

AMERICAN HOMES VANISHING FAST

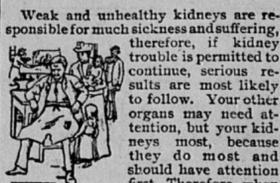

New York City Already a City of the Homeless, Only Two Families in Every Hundred Own Homes.

HOTELS ARE THE GOALS

Society Abandons Mansions to Occupy the Hotels, Suburbanites Take to Hotels and Farmers May do so.

[Gate City Special Service.] NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—New York will soon be a city absolutely without homes. Even at the present time it may be called the greatest homeless city in the world and estimates based on the latest census figures show that by 1920 more than 6,000,000 persons, or practically the entire population of the city will be entirely extinct on Manhattan Island. The disappearance of the institution known as the Great American Home is proceeding rapidly in all the large cities of the country but conditions are such that it is advancing with far greater speed in the metropolises than anywhere else. A century ago nearly if not quite a majority of families owned the houses in which they lived. Today, in all the large cities of the country, not ten per cent do so, and in New York the proportion is only about two per cent. At the present time the total number of residents in New York is only a little short of 4,500,000. Of these less than 20,000 families, or, on the basis of five to a family, 100,000 persons, own the homes in which they live. All the remainder, 98 per cent of the city's total population, occupy homes owned by someone else. Sitting under one's own vine and fig tree is purely an imaginary occupation, so far as New Yorkers are concerned. The twentieth century in fact may be said to mark the beginning of a new era. After the stone age, the iron age, the fire age, and all the other ages, the Homeless Age seems now to be at hand. This change is partly the result of necessity and partly the result of choice. At the tremendous prices obtained for New York real estate even a modest home represents an investment of from $25,000 upward, which or course, puts home-owning quite out of the reach of the ordinary man who is compelled to house his family in a hotel, apartment, tenement or boarding house—or else go to the suburbs. More than 2,000,000 people in New York live in flats, which, on the one extreme, are called apartments and may cost $50,000 a year rental, and, on the other extreme, are known as tenements and rent for $10 a month. Approximately 400,000 persons make hotels their residences and 100,000 more, bachelors chiefly, live in clubs. Perhaps a million and a half are housed in boarding establishments which occupy the buildings once used as private homes. The remainder is made up of those who rent houses. Even among those who can afford to own homes, however, a rapidly increasing number are turning to hotels and apartments. Those who elect to dwell outside the city in many cases prefer the convenience of a hotel life to the responsibilities of a house of their own with the inevitable servant problem. Many of those who are classed as suburbanites are hotel dwellers and to accommodate these elaborate and luxurious hotels are springing up in suburban points about the city. The truth of the whole matter is that domestic life has been brought to a realization of exactly the same factor that has marked the commercial development of the country, that is, that consolidation means a saving of expense—to some one. In the field of the great industries it is still a question as to whether the consumer profits, but the field of domestic activities there is no doubt that the user, that is the consumer, of a home can get more for his money in comforts and luxuries through a corporation than as an individual, a statement which is borne out by the fact that the man of moderate means on the one side, and fashionable society on the other, are both coming more and more to inhabit country hotels. The most exclusive and artistic suburban fields of New York are Long Island on the one side and Westchester

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work. Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty. If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

ter County on the other. They are both sections where rents are not high, as compared to the New York standard, and yet curiously enough the homeless spirit has invaded them to such an extent that where the facilities are good more people live in hotels than in their own homes. Out on Long Island there is a nest of millionaires. The Vanderbilts, the Whitneys, the Mackays, and many others have famous places scattered about the Island. Yet for many months each year these homes are closed and the headquarters of society people of large and small means, nor those less pretentious, but a hotel. At Garden City, the centre of the Long Island society colony, the local hotel is the centre of activities for many people who while they own their own homes prefer to close them up. More people live in the hotel than in the whole town. At the last Vanderbilt Cup Race it was there that W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., made his headquarters instead of at his nearby but unopened mansion. When the famous Briarcliff Trophy Automobile Race was held in Westchester county it was not the palatial but idle homes of its wealthy promoters that headquarters were established, but at a local hotel famous for its appointments. Why is it then that this homeless spirit seems to be developing so rapidly? Professor Ferrero, the famous Italian historian who recently visited this country, and likened New York to ancient Rome, pointed out the European influence in this respect. First of all people even in the country live in hotels because it is less expensive to do so, and because they are enabled to meet and know many persons of social and business importance, a thing which would never happen if they lived in their own houses. That is one of the great factors in the coming of the homeless age—the desire to mingle with the people who make hotels their headquarters. Moreover, the tendency is steadily growing to follow the European custom of moving from hotel to hotel in keeping with the seasons, and as a result chains of hotels under one management dot the coast from Florida to Maine, in each of which according to the time of year one may look to find a circle of hotel friends living the peripatetic society life.

