through the excellence shown by the members of the graduating class. The exercises closed with a benediction by Bishop Restarick, after which the happy young graduates were the recipients of many beautiful bouquets of flowers and congratulations by members of the faculty, parents, friends and classmates.

MILITIA WILL SEE FIELD SERVICE

2:30 a. m., a message was received from the battalion and battery from Nankuli that they had gone into camp near Puuloa Reservoir, and that at least one had been lost with the enemy near Pearl City.

Shortly afterwards, the outpost established the night before, began to fall back, and the preparatory stage of the engagement began, the enemy advancing from the direction of Aiea.

Active reconnaissance, particularly on the flanks, is kept up. No digging will be done, but companies will have stakes and strings to lay out where trenches would be dug.

Exercise 4, Third Day.

The C. O., First Infantry, N. G. H., having discovered that the force in his front is about two battalions in strength, decides to attack, after notifying General H. and the force at Puuloa Reservoir.

Exercise 5, Fourth Day.

As the attack progresses, news reaches the C. O., First Infantry, N. G. H., that four battalions are moving to reinforce the enemy. He decides to withdraw to his former position, on the Red Hill—Salt Lake Hill line.

Exercise 6, Fifth Day.

The First Infantry, N. G. H., having been attacked by the enemy, are driving out of the position. The First Infantry is forced to retreat. The C. O. proceeds to organize a rear guard.

JOHN W. JONES, Colonel, National Guard of Hawaii, the Adjutant General.

Jack Lucas, Announcing Candidacy for Senate, Points Out the Principal Issue.

John Lucas, the well known contractor, whose intention to make the run in September for the Republican nomination for the senate was announced in this paper a few days ago, makes public notice of that candidacy this morning. Mr. Lucas served Honolulu with distinction as a member of the first board of supervisors and has been a prominent Republican for many years. He announces his candidacy in the following letter.

Editor Advertiser:—With the consent of the voters of the City and County of Oahu, I will be a candidate on the Republican ticket next November for the position of senator for the Island of Oahu. I am a Republican, I am not independent, but depend upon the people of Honolulu and the Territory generally for my prosperity, and any man who thinks he can not depend upon the community in which he lives does not know what he is talking about.

My ambition is to help bring and maintain prosperity in my native land, and to all who live here. No legitimate interest will suffer if I have anything to say about it.

Protection to all of our industries is what these islands need. No free trade and starvation in mine.

Yours truly,
JACK LUCAS.

The Fourth Turn.

In connection with the three vacancies in the senate to be filled from this island, Senators Chillingworth, Judd and Cecil Brown having served out their full terms, it is being pointed out by some of the politicians that it is the turn of the fourth district to elect to nominate two of the three on the Republican ticket. So far it is reported that there are three Republicans already in the field from the fifth, with Lucas the only avowed candidate from the fourth. The fifth district men talked of are Judd, A. L. Castle and S. P. Correa.

OFFICERS FIND NO TRACE OF RITCHIE

Belief Now Is That Escaped Prisoner Got Out of City on Transport Logan.

(From Wednesday Advertiser.)

No trace has been found of R. J. Ritchie, wanted in Seattle on several charges of embezzlement and who escaped from the county jail early Monday morning.

Prior to the departure of the transport Logan Monday night a careful search of the troopship was made. The soldiers and crew of the vessel were lined up on P. O. No. 6 and each man was scrutinized carefully. The ship also was searched, but no trace of the missing man was found. It is still the belief of the local police that Ritchie got away on the transport. Captain Williams, of the Logan, was furnished with a minute description of the much-wanted man and he has instructions to place him under arrest upon his being found aboard the vessel at sea and he will be returned to Honolulu.

Detective Sergeant M. J. McNamee, who was sent here from Seattle to take Ritchie into custody and return him with A. DePunter, Ritchie's partner in Seattle, still has hopes that Ritchie will be captured in this city. McNamee had engaged passage on the Wilhelmnia, saying this morning, for himself and his two prisoners, but cancelled this booking and will return to the mainland on the steamer.

On being questioned yesterday, Mrs. Ritchie denied that she aided in her husband's escape. She claims the cord she furnished her husband, and with which he made his way to freedom, was to be used by him in making a hammock. She said that her husband told her that his bed was harder than what he had been accustomed to sleeping on. Jailor Ash believes the cord was smuggled into Ritchie's cell in a bottle of milk. It was Mrs. Ritchie's custom to call on her husband twice a day for an hour at each time and she was allowed to bring him delicacies. No search was made of the various packages that she brought to her husband except in a general sort of way and it is thought that Mrs. Ritchie taking advantage of this easy going system that it is inogue at the county jail, smuggled the cord in.

DePunter, Ritchie's partner, disclaims any participation in the escape of Ritchie, and said yesterday that he was sorry that his partner had acted as he had. For himself he said that he was perfectly willing to go back to Seattle and face his accusers there and expressed himself as being confident of clearing himself of the charges brought against him.

