THE ADVERTISER'S SEMI-WEEKLY

No Neutrality Laws

UNITED STATES Attorney-General Gregory is asking congress to enact eighteen new laws to correct defects in the present statutes relating to neutrality. At present many acts which are opposed to international law do not violate federal criminal law. The new laws would remedy this. Summarized, these laws cover the following subjects—to make it a crime to interfere with the exportation of American goods; or, to set fire to or place bombs in a vessel engaged in foreign trade.

Another law would authorize the detention in port of vessels which it is suspected intend to provision foreign warships at sea, and allowing the government to detain ships that might be transformed into war vessels after leaving port and used against nations with which we are at peace.

Another would empower collectors of customs to inspect any foreign vessels in American ports. The fifth broadens the inquisitorial powers of the secretary of state in the matter of applications for passports.

The sixth relates to making, counterfeiting or using the seal of foreign governments. The next allows the control of radio and cable messages. The eighth makes it criminal for Americans to participate in naval expeditions against nations with which we are at peace. It is now against the law to engage in military expeditions. Americans who do so forfeit their citizenship and are liable to criminal prosecution should they return to the United States and again seek to exercise the privileges of citizenship—a fact not generally realized.

The ninth law would allow the seizure of arms and munitions about to be exported contrary to an embargo. The next would make it a crime for an interned foreigner to attempt to escape from the United States. The eleventh would make false swearing to any document intended for use by a foreign government in a controversy with the United States criminal.

The twelfth would make any government official liable to punishment should he transmit information about our military establishment to foreign governments. Curious as it may seem, while army and navy officials can be punished for this offense there is no law under which officials in the other departments can be punished.

The thirteenth law makes it a crime to mint or coin money for revolutionists in a country with which we are at peace. The next punishes anyone who destroys the property of foreign governments within the United States. Another would punish anyone who masquerades as a foreign representative.

The sixteenth forbids foreigners not in the consular or diplomatic service of their country acting in the United States as representatives of foreign governments without their first obtaining the consent of the United States. The next authorizes the President to use the military and naval forces of the United States to preserve neutrality. The eighteenth law authorizes the issuance of search warrants in the enforcement of criminal laws relating to foreign relations and the observance of neutral obligations.

It will be recognized that all of the points covered have been raised since the beginning of the European war and it will be a matter of surprise to many that there have been no laws enacted which directly apply.

Disrupted Ireland

ON June 6 Sir Edward Carson addressed five hundred representative Ulstermen at Belfast in the terms of the proposed settlement of the Irish question. The main proposals of the plan provide for the establishment of a parliament in Dublin composed of commoners elected from all the counties except Antrim, Armagh, Down, Londonderry, Fermanagh and Tyrone.

Advices from London on June seven state that the Ulster Nationalists will refuse to the exclusion of these six counties from the operation of the Home Rule Act, and Unionists in Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan have protested against inclusion under the authority of the Dublin parliament. Under Ireland seems no nearer today than it has been for four hundred years, but the leaders are hoping that the spirit of compromise may yet bring order and community of interests out of a troubled situation.

The Money Cost of War

THE cost of the European war to January 1, 1916, according to the report of the "Society for the Study of the Social Consequences of War," at Copenhagen, had mounted to the enormous total of $49,814,200,000. The cost to the allies totalled $32,328,500,000, and to the Central Powers, $17,102,400,000. The total new bond issues and war loans to January 1, 1916, were $18,547,600,000 by the Allies and $9,986,800,000 by the Central Powers.

A despatch from Petrograd says that most of the effectiveness of the Russian artillery in their great Galician drive is due to the use of big Japanese guns. These are said to be more powerful than any the Russians have had heretofore and are charged with shells filled with a new explosive, the destructive power of which is terrific.

Supreme Patriotism

ON this day America will commemorate the martyrdom of President, Abraham Lincoln, the words of whose dedication address on the battlefield of Gettysburg will ever live—"that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Yet men must give their lives, and the mothers of men must sacrifice their best beloved on the altar of freedom, when duty calls.