As a matter of fact, it is becoming apparent that the corporation sheltering thousands can give them comforts never dreamed of in the old idea of the individual home. Golf links, tennis courts, billiard rooms and swimming pools—these are only a few of the attractions aside from the greatest—that is, the social features, which the suburban hotel furnishes at a cost to the person making his home there far less than the annual rental, let alone up-keep of a most insignificant house in New York. The whole tendency is to furnish something new, and in the search for novelties the hotels lead the way. Perhaps the most striking illustration of this, the first of its kind in the country, is the proposal of the proprietor of the Hotel Gramatan in Westchester County to equip not only that house but his Long Island, Boston and other hostleries as well with the wireless telegraph to be used in intercommunication, or, if a guest wishes to talk to a friend in mid-Atlantic. The American as a home-seeker would seem to be lazy, at least about New York. The desire to have his menage run with no worry for his wife is largely responsible for the present conditions. Then, too, the possibility of having all sorts of modern appliances and opportunities for indoor and out-of-door sport read to hand, such could never be afforded outside a hotel, are leading more and more people to make their homes in a suburban establishments of this sort. By and large the spirit of combination is invading the home just about as thoroughly as the field of business. The finishing touch to the achievement of the homeless age about New York, however, must be charged to society's account. Where society goes, would-be society, which includes a far greater number, follows, and the stamp of society's approval at the expense of uninhabited country mansions has been a large factor in extending the homeless age to the country and causing many persons in suburban communities to make their homes in the suburban hotels which rival the city caravansaries in appointments, though not in price. And so the extension of the homeless age goes. About the only field left for it is the farm, and the prediction that it may yet do so is no more incredible than a forecast of present suburban conditions would have seemed thirty years ago. It has been proposed already that with the extension of good roads and the increasing use of automobiles it will become possible in time for tillers of the soil to live in village communities and still conduct their farms. Perhaps rural hotels and apartment houses for local residents may yet come. When they do, however, it will be farewell to the already fast disappearing American home.

CHANGE SUGGESTED IN THE RAILROAD

Des Moines Newspapers Says That the Burlington Will Do Something This Spring. The following from the Des Moines Tribune will be of interest in this section: "With the announcement of new operating plan for the Burlington lines in southwestern Iowa, the last complaint made against the service has been cleared up, and the Commercial club has scored a complete victory in its long drawn out contest. The new announcement relates to the service west from Van Wert to Nebraska City on the Humeston and Shenandoah division. At this time the line from Nebraska City through Shenandoah and Clarinda to Van Wert, Clarinda, Sedan and Memphis, Mo., to Keokuk is operated as a division while the line from Burlington to Sedan and thence to the southwest through Missouri to St. Joe is operated as a division. By the new arrangement two new divisions, one almost entirely in Missouri and the other almost entirely in Iowa will be established. The line from Burlington to Sedan and thence to Nebraska City will be operated as one division and the line from Keokuk through Tarkio and Sedan to St. Joe will be operated as another division. On the new south Iowa division two passenger trains will be operated each way each day instead of one. One train will run on almost the present schedule between Nebraska City and Burlington. The other train will be a night train out of Lincoln via Nebraska City through Clarinda, Corydon and Centerville to Burlington, carrying a sleeper, and which will make a Chicago connection at Burlington. A night train west will run opposite this train. The schedule will be so arranged that passengers from the entire territory east or west from Van Wert can come to Des Moines and return on the same day, and have nearly six hours in the city for the transaction of business. The new schedule and operating plan will go on with the opening of the spring season."

Col. Kennedy Passed Away at His Home Last Thursday Evening—He Was an Old Resident of the County.

KAHOKA, Mo., Feb. 23.—Col. Kennedy died at his home in this city last Thursday evening, aged about sixty-five years. Funeral Sunday, interment in Kahoka cemetery. The deceased was an old resident of the county and his death will be mourned by many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Hammat are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl at their home, born last Saturday. Miss Minnie Waggoner is the guest of friends in Canton. Mrs. B. F. Waggoner is the guest of her son, Burt, of Lomax, Illinois. Harry Crawford of Moulton, Iowa, is the guest of his brother and sisters in Kahoka. Mrs. Geo. McHugh of Jackson township, is quite sick. J. M. Dawson returned Sunday to his official duties at Jefferson City. Miss Cosie Townsend left Saturday for Chicago and St. Louis for a two weeks visit to the millinery markets, before going to Sikeston, Mo., for her spring work in a large millinery store. E. L. Shreve and wife, of Farmington, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Pointer. Robert Morris has purchased of J. A. Quick the 20-acre tract of land lying just east of the fair grounds, paying $180 per acre therefor. The place is well improved. How is this for high priced land? Mrs. W. L. Berkeimer is the guest of her son in Farmington. Mrs. P. J. Starr is a Memphis visitor this week. Very few people are coming to town these days owing to the bad condition of the roads. Fred Lang has returned from a short trip to Texas where he contemplates locating. He was not very favorably impressed with the country. Kahoka Eagles adopted a class at their hall Monday night and enjoyed tempting refreshments afterwards, prepared by "Chef" Wm. Mauzy. The affair was said to have been a fine success. The Eagle lodge here, although young in years, is rapidly increasing its membership, and at the present rate will soon have one of the strongest lodges in town.