With the entire detective force and as many police officers as can be spared hunting high and low for him, R. J. Ritchie, who escaped from the county prison early Monday morning, is still at large. The city is being searched for the escapee, and every nook and cranny possibly could hide a man will be ransacked before the hunt is discontinued in the outside districts.

There is a bare possibility that Ritchie got away on the transport Thomas, which sailed for the Orient yesterday. The ship was searched from stem to stern by the police and the ship's officers and crew, but the trail of Ritchie was found.

Vessels Watched.

The Oceanic steamer Ventura, which sailed for Pago Pago and Sydney at three o'clock yesterday afternoon, also was closely searched by the detectives and police, but the quest was fruitless.

Ritchie was headed for Australia when he was arrested in Honolulu, and it is thought that possibly he may have hidden somewhere on the Ventura and thus got out of the Territory. How a shark-fishing line at a Chinese store, a clock watch will be kept on both the Thomas and the Ventura by the officers of those vessels, and should Ritchie be discovered he will be at once arrested and returned to Hawaii.

Detective Sergeant McNamee of Seattle, who came down to take into custody and return to Seattle Ritchie and A. DePunter, was ready to return to his home city on the Wilhelmnia, sailing tomorrow for the Coast. McNamee declares that he will wait over in Honolulu until Ritchie is again in custody.

Ritchie's escape was a daring one, and it is thought it was engineered from the outside. From information obtained by the police, it has been ascertained that a woman, who is thought to be Ritchie's wife, purchased several hundred feet of a thick, white shark-fishing line at a Chinese store. At any rate the white cord was found hanging from the place where Ritchie must have tied it before lowering himself over the prison wall. The cord is now in the possession of Sheriff Ross and it is apparent from the look of it that it could have been easily smuggled into the jail.

The escape of Ritchie was not noticed till the rollcall for breakfast yesterday morning. When he did not answer his name a hasty visit was paid to his cell, which was a comfortable room situated near the rooms occupied by the warders and turnkeys who were not on night duty. It was easily seen how Ritchie got away, as a door that opens out a corridor had evidently been opened with a skeleton key. The rest was easy, as the prisoner had only to tie the cord to a drain pipe that runs down the side of the building and then go down, hand over hand, to the ground outside the prison.

Grand Larceny.

Ritchie and DePunter were being held on a charge of grand larceny committed in Seattle. The men were apprehended as soon as they arrived in Honolulu on their way to Australia, and besides a considerable sum of money they had a large assortment of valuable merchandise in their possession.

As soon as the two men were arrested, some weeks ago, a strenuous fight was put up to keep them out of jail. Habeas corpus writs were issued, and for a time the men were set at liberty, only to be recaptured soon afterwards.

NEW PERFUMES FROM HAWAII

London Trade Journal Comments on Value of Oil from Flowers Sent from Pearl Harbor.

Under the caption "Two New Perfumes From Hawaii," a London trade journal of recent date says:

"In the February issue of the Perfumery and Essential Oil Record appeared a note on Aeneas Farnesianus, the 'Kia' of Hawaii, a flower of great delicacy and new and interesting. E. J. Mooklar, of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, informs us that he has come across two more very fragrant flowers that may become an acquisition to the perfumer's art. They are both of Chinese origin, and are named 'Mulang' and 'In-kahang.' Accompanying his letter were a blossom and a leaf of the 'Mulang,' which our Mr. Holmes (botanist) has but little hesitancy in stating to be Mitella Champea (the sacred tree of India) of the Magnoliaceae.

"The bloom has a perfume both delicate and powerful, retaining its fragrance for several days. Before the Mediterranean fruit-fly pest broke out in the Islands, these flowers were sent to California and fetched five cents apiece. The other flower, 'Pakalang,' in English is called 'Chinese Violet,' and judging from the description furnished, Mr. Holmes believes it to be the Ferguliana Fragrantissima, also known as 'Teleoma,' on account of its far-reaching perfume. The flower begins to bloom about April, and continues for about eight months of the year; the plant is a creeper, with a corolla level somewhat resembling that of the violet, and has a flower also like that of the violet in form, but of yellowish green color when mature.

"From this flower, and also from the Mulang, Mr. Mooklar hopes to obtain two new and exquisite perfumes, and we shall look forward with pleasure to the results of his further experiments.

"In passing it might be said that the essential oil of Mitella champea is quoted by dealers at $17 per ounce, and Mr. Mooklar states that by the direct process method the oil from the 'Pakalang' should easily bring $100 per ounce, violet oil by this process being quoted at $80 per ounce. From the figures given it must naturally be inferred that the process is not an easy one and that the yield is not large."

Woman is Rushed to Hospital—Man Held Pending Result of Her Injuries.

In a fit of jealous rage, John Kanoochi, a resident of the McCully Tract, madly assaulted his wife with a baseball bat, at five o'clock yesterday afternoon.

According to the police Kanoochi struck his wife once on the back, once on the chest and finally broke the bat in three pieces on her head. The woman was rushed to the Queen's Hospital, where her condition was reported last night as being serious. Kanoochi is held at the police station pending the outcome of the woman's injuries.

