A PICTURE ROMANCE.

The Frame That Startled Delacroix, in the Paris Salon.

Eugene Delacroix, founder of the French romantic school of art, was very poor in his youth. His first picture of note was his "Dante and Virgil," painted when he was only twenty years old.

On opening day Delacroix went to the salon, but failed to find his painting. He was wandering disconsolately about, when he noticed a great crowd before a picture.

It was his "Dante and Virgil." But it was in a magnificent, richly gilded frame, as fine a product of the picture mounter's art as could be found in Paris.

Astonished, he sought Baron Gros, head of the examining committee. As soon as young Delacroix introduced himself Gros seized his hand and congratulated him with true Gallic enthusiasm.

"But," stammered Delacroix, "how about that splendid frame? I had no money to frame it, and—"

"Make your mind easy," said the baron. "Your lath frame fell to pieces, but the committee was determined that such a chef-d'oeuvre as you have painted should be placed on exhibition, and we framed your 'Dante' at our own expense."—Exchange.

HISSING AND ENCORES.

Origin of These Two Customs of the Playhouse.

Hissing in playhouses had its origin in Paris in 1680 on the occasion of the presentation of Fontenelle's tragedy, "Aspar." Prior to that time suffering audiences were wont to yawn audibly and fall asleep when the apathy of the actors and performances justified that course.

But on this occasion the indignant audience, driven to desperation by the platitudes of Aspar, voiced their anger by hisses, which drove the actors into temporary retirement.

According to the testimony of the poet Roul, who alludes to the incident in his "Brevet de la Calotte," hissing there- after became fashionable.

The first encore noted in the annals of the stage was accorded to Livina Andronica, a Roman actor. He was popular with the masses and was called back so often to repeat his speeches that he in self defense brought a boy to declaim for him while he himself applied the gestures.

While encores became the rage in subsequent ages, it is known that Andronica's plan of having an understudy before him before the audience to share his honors has not generally been adopted by Theatians.—Show World.

Women Barbers. In Gay's "Journey to Exeter," published in 1715, it is told how after passing "Morcombe lake" the travelers reach Axminster, where they sleep. The next morning—

We rise; our beards demand the barber's art. A female enters and performs the part. The wealthy golden chain adorns her neck.

And three gold rings her skillful hands bedeck; Smooth o'er our chin her easy fingers move. Soft as when Venus stroked the beard of Jove.

American Success. The reason of the enormous success of the Americans, the reason of their growing wealth and power on the continent of Europe, is their willingness to take risks. They are brave and are prepared to shoulder responsibility.

When a merchant fails in business, banks are found to advance him money to put him on his feet again. Not so in England. A bankrupt is a pariah; the banks will not give him the least help. His failure creates a terrible fuss.—Frenchman in Pall Mall Gazette.

His Last Question. The counsel for the opposition had been bullying the witness for an hour or more when he finally asked: "Is it true that there are traces of insanity in your family?"

"It would be folly to deny it," replied the witness. "My great-grandfather, who was studying for the ministry, gave it up to become a lawyer."

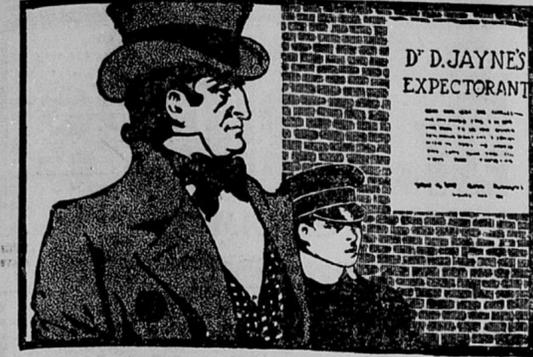

His Case. Mrs. Spenders—Oh, John, I saw a sign in Bargain & Co.'s window today that reminded me of what I am most in—

ANNEXATION WITH AMERICA

Agitation for Free Schools in St. Pierre Creates a Big Demonstration.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 19.—Agitation in St. Pierre over the question of free schools continued Wednesday, according to advices received last night but the crowds parading the streets were orderly. Many agitators talked loudly on uniting the colony with the United States, contending such a step would mean not only civil and religious liberty for that populace, but would even revive the fishing industry.

MONDAY MUSIC CLUB CHORUS

Large Attendance Last Evening at the Weekly Rehearsal for the Coming Oratorio.

There was a large attendance at the rehearsal of the Monday Music Club chorus in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening.

Under Mr. Bentley's efficient leadership the large chorus is rapidly learning to sing as no other chorus has ever sung in Keokuk.

Those who have failed to take advantage of the opportunity to sing this great work, under the direction of a man who studied it under Randegger, the greatest living authority on orations, will surely regret it.

The date selected for the rendition of the Messiah is December thirty-first.

CLOTHCRAFT PRICE. It's the after-ward satisfaction in clothes that pays. Good clothes and poor—wool clothes and shoddy—have a way of looking good in the store. But the Fall or Winter suit or overcoat which wears, stays fresh looking, holds its color and its shape—that will give you the actual worth of your money—must be genuine wool. No shoddy cotton takes wool's place—that's fiat —don't get fooled. If you do, then you are just as liable to be fooled on linings, or right design or workmanship. CLOTHCRAFT clothes are perfection—wool and otherwise. Then besides clothes designed right, cut right and made right, you want clothes of right material—of wool. All wool quality and low price. This is the winning combination you'll find in CLOTHCRAFT. Ewers McCarthy & Co.