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

ALFALFA EXPERIENCE. Judge Humphrey Tells of His Success with Crop.

Among the successful growers of alfalfa in Illinois is Judge J. Otis Humphrey of Sangamon county. Speaking of his experience with the crop at the Tazewell county farmers' institute recently, he said: "I tried for three years to grow alfalfa and it died out every time, but I don't say that a crop can't be grown simply because I failed in producing it. The scientist is among us, and he is the only man who actually knows, and he has finally taught us how to make alfalfa grow. "Then I agreed to follow the exact advice of Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins of the Illinois agricultural experiment station, got soil from an old alfalfa field (soil from a sweet clover patch will do the same) to inoculate the ground with bacteria. The land was rich in cream and thoroughly tilled. I put on bone meal, lime and manure and plowed it under. "After working the ground into the best order I ever saw a field, I had it worked just as much more. It was harrowed until there was not a clod in it. And I have not had a particle of trouble since in growing alfalfa. "You may sow alfalfa any time from May to August, and if you will do it right and follow the right you can grow alfalfa anywhere in the corn belt, and the crop is worth $50 an acre. I sow one bushel to five acres; that is 12 pounds to the acre. I have never had a complete stand at first. If I had ten per cent of alfalfa on the ground, I would go on and make a stand of it. I disk all the bare places in the field and wherever the stand does not satisfy me, setting disks almost straight. I never killed my alfalfa by disking it. I disk, resow and harrow these bare places. I have done this the first week in June, the middle of July, the last week in August and the first of October, and always with good results. I now have five fields of alfalfa, and for the last six years I have cut about four tons per acre of this marvelous crop. In my judgment, alfalfa is the most marvelous food and forage plant, containing the most of the elements that sustain life of any in existence. Corn, wheat and oats have no power to get nitrogen from the air, but alfalfa is the greatest nitrogen-fixing plant on earth. It secures from the air four times as much nitrogen as red clover. But it will also make you money while it is storing nitrogen for you. I believe that alfalfa, one year with another, is a better money-maker even than corn. All animals on the farm from chickens up will eat alfalfa; the pigs thrive on it; sows will go through winter on it; it is good for the mares; weaning colts fed alfalfa and shelled oats some out fat in the spring and shed off in March. It supplies more green feed for the hogs than anything else, and this is a great prevention of hog disease. I have tried it, and I think I know about it. I would not give a ton of alfalfa for two of timothy. You cannot feed a horse anything in the world he likes so well as alfalfa. Put corn, shelled oats, a bran mash and alfalfa in his manger, and you will see that he eats the alfalfa first. I don't know any animal that will not leave every other food to get alfalfa.

GATE HINGE AND BRACE.

Can Be Made from an Old Wagon Tire. The combined gate hinge and brace shown in the accompanying illustration has been used to an advantage on our farm, being both simple and durable. The combined hinge and brace is made from an old wagon tire, the ends being worked into hinges after the proper bend has been given to the tire. Holes are bored at suitable distances. It will be found, says Prairie Farmer, that the fact that the hinge and connecting brace are all one piece of iron will add materially in preventing the gate from sagging. Such a combination is perhaps a little more expensive than the ordinary hinge, but it will be found that the extra cost will often be returned in added durability.

FARM NOTES.

Sow clover with oats. It will do wonders for the corn crop the following year. Clover straw should be scattered back over the fields after threshing. Oftentimes there is success in seeding alfalfa with barley. The happy, successful farmer has many friends with odd names. Have you ever noticed it? He has Experience, Contentment, Patience, Mercy, Faith, Hope, Charity and Love. You will find yourself happy and successful, too, when all these can be found under your roof.

A mule once drew a heavy load up a steep hill; when he had almost reached the top he kicked himself loose and the load rolled down the hill. That mule had to go back and draw the same load to the top of the same hill again. There are lots of mules in the world. Fonder, and be wise.
