

GOVERNOR MCCARTHY IS INDUCTED INTO OFFICE WITH SIMPLE CEREMONY

Popularity of New Official Clearly Shown and Utterance Is Interrupted Frequently By Applause

By Governor Charles J. McCarthy:
 "Homesteading has come to stay."
 "Nothing that the mill owners can do can stop it."
 "To get sufficient cane for their mills they must induce the man to stay on the land and receive for his cane a price that will insure him a profit."
 "Every man has the inborn desire to own his own little piece of land."
 "In spite of past failures I firmly believe that homesteading in Hawaii can be made successful."
 Secretary Lane:
 "For fifty years it has been the policy of this government that its public lands shall be divided into homesteads."
 "There is no alternative but to pursue the policy which congress has adopted unless you wish to appeal from its judgment and this appeal I do not feel inclined to advise."
 "There has been a difference of opinion as to the possibility of applying the homestead law to sugar lands but the experiment must be made."
 "This part of our common country should give the opportunity to the man of capacity and energy to make a home for himself."
 "That purpose is to put a man on the land who will make that land his home."
 "It does not follow that because a thing has been done only by a corporation it cannot be done by an individual."

Hawaii has a new Governor today. With ceremonies simple, businesslike and yet highly impressive Charles J. McCarthy became the chief executive of the Territory. With his inaugural address he declared the policies which will govern his administration and his inaugural address made a distinct and favorable impression on all of his hearers. In this address, and in the address of Secretary of Interior Lane questions of the deepest import to the Territory were treated and solutions were offered. The applause of the audience indicated the satisfaction with which these policies were received and attested clearly the popularity of the new Governor and the confidence in which he is held by the people of Hawaii.

LAND POLICIES ANNOUNCED
 The advent of the new administration was marked by the pronouncement of definite policies as to the future development of the Hawaiian Islands, with particular emphasis being laid on the manner in which the public lands shall be homesteaded and administered and the wartime policy of reserving all public lands now under lease or on which leases are about to expire, under control of plantations so that growing crops shall not be interrupted. These policies were announced in the address of Mr. Lane and Governor McCarthy.

President's Telegram Read
 During the reading of the secretary of interior's address a cablegram was picked up from the table and read by Mr. Lane, this being the announcement of a proclamation which the President purposes to issue soon, declaring all public lands under control of plantations to be cultivated by the lessees until homesteaded so that the total production of the islands shall not fall below the present level. The reading of the telegram which was sent from Washington in response to the Secretary's recommendation, was apparently a satisfactory solution of the vexed problem, for it was greeted with prolonged applause and meets in almost every particular the policy of reserving public lands suggested by the chamber of commerce.

Oath Administered
 The administering of the oath of office was brief and was the usual stereotyped oath, but there was a deep silence as the chief justice referred that part which referred to his swearing to defend his country against all enemies, both foreign and domestic. As the Governor said "I do," Chief Justice Cooke extended his hand and said, "I congratulate you and Hawaii, whereupon the spectators in a demonstrative and joyful manner in seeing Colonel McCarthy actually take his place as Governor of the islands and continued the demonstration until the Governor picked up the manuscript of his speech and began to express his thanks to his friends of both political parties, and to gradually evolve his policy, particularly with reference to homesteading, which in general was similar to that later outlined by Secretary Lane. The address was frequently interrupted by applause. Governor McCarthy ended with the simple Hawaiian salutation, "Aloha nui" and from the audience many called the greeting back to him.

Assumes New Duties
 It was in the latter room that Governor McCarthy began his duties, which were largely social, for there he was greeted by Secretary Lane and congratulated by him and the members of the Washington party, and then by the heads of territorial departments, including the new treasurer, D. E. Metzger, who will occupy the office first vacated by Governor McCarthy. Many of the Democrats who have been conspicuous by their absence from the scene of the opening ceremony during the former administration, now were thought to be a unusual message of thanks for Hawaii's incoming executive, and this was made certain when a moment later the band played

CRUISER SCHURZ'S SUNK IN COLLISION

Honolulu Man Killed When Former German Warship Geier Goes To Bottom

The second class American cruiser Schurz, formerly the little German gun boat Geier, which was interned by Honolulu for nearly three years, has been sunk about four miles north of Pearl Harbor by a collision with an American ship. LIQUOR SHIPMENT IS BEING INVESTIGATED

Joy Water Is Seized But May Go To Owner After Explanation Is Rendered

Two dozen bottles of beer and two bottles of champagne consigned to H. Knack in Kona were seized and returned to the United States. The Knack is a resident of an island in the Hawaiian group. The federal authorities have not learned definitely yet who was responsible for the attempt to ship the liquor, which was concealed among some household goods.