On this day of patriotic speech let us again remember the letter of condolence that Abraham Lincoln wrote in November, 1864 to Mrs. Bixby, the Massachusetts mother whose five sons gave their all that this Republic might live—

Dear Madam: I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant-General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you of the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our heavenly Father may assuage the grief of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

The Budget System

THE Republican platform a simple business-like budget system is declared to be necessary to effect a reform in the administration of national finances. This is a movement directed against the prevailing "pork barrel" system of government where every congressman must get as many specific appropriations to be expended in his own district as possible, irrespective of the broader needs and commercial necessities of the United States. It is the pork barrel system that has held back great public improvements or compelled the constructive branches of the service to build up budget systems of their own.

The great irrigation projects of the West could never have been carried through to completion had not the reclamation service been formed and special revolving capital provided. Congress made its initial lump sum appropriations, it is true, to start the reclamation work, but they also wisely provided for the indefinite continuation of the service by dedicating to it all the income from the lands appropriated through the completion of the project. The question of how and where the bulk of the available funds is to be invested is left largely with the engineers at the head of the reclamation service.

Had the same system been followed here as has in river and harbor work the United States would have a score of half built dams, many miles of unfinished ditches, and tens of thousands of potential farms watered only by congressional promises. The reclamation service is a good example of what can be done with government money under the budget system. The Panama Canal is another illustration of the right way to construct public improvements.

The mad scramble to land specific appropriations, otherwise known as "pork," have been responsible for the practical disorganization of the army. Little posts and forts have been scattered all over the country, not because the army wanted to be spread around like that but because individual congressmen wanted government money spent in their districts.

Because of pork the United States has not one single fortress or defensive base worthy of the name. There is no Verdun in all America.

Harbors have been half-dredged, breakwaters half-built and piers and docks planned on paper for the accommodation of domestic and foreign commerce, and then allowed to remain uncompleted for twenty years or more because changing political conditions in the districts where these were located robbed some particular congressman of his power. That is "pork," and it is to put a stop to this popular method of dissipating the public revenues that the Republican party has declared in favor of the budget system for the efficient administration of the public finances.

Self-Condensation

SECRETARY LANSING told the Jefferson County Bar Association on June 3 that, "a government which places life and property on an equality would be generally condemned and justly condemned." He charged that there is an influence in America and in congress which puts right of life and right of property on a par, saying that "The great heart of the nation is threatened with fatty degeneracy through those who have lost their patriotic vigor; that many Americans have become lovers of ease rather than lovers of national honor."

Applying his own words to the actions of the Administration of which he is the mouth-piece in all matters affecting our foreign relations, the Mexican situation damns him, for here both President and secretary have placed the value of American lives and American property on the par of nothingness. Are there no "lovers of national honor" at the White House?

Fly the Flag. Do not trail it—let congress and the administration attend to that.

LIHUE CHAMBER ASKS BROWNS REINSTATED

Petitions Superintendent Kinney To Reappoint Teachers To Kauai Post

(By Mutual Wireless To The Advertiser) LIHUE, July 1.—The chamber of commerce, after an investigation of the cases of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Brown, who were dropped from the roll of teachers for this island when their terms expired, instead of being reappointed has adopted resolutions addressed to Superintendent of Public Instruction Henry W. Kinney, and the board of commissioners of public instruction, asking that the two teachers be reappointed again. The chamber says that it finds that the reasons for failure to reappoint Mr. and Mrs. Brown are trivial and not substantiated. Brown was principal of the school at Waimea, and Mrs. Brown was a teacher in the school.

The reason assigned for the decision of the department of public instruction not to appoint Mr. and Mrs. Brown was a spirit of insubordination on their part. When the list of teachers for the island of Kauai appeared without their names, there was a protest from their supporters on Kauai, and the matter was referred to Superintendent Kinney. The latter wrote a letter to the chamber, setting forth the circumstances under which the department had acted, and the reasons for its action.

Kinney stated last night that it was up to the Kauai chamber of commerce to make public his letter, if the chamber so desired, but that he felt bound not to discuss the matter or make the letter public until he had heard from the chamber, which was at liberty to publish his letter if it chose.

