Wedding at Charleston. To the Editor of The Gate City: At the beautiful farm home of Mr. William Shepherd, three miles east of Croton, occurred the marriage of Andrew A., youngest son of Mr. William Shepherd, to Daisy D., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Raines.

At the sweet strains of the wedding march played by Miss Virgie Wilson, promptly at 6 p. m. Wednesday, the 28th inst., in marched the happy couple, attended by Miss Mayme and Edward Bannion, and took their places in front of a bower of flowers, artistically arranged in the parlor which was tastefully ornamented in white, pink and green. Just as the last strains of music died away, began the solemn ceremony, pronounced by Rev. James Troy of Farmington, which linked the two in holy ties of matrimony in this world and forever in the next.

The bride was beautifully attired in white silk and carried white chrysanthemums. The bride's maid was daintily dressed in white India linen, and wore pink chrysanthemums. The groom and best man wearing the conventional black.

Next came the march to the dining room, which was neatly and invitingly decorated in white, red and green, the most attractive of which was the table, which fairly groaned under its load of the sumptuous feast, spread and served to seventy guests, relatives and friends of the bride and groom, at which all lingered long, eating and drinking thereby complimenting the cooks.

The gayeties, music, song and dance were carried far into the night. The couple received many, many valuable and useful, elegant presents. The happy young couple are two of our country's most popular and most beloved, and all join in wishing them prosperous and smooth sailing on the matrimonial sea.

M'FARLAND IS INELIGIBLE

Will Not be in the Game Tomorrow at Burlington—A Big Loss to the Team. Malcolm McFarland upon whom much was depended for a victory, tomorrow afternoon will be ineligible to play according to a letter received by Prof. Reid today from the board of control of the Iowa Principle's Association. The secretary states that the matter must be explained in fuller detail and his case will be investigated. McFarland did not come to school this afternoon and this would have been necessary if Coach Merrill wished him in tomorrow's game. McFarland was to have been used at halfback, but as it is Capt. Parsons will be retained in the backfield with Reiner, Duncan and Peckstein.

TRACEY MEETING AT MONTROSE, IA.

Shows an Amazing Ignorance of the Bank Guaranty Law—Poor Politics.

MONTROSE, Iowa, Oct. 30.—Gov. Tracy spoke at Montrose last night and if anything further were needed to establish the fact of his unfitness for the position to which he aspires it was there made plain. Among other things he stated, in speaking of the bank guaranty law, that Massachusetts and Vermont had had this law for a long time and that it gave good satisfaction.

Does Mr. Tracy think that because Montrose is a small town that its people are so ignorant that he can hoodwink them into believing things which he himself knows are not so. As a Democrat expressed it this morning, "Either Tracy is a fool or thinks we are. If he does not know any better than to state that Massachusetts and Vermont have the guaranty law he advocates, he is too ignorant to send to congress and if he was trying to deceive his audience he ought to be defeated for being a knave."

He also stated that the State Bankers' association of Iowa had endorsed the guaranty law.

Mr. Tracy has done and said many foolish things in this campaign, but we doubt if he has said anything which displays his general ignorance of public questions as much as his speech at this place does.

A candidate for congress is supposed to be a man of some learning and above all a man who will not stoop to the methods of the ward politician.

The general opinion expressed here today is that Tracy made votes for his opponent by his speech last night.

Another Aeroplane Accident. LEMANS, Oct. 30.—Wilbur Wright's aeroplane exploded this afternoon while Wright made a short flight. Wright was unhurt.

ELECTION BULLETIN FLASHED ON TRAIN

People Traveling on the Burlington on the Night of Election Can Get Returns.

People traveling on the Burlington on the night of election will be able to receive election returns as soon as they are posted on newspaper bulletin boards in Chicago. This was the news received by the Burlington office in this city today when the following bulletin arrived:

Unique in the history of presidential elections are the arrangements made by one of the great railroad systems to furnish the election returns to passengers on its trains all through election night, and to do so almost as promptly as they are posted on the newspaper bulletins in Chicago.

In order to do this, the railroad in question—the Burlington—has installed a direct railroad telegraph wire in the Chicago Tribune office, over which their own operators will flash the Tribune returns to their trains on all parts of the railroad.

The bulletins will be posted in conspicuous places in all through trains and will be placed on board at every stop, and wherever regular stops are infrequent, special stops will be made for this purpose if necessary.

This innovation is one which will be much appreciated, especially by the voter who has made a special trip to his home town for the sole purpose of voting and who is obliged to depart on some day. Others anxious to start on journeys for which they have planned, but who do not want to miss the election returns, will, after hearing of these arrangements, doubtless decide to depart after voting and get the election bulletins on the train.

Whoever has crossed the Atlantic on one of two rival ocean greyhounds, will recall the intense interest with which the posting of the daily log is watched and how the chances of "beating the other fellow" are discussed pro and con, the friendly wagers that are made and the sigh of relief that goes up (even though nothing vital is at stake) when they know that their boat has won.

It is easy to picture the excited groups of passengers crowding around these train bulletins to get the latest news. There will be the same eagerness, the same discussions, the same I-told-you-sos that are so characteristic of the election night crowds in any of our big cities. Only numbers will be lacking. And all the while the trains will be rushing along through the night at express train speed.

This is, perhaps, merely another mile post in the march of modern progress. Who knows but what it may be the first step toward a regular news service at all times on all trains? And it only further emphasizes the fact, that nowadays when a man travels, he is sure of the same luxuries and conveniences as if he were in his own home.