BABY WASTED TO A MERE SKELETON

With Terrible Eruptions—Craw Worsen in Spite of Doctors—Wound Scratch and Tear Flesh Unless Hands were Tied—Fitcher Says HE WOULD HAVE DIED BUT FOR CUTICURA

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to break out on his face. I had a physician call him a little while ago. They told me to use Cuticura. I used it and it cured him. He was a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk."

"I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad that I had to tie his hands in cloth to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk."

"My aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. So I got was her faith in them that she gave me a small piece of the Soap to try and a little of the Ointment. I used them without any hope, but to please her I tried it and it seemed to dry up the sores a little. I sent to a drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of the Ointment. I followed directions. At the end of two months the sores were all well. He has never had any more of any kind since and is now a healthy, happy child. I can sincerely say that only for the most wonderful Cuticura Remedies my precious child would have died from these terrible sores. I will only use Cuticura Soap and about three boxes of Ointment."

"I am a nurse and my profession brings me into many and different families and it is always a pleasure for me to tell my story and recommend Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. 1, Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 25, 1909."

Expect Agreement Soon.

Richard Deming, vice president of the American Sugar Company, which took over the Philadelphia Breakwater Company contract, stated that he thought it would be possible to reach some definite agreement in a week or so, and then get ready to begin construction. Marshall is investigating quarries and transportation problems, and upon those seems to depend his future course of action. It is believed that the beginning of work depends largely upon the final drafting of a contract between the contractor and the railway for the hauling of rock.

Joe Guerrero engaged in a fight with an enlisted man at the Public Baths last night shortly after eleven o'clock. He pulled a gun on the soldier and was promptly placed under arrest by Mounted Officer Monahan. Guerrero was taken to the police station and charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

LALANI PARTY IS OUT FOR WOODS

Local Political Organization Offers to Support Well-known Kohala Resident in Race for Delegation—Latter to Give Answer Tonight—Opposed to Fern for Mayor.

Palmer P. Woods has been given the refusal of the endorsement of the Lalani party for Delegation to Congress. So stated David Kahaleleie president, general factotum and general manager of this new party yesterday. A meeting was called in decide this question last night but it was postponed until tonight at seven-thirty o'clock in order to give Mr. Woods a little longer to think this important matter over.

Claim 2500 Members

"To date we have 2500 members enrolled in this new party on Oahu," said President Kahaleleie last night. "We are drawing our membership from the ranks of the Republicans and the Democrats and our members are from among the rich and poor alike. They consist principally of those who are dissatisfied with the conditions here in Hawaii. We have tried the Republican party for many years and have been humbugged. We have had two years almost of Democracy and it is even worse. Now we have banded ourselves together and we are going to see if we cannot do something for ourselves. We are going to pick the best men that are in the field and put them on our ticket. Palmer Woods has been offered the nomination for Delegation, and will give us his answer tomorrow night as to whether he will accept it."

Mayorality Undecided

For the mayorality we are undecided between Joel Cohen and Charles Hueston. This question will be decided later. I will state positively, however, that Joe Fern is not being considered under any conditions. We will have nothing to do with him. Charles B. Wilson is our candidate for sheriff. Announcement will probably be made within a few days what our full ticket will be.

Our membership roll is growing stronger each day and before election day it will be found that this Lalani Party will carry some weight.

One of the main objects in this new organization slated last night that if Palmer Woods would run for Delegation to Congress he would win easily. He explains his optimistic conclusion thus:

"It is a well known fact that Link McCandless will be the only nominee of the Democratic Party for this position. If Palmer Woods runs the condition will be this: There will be three holes with McCandless, Carter and Rice running against one Hawaiian, our candidate Wood. It is natural that if the Prince gets dumped in this manner at the primaries that he will get sore and get behind Woods and even go out and stump for him. The hole vote will be split between the three hole candidates running, and Palmer Woods will get not only the solid Hawaiian vote but a fair share of the hole vote as he has many friends among them.

"This proposition looks like a cinch for Palmer Woods," concluded the ardent party worker of the new organization. "If he will accept the nomination tonight we will elect him easily."

BREAKWATER WORK TO BE RESUMED SOON

HONO, June 18.—George E. Marshall, the breakwater contractor, stated yesterday that it would be impossible to name a date for the beginning of actual construction work on the breakwater, until the matter of a site for the rock plant was settled. One question at issue is the rate for hauling, said Mr. Marshall, and he declares that there were quarries from which he could get satisfactory rock and haul it at a cheaper rate than the cost from the old site.

"We are not going to start till we know we have a quarry that will last," said Mr. Marshall. "I have heard it said that there is only one place from which rock satisfactory to the government can be secured. I want to say that I know of several. The question we are working on now is where our plant shall be. When that is settled, we will go ahead, and one thing is certain, and that is that we will finish the job."

Expect Agreement Soon.

Richard Deming, vice president of the American Sugar Company, which took over the Philadelphia Breakwater Company contract, stated that he thought it would be possible to reach some definite agreement in a week or so, and then get ready to begin construction. Marshall is investigating quarries and transportation problems, and upon those seems to depend his future course of action.
