WHARF PROPOSAL TO BE APPROVED

Governor Pinkham Said To Favor Proposition Made By Hawaii Consolidated Railway

Thurston, president of the Hawaii Consolidated Railway, Ltd., to the board of harbor commissioners, to install three additional units of the conveying machinery for the Kahalo wharf, in Hilo, with the understanding that the board will recommend that the legislature authorize the purchase of the conveyors at cost probably will receive the approval of the board at its weekly meeting this afternoon.

The committee will report to the board at half past one o'clock and it was said yesterday that the report will be favorable to the plan, and that if the railroad company accepts the changes made in the plan, it will receive the authorization it has asked, and the work of installing the conveyor units will proceed immediately.

JAPANESE FACES TRIAL FOR LIFE

Man Who Killed Second Mate of Steamer Maui, Held For Murder

Takimi Takishi, the Japanese who shot and killed Oliver W. Pankahili, second mate of the Inter Island steamer Maui, in a room over a restaurant at the corner of King and River street Saturday night, was charged with murder in the first degree yesterday. He will be arraigned in the police court this morning.

Although believed by the police as having self-inflicted the wounds which he appeared at the emergency hospital, shortly after the shooting, Takishi stoutly claims that he was cut by Pankahili in the fight and fired upon the mate in self-defense.

The evidence tending to contradict the statement of the Japanese, is that the knife slashes on the coat and the wounds exhibited on Takishi's body, are in different places. According to the police Takishi cut himself following the shooting and removing his coat, slashed it to give evidence that his wounds had been inflicted by Pankahili.

A post mortem examination yesterday disclosed the fact that both bullets lodged in Pankahili's neck, one passing either side. The coroner's jury, following the post mortem, rendered a decision that Pankahili met his death from bullets fired from a revolver in the hand of Takishi.

The deceased is survived by a wife and children, living at 1900 Liliha street.

CANOE OVERTURNS WITH PARTY ABOARD

Prince Kuhio and Messrs Shingle, Widemann and Laird Meet Accident On Sunday

For more than an hour Sunday afternoon, Robert W. Shingle, Delegate Kuhio, Carl A. Widemann and James Laird, bobbed about a mile or more beyond the reef off Diamond Head, upon the bottom of an overturned outrigger canoe, waiting to be picked up.

Fortunately the mariners regarded their plight as a huge joke, and it was not until they had been towed safely ashore by a canoe under the command of Henry F. Bertelmann, who was accompanied by his brother, that the accidents realized how serious their condition was.

Members of the party, when talking of the affair yesterday, seemed to know just how the canoe came to capsize.

"We were going along nicely," said Mr. Widemann, "and I was over the side, paddling around in the canoe, and clinging to the spot canoe. At least that is the way it seemed to me. None of us was a specially good swimmer, but we all managed to keep afloat, although with some difficulty."

For a time the party laughed over their predicament, while making signals to the persons on shore and it seemed at least two hours, to quote one of the members of the party, before the Bertelmann brothers saw what had happened and went to the rescue.

None of the members of the party appeared to have suffered from their experience.

DEMOCRATS WANT TO GET TOGETHER

Report Says Pinkhamites Will Fuse With Bourbon Regulars

That all Democrats should get together in the approaching primaries and work hard for the party's candidates for the legislature forgetting all factional differences that may have existed, is now an opinion that is gaining currency among the Bourbons.

The Democrats will be organized for the campaign at a meeting to be held this evening in the office of National Committeeman J. H. Wilson on Paohahi street. Candidates for the house and senate are then expected to make themselves known. One matter to be determined at tonight's gathering is the time and place for a ratification meeting, to endorse the administration.

The meeting may be held at Aala park. One thing is certain, there will be speeches by "Link" McCandless, J. H. Wilson, Prof. W. A. Bryan, chairman of the central committee, Attorney Joe Lightfoot and M. C. Pacheco.

Meetings to organize for the primaries campaign and select candidates, "Link" McCandless has not yet announced whether he will run again for delegate to congress.

YOUNG TURKS ARE MENACED

Such a move in Constantinople would not surprise any one familiar with the situation. It has been known that a tremendous amount of dissatisfaction has been felt throughout the Ottoman empire over the course of the war, and the recent heavy blows suffered at the hands of the Russians, together with the increasing importance of the Arab rebellion, and the loss of a number of secret cities to the Bedouin hosts, have made the position of the Young Turk government a most precarious one.