As all the facts regarding the shipment of the liquor have not been ascertained, District Attorney S. C. Huber says he has not decided whether the intended shipment of the liquor constituted a violation of the Onahu Prohibition law.

TOO MUCH TALK IS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Only Explanation Given By Authorities For Arrest of Alien Enemy Dentist

"Too much talk" is given by the federal authorities as the main reason for the arrest on a presidential warrant of Dr. Herbert M. Clemmens, the alien enemy advertising dentist who was confined in the Oahu prison Thursday.

While District Attorney S. C. Huber made this explanation of the summary arrest of the German dentist yesterday, he refused to give specific facts of the "too much talk." He says Clemmens' case still is under investigation and that it would be unwise at this time to make the evidence in the possession of the secret service mer public.

Free With Boats
 There was a report yesterday that the United States Marshal had seized a large quantity of liquor which was in the possession of Doctor Clemmens, but this was denied by the official. The only color of truth added to the assertion that the dentist has been very free in dispensing liquor, possibly to soldiers, was given by the district attorney. As if unintentionally, the district attorney said, "Clemmens seems to have been very free with his money—and booze, too."

WORK ON KAHULUI HARBOR FINISHED

War Department Sets Aside $20,000 For Maintenance But Refuses To Increase Width

The request of the Maui Chamber of Commerce that an appropriation of $100,000 be made at this time, as a war measure, to increase the width of the harbor from seven hundred to nine hundred feet has brought to light the fact that the war department considered this project completed.

Feinler Now Out of Second Infantry
 Chaplain Marmaduke Seymour Appointed to Regiment
 Marmaduke Seymour, a recent student at the Chaplains' Training Camp in Virginia, has been designated by the war department as chaplain of the Second U. S. Infantry at Fort Shafter, information reaching department headquarters on Saturday to this effect. This appointment gives rise to the rumor that Chaplain Feinler, who was tried by court martial for disloyalty, and whose case for review is still in the hands of the President, may have received a sentence. As Chaplain Feinler has been at Fort Shafter ever since his trial and that nothing has been heard directly from Washington as to his fate, the appointment of Chaplain Seymour makes it appear certain that Feinler is to be removed from Honolulu in the near future.

WOMAN IS ACQUITTED OF SELLING LIQUOR
 Jury Out Only Five Minutes and Reaches Decision
 Judge J. J. Baake, able plea to the federal jury failed yesterday to bring about a conviction of Mrs. Annie Ah Mo on a charge of selling swipes. The assistant district attorney based his address to the jury mainly on the point that the jurors' sympathies should not be swayed because the defendant was a woman.

MAJOR OF TARO LOST BY ROT WHICH IS MOST SERIOUS PEST

Production Cannot Be Increased Until Disease Is Checked Successfully

As a means of increasing production of low cost taro, every attempt should be made to check the taro rot which annually destroys or renders unmarketable about one half of the crop, according to C. W. Carpenter, pathologist of the United States experiment station. The high price of taro and pot at the present time as a result of increased consumption, owing to the restriction in use of wheat, is leading to the cultivation of many abandoned patches, to the planting of dry land taro, and in general to an increased interest in this crop.

STUDY BEING MADE OF CONTROL METHODS
 Suggestions Are Offered For Combating Disease By Plant Pathologists
 In 1902 the United States experiment station investigated methods which should be used to combat taro rot, which produced little but rotting taro, and the results obtained by liming should induce growers who are having difficulty to give the method a thorough trial. There is little available information regarding the organism which causes the taro rot but its scientific aspects are being studied at the station.