GLORIOUS FOURTH WILL BE OBSERVED ON GRAND SCALE

Patriotic Exercises Morning and Night Are To Be Feature of Honolulu Rally

FLAGS WILL BE FLOWN TO SHOW AMERICANISM

All Military Posts Will Fire Salutes and Shafter Is To Have Fine Program

With nearly all the world at war, the United States drops all internal controversies today to celebrate the birthday of the Nation, and in Honolulu the celebration arranged takes the national motto—that of pure Americanism—and in the spirit of this disposition which prevails the continent over, local citizens will display their flag, on residences as well as on business houses, and will attend patriotic exercises at the Capitol building this morning. Americanism is always the keynote of Fourth of July celebrations, has a special significance this year, and on this, the one hundred and fortieth anniversary of the birth of the American Nation, the observance of the day have a meaning beyond those of the celebrations of previous years, for the idea of loyalty to the American flag above all others has become a national propaganda which dominates the political issues and arguments of all the political parties which are contending for control of the national government in the coming election.

Patriotic Exercises

Honolulu's celebration of the day will begin with patriotic exercises at the Capitol grounds, where Hon. Sanford B. Dole will preside over a program of which one of the most impressive features will be renditions of patriotic airs by a large chorus of school children. The exercises are to begin at nine o'clock with a concert by the city band. At ten o'clock the literary exercises will open with introductory remarks by Judge Dele, after which C. C. Biting will read the Declaration of Independence. The oration will be by Hon. Horace W. Vaughan, United States Judge. A company of the national guard will fire a salute of forty-eight guns to the flag.

Salutes At Army Posts

All the army posts salutes will be fired at noon, according to regulations, to the nation's flag. Hawaiian Department headquarters will be closed all day, and in the afternoon, from four to six o'clock, Brig.-Gen. R. K. Evans, commander and Mrs. Evans, will hold a reception at their home, at Victoria and Kinuau streets, for all army and navy officers and their wives.

In the evening there will be a gathering at the Opera House, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at which former Gov. Walter F. Frear will preside. The meeting is under the direction of the citizenship committee of the association. The speaker of the evening will be Arthur L. Dean, president of the College of Hawaii.

The program is as follows:

- Band Concert—Royal Hawaiian Band
- Introductory Address—
- Former Governor W. F. Frear
- Royal Hawaiian Band—Olympia Address—"The Problem for the Modern American"
- President Arthur L. Dean
- Reading—Americanism
- Miss Evelyn Medvedougl
- Royal Hawaiian Band—Vandalia
- "America"—Royal Hawaiian Band and Audience.

Fort Shafter's Celebration

Fort Shafter's celebration of the day will be held in the post theater aerodrome, in the evening, and will consist of a musical program and a moving picture show, followed by a big fireworks display. Col. Daniel L. Howell, Second Infantry, and Chaplain Rees Scott are in charge of the arrangements. The program will be as follows:

- Band Concert—2nd Infantry Band
- Battle Hymn of the Republic—
- 2nd Infantry Band
- Marching Through Georgia and Yankee Doodle—All Singing
- Invocation and Thanksgiving
- The Red, White and Blue—All Singing
- Address
- Dixie Land—All Singing
- Benediction
- My Country 'Tis of Thee—All Singing
- Moving Pictures—7:30 p. m.
- Display of Fireworks—Main Parade 8:30 p. m.

Schofield Barracks Plans

A smoker and entertainment will be the program at Schofield Barracks. The celebration will begin on the baseball grounds at two o'clock, when the program will be announced. Those who are to take part include Harry Lodge, Gene Shan, Dewey Roberts, Joey Leblanc, William Fitzgerald, Fred Little, Earl Robertson, Early Lane, Fred Eckstein, Joe Chavez, John Hazard, Robert Settlers, Willie Thomson, Fred Freeman, Jack Johnson, Gene White, Richard Silvester, George Baras, Raup Demott, Martin Griffin, Joe Podimick and Corporal Quinn.

Japanese Will Celebrate

Local Japanese will celebrate the Fourth of July in the Mochizuki Club, Waikiki, today. Thousands of Nipponese are expected to gather in the yard of the club. Following an opening address, in which the spirit of independence of the United States will be explained to the gathering, many athletic and sea sports will be held.