MATERNITY HOME LOSES CITY CASES

Supervisors Are Expected To Patronize The Queen's Hospital

When the Kapiolani Maternity Home raised the per diem one dollar a day on all city indigent cases, the board of supervisors set up and took notice. The high cost of living was getting high enough, but they saw no reason for raising the cost of being born.

City Physician Wayson took the matter under advisement and yesterday, at a meeting of the health committee of the board of supervisors, it was decided to send all indigent maternity cases to The Queen's Hospital at the daily rate formerly charged by the maternity home before its advance from two dollars and a half to three dollars and a half a day.

This recommendation will be made to the board and it is believed the board will endorse the health committee's stand.

An agreement will be made between the city and The Queen's Hospital, that institution having decided to add a maternity department, thus giving the clinic of nursing a more complete benefit of practice in this branch of nursing.

FOSTER BEER STEALING CHARGE FALLS THROUGH

Commissioner Curry Dismisses Case Against Mikahala Seaman

After considerable testimony, Judge George S. Curry, United States commissioner, discharged Henry Foster in the federal court yesterday. There was interesting evidence given at the hearing, but the complaint against the beer was not sustained.

Foster, who is a young Hawaiian, was a member of the crew of the steamer Mikahala. A week ago last Friday he was arrested on a federal warrant and charged with stealing four bottles of beer from the cold storage room of the well-known Molokai pocket. The complaint averred that the beer was of the market value of one dollar, but did not specify if the market was the wholesale or retail one.

However, yesterday it developed that Foster was a frequent customer of the booze emporium aboard the vessel and that he often purchased and paid for his beer. There was no direct evidence that he had any time broken into the box and "swiped the whole swipes." Others, it was contended, had access to the joy container. There was also testimony adduced that there was worth thirty-five cents and a half for four bottles, at wholesale, while at retail the same number of bottles would bring seventy-five cents.

Whether this was for quarts or pints was not made clear.

Judge Curry listened attentively to the case, and when he was mentioned the select company present looked hopeful. No beer was offered in evidence and no personal analysis of the beverage could be made so as to prove that it was not beer.

Foster at no time denied he drank beer. He claimed, however, that he always paid for what he got. The case was dropped and the young seaman, who was out on $250 bond, was told to go in peace. He will probably not be a party again to the Mikahala marine beer bar.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF EXPLOSIVES CHARGED

On the charge of having more than fifty pounds of explosives on his premises, D. Shimomishi was arrested following an explosion of a quantity of gunpowder which was stored in his yard in School street, near Asylum road, Saturday afternoon. Shimomishi has been manufacturing firecrackers and airbombs at his residence for some time without securing the necessary license.

TRAFFIC OFFICER AEA RESCUES LOST KIDDIES

Treats the Soda Water and Gives Them Joy Ride

John S. Aea, the traffic officer who graces the pivot spot of the intersection of King and Alakea by day, stepped aside for a moment from his ordinary duties and did a kindly act that brought much commendation from the street-corner loungers who happened to be on hand at about noon yesterday.

Holding street cars to their tracks and making automobiles turn the right corners, while he kept an eagle eye for the safety of pedestrians, Aea spied two Hawaiian tots in very evident confusion trying to negotiate a crossing. John blew his whistle instantly and up went his hands—signal for dead stop. Everything on wheels stopped right then and there and the officer, leaving his post, in three and a half jumps was alongside the little wandering and wondering ones.

Aea took each by the hand escorted the little fellows to the sidewalk, kept his eye on the police alarm box. Then he gave everything else the go-ahead signal. Traffic resumed its routine business.

John inserted his key in the door of the alarm box, gave the crank inside several turns and himself turned to keep his eye on the kiddies. They had been scared, somehow, and were losing no time in lusty crying.

"Eaha ka pilikia!" he asked them. "Mama," bawled one of the little ones. "Papa," cried out the other. For a minute John had his hands full trying to assuage the grief of the wandering duo, but gave it up. Then he took each by the hand and walked into the corner store.

"Say, John, give these babies one bottle of soda water each," he told the man behind the counter. Aea plunked down a dime and while the little boys got busy with the necks of the bottles, the officer questioned them. "No, no," was all Aea could get to his questions for information. The patrol wagon drove up just then and the babies, one about two and the other probably a year older, still holding on to their "pop" bottles, were probably their very first—to the receiving station.

There a frantic mother was trying to make the desk sergeant understand that she had lost her two babies. There was no need for identification, however, when the two little boys got together, they both rushed at Mama and cried as one.

"See, mama, what good policeman been give for me," holding up the half-empty bottles.
